THE PENNSYLVANIA
HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY
1827—1927

A History covering its first hundred years has just been published by the Society and is now ready for distribution. The text was prepared and edited with painstaking care by James Boyd, late President, to whom the volume will stand as a lasting memorial.

The material, compiled from the minutes of the Society and from contemporaneous prints, is arranged chronologically, and tells an interesting story of the development of the Society—starting with its organization in November, 1827, describing its alternating ups and downs during the next hundred years, and ending with the celebration of its centennial anniversary in November, 1927. In addition, there is much valuable information about horticulture in general and the introduction of new plants from time to time during the last century.

The book is a cloth-bound volume of over 500 pages, profusely illustrated, and may be obtained upon application to the Secretary of the Society, accompanied by check for $5 (postage prepaid).

By-Laws
The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society

ADOPTED MARCH 20, 1929

I OFFICERS

The officers of the Society shall be a President, two Vice-Presidents, a Secretary and a Treasurer.

II
PRESIDENT

1. The President, or in his absence one of the Vice-Presidents, shall preside at the meetings of the Society and the Executive Council. The President, ex officio, shall be a member of all committees. He shall have general direction of all the activities of the Society and shall in every way seek to promote the interests and extend the usefulness of the Society.

2. He shall submit to the Executive Council at the January meeting a general report of the affairs of the Society.

III
VICE-PRESIDENTS

In the absence of the President, his duties shall be performed by the Vice-Presidents in the order of their seniority.

TREASURER

The Treasurer shall collect all dues and other income and shall keep the accounts of the Society, disburse its money, and report thereon at the regular meeting of the Executive Council in January. He shall deposit the funds of the Society in such Bank or Trust Company as the Executive Council shall designate. All payments shall be made by check. He shall pay bills only upon the approval of the Chairman of the Committee authorizing the purchase or contract. He shall, with the approval of the President or one of the Vice-Presidents, have authority to borrow money in order to provide funds for the legitimate expenses of the Society or when in his judgment it is for the best interests of the Society so to do. He shall furnish a bond in such amount as the Executive Council may determine, the premium for which shall be paid by the Society, and the Bond shall at all times be in the custody of the President.

V
SECRETARY

1. The Secretary shall give notice of all meetings of the Society and of the Executive Council and shall keep minutes of such meetings. He shall conduct the correspondence and keep the records of the Society. He shall be the keeper of the seal of the Society. He shall notify persons elected to membership of their election. He shall send by mail to each member of the Executive Council at least seven days' notice of each stated meeting. He shall perform such other duties as may from time to time be assigned to him by the Executive Council.

2. The Secretary may, if the Executive Council so directs, act as Assistant Treasurer, performing such duties as the Treasurer may delegate to him, with the approval of the Executive Council. As Assistant Treasurer, he shall furnish a bond in such amount as the Executive Council may determine, the premium for which shall be paid by the Society, and the Bond shall at all times be in the custody of the President.

3. The Secretary may be paid a monthly salary, to be determined by the Executive Council. This salary may be increased or decreased by the Executive Council at any regular meeting.

4. In the absence of the Secretary at any meeting the President or presiding officer shall appoint a Secretary pro tempore.

VI EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

1. The Executive Council shall consist of twenty-one members. It shall have general charge of the affairs, funds and property of the Society, and shall have authority to designate the person or persons who may make contracts or purchases for the Society. It shall have full power, and it shall be the duty of its members, to carry out the purposes of the Society according to its Charter and By-Laws.

2. The Executive Council shall, as soon as may be, after each Annual Meeting elect from its own body a President, two Vice-Presidents, a Secretary and a Treasurer, who shall hold office for one year from the first day of the succeeding January, or until their successors are elected.

3. The Executive Council shall meet once a month, except during the months of June, July and August, and Special Meetings may be called by order of the President. Seven members shall constitute a quorum of the Executive Council.

4. The Executive Council shall have power to elect annual members, life members and honorary members.

5. The Executive Council may fill any vacancy in its body by election of a member of the Society to hold office until the next Annual Election.

6. Any member of the Executive Council or of any Standing Committee who shall be absent from three consecutive meetings shall cease to be a member of the Council or the Standing Committee, unless a satisfactory reason be offered to the Council or the Committee for such absence.

VII MEETINGS

1. There shall be an Annual Meeting of the Society on the third Wednesday of November in each year. Special meetings of the Society may be called by the Secretary upon order of the President, or of any five members of the Executive Council or upon request of fifteen members of the Society. At each Annual Meeting there shall be elected seven members of the Executive Council to serve for three years, and at such Annual Meeting any vacancy in the Executive Council shall be filled by the election of a member to serve the unexpired term.

2. Officers and members of the Executive Council shall hold office during the term for which they are elected and until their successors are chosen.

3. Ten members shall constitute a quorum at any meeting of the Society.

VIII NOMINATIONS AND ELECTIONS

1. As soon as may be after the September meeting of the Executive Council in each year a Nomination Committee, consisting, ex officio, of the members of the Executive Council who have more than one year but less than two years to serve as such members, shall nominate candidates for all the offices which are to be filled by election for the coming year. The Committee shall file its nominations with the Secretary before the first day of October, and the Secretary shall, on receiving them, cause the nominations to be published in "Horticulture" at least thirty days previous to the Annual Meeting. Additional nominations may be made in writing by fifteen or more members of the Society. They shall be addressed to the Secretary and mailed prior to the first day of November.

2. If no nominations are made in addition to those submitted by the Nominating Committee an election by ballot will not be necessary, and the Executive Council shall, by motion, elect the candidates nominated by the Committee.

If additional nominations are received, the Secretary shall cause ballots to be printed containing the names of all the candidates, and shall mail them to every member of the Society as soon after November 1st as possible.

3. Members shall vote by placing an "X" opposite the names selected. To secure secrecy in the election, the ballots shall be provided with inner and outer envelopes. The member, after marking his ballot, shall enclose and seal it in the inner envelope. The latter should then be enclosed and sealed in the outer envelope, on which the member shall sign his name, after which it should be mailed to the Election Committee. If the member's signature is omitted on the outer envelope, or if more names are marked than required, the vote shall be disqualified.

4. The President or presiding officer shall appoint an Election Committee of three to receive, assort and count the ballots cast, and to report the result to the Secretary. A plurality shall elect, and the President or presiding officer shall declare who are elected. Voting by proxy shall not be allowed at any meeting.

IX

HONORARY OFFICERS AND MEMBERS

1. Honorary Vice-Presidents may be elected by the Executive Council at any regular meeting. This honor is reserved for persons who have served the Society as officers or members of its Executive Council.

2. Honorary Members may be elected by the Executive Council at any regular meeting. This honor is reserved for persons of pre-eminence in horticulture and kindred sciences, and signifies the high regard in which they are held. No dues are required from Honorary Members. They shall not be permitted to vote or hold office.

X

RESIGNATIONS

1. Resignations of membership shall be made to the Secretary in writing.

2. Resignations shall not be accepted until all indebtedness to the Society of the member resigning shall have been discharged.

XI

DUES

1. The dues of all annual members shall be three dollars, payable on January 1st in each year, in advance. If such dues are not paid on the first day of November thereafter, such members shall cease to be members of the Society.

2. Candidates elected, on payment of the dues for the current year, shall become members of the Society, and the election of any candidate shall be void if he fails to make such payment within thirty days after notice of his election is made, addressed to him at the place given as his residence in his application for membership.

3. Any person may be elected a Life Member upon the payment of fifty dollars.

4. All moneys received from Life Membership dues shall be treated as a trust fund in perpetuity. The income only from this fund shall be used by the Society.

XII

SUSPENSIONS OR EXPULSION

Any member may be suspended or expelled for cause by vote of three-fifths of all of the members of the Executive Council, fifteen days' previous notice in writing having been given to the member of the charges preferred against him. Any action under this Article may be revoked or modified by subsequent vote of the Executive Council.

XIII

STANDING COMMITTEES

1. There shall be six Standing Committees, to be known as the Executive Committee, the Finance Committee, the Library Committee, the Lecture Committee, the Garden Committee and the Exhibition Committee.

2. The President, as soon as may be after the first of the year, shall appoint the members of all Standing Committees, with the approval of the Executive Council. The Chairman of each Committee must be a member of the Council, but other members may be drawn from the Society. They shall hold office for one year from appointment and until their successors are appointed. All vacancies in such Committees shall be filled by the President and Executive Council, or during its recess by the Executive Committee. Each Committee shall have power to fix its own quorum.

3. The Executive Committee shall consist of not more than five members. It shall be its duty, subject to the control of the Executive Council, to order purchases, to regulate salaries and wages (except the Secretary's salary), to receive complaints, to redress grievances, to appoint and dismiss employees, to manage the Society's Rooms and to perform such other similar duties as may from time to time be assigned to it by the Executive Council. During the recess of the Executive Council the Executive Committee shall be vested with all the powers of the Executive Council so far as the same can be legally delegated, but it shall be its duty to exercise such powers only whenever immediate action is required.

4. The Finance Committee shall consist of three or more members, of which the Treasurer shall be one. It shall be its duty, subject to the control of the Executive Council, to supervise the finances and investments of the Society, to annually make a budget setting forth the estimated receipts and expenses of the Society for the ensuing year, commencing on the first day of January, and to present such budget to the Executive Council for consideration at its January meeting. It shall be its duty to engage a Certified Public Accountant or Accountants annually to audit the Society's accounts. It shall report to the Executive Council the accounts audited and allowed since its previous report, and perform such other similar duties as may from time to time be assigned to it by the Executive Council.

5. The Library Committee shall consist of five or more members. It shall be its duty, subject to the control of the Executive Council, to regulate the use of the Library, the Reading Room, and of all the books, periodicals, newspapers, etc., to purchase books and periodicals, and to perform such other similar duties as may from time to time be assigned to it by the Executive Council.

6. The Lecture Committee shall consist of not more than three members. It shall be its duty, subject to the control of the Executive Council, to prepare a list of lectures to be delivered during the year, to make arrangements with the lecturers, to supervise the arrangements for the delivery of the lectures, and to perform such other similar duties as may from time to time be assigned to it by the Executive Council.

7. The Garden Committee shall consist of not more than five members. It shall be the duty of this Committee to consider plans for the development and promotion of the horticultural purposes of the Society and, subject to and with the approval of the Executive Council, to carry out such plans and to perform such other similar duties as may from time to time be assigned to it by the Executive Council.

8. The Exhibition Committee shall consist of five or more members. It shall be its duty, subject to the control of the Executive Council, to organize and supervise all of the Society's Exhibitions. It shall determine dates of Exhibitions and places where they shall be held, which, however, shall be subject to the approval of the Executive Council. It may contract for printing and advertising in connection with the Shows, the cost of which shall not exceed an amount appropriated for such purpose by the Executive Council. It shall appoint all Judges, arrange for their reception and entertainment, and perform such other similar duties as may from time to time be assigned to it by the Executive Council.

XIV RULES AND AMENDMENTS

1. The rules contained in "Robert's Rules of Order Revised" shall govern the Society in all cases to which they are applicable and in which they are not inconsistent with these By-Laws.

2. These By-Laws may be amended by the Executive Council at any regular or special meeting by the affirmative vote of a majority of the entire membership of the Executive Council, provided a notice of the proposed amendments has been sent to the members of the Executive Council with the notice for the meeting; or they may be amended if proposed at an annual or special meeting of the Society and recommended by a majority vote of those present, when submitted by letter ballot to the members, a two-thirds favorable vote of the ballots cast being required.

Secretary's Report for 1929

Our late President, James Boyd, considered it one of the duties of his office to present at the beginning of each year a review of the activities of the Society and to make suggestions for the future. This year, as Mr. Boyd's successor has been in office such a short time, it seems best to include in the Secretary's report the matters usually covered by the President.

We began the year 1929 with 1,711 members and ended it with 2,009, a net gain of 298. Four hundred and eleven new members were enrolled, but 113 were lost by death and other causes. This record is not quite so good as that of 1928, when there was a net gain of 368, the largest yearly increase the Society has ever had. However, all records were surpassed when 79 persons became Life Members. As our total number of Life Members on January 1, 1929, was 99, it can readily be understood that such an increase in a single year was quite an accomplishment. All money received from Life Membership is invested in part of the Endowment Fund, thus giving us increased income for the future. Such additional income is greatly needed for our ever-growing activities.

As in previous years a number of horticultural organizations took advantage of the Society's invitation to use the Council Room for their meetings. We hope that in the future it will be used much more frequently than it is at present. Among the associations that used the Room regularly were: The School of Horticulture for Women at Ambler, The Council for Preservation of Natural Beauty in Pennsylvania, the Philadelphia Flower Show Committees, the Pennsylvania Chapter of the Wild Flower Preservation Society, and various Committees of local member clubs of the Garden Club of America, which arranged for the Annual Meeting of that organization last May. The Council Room was used for 92 meetings during the year. There were also over 700 visitors to our offices, exclusive of persons attending meetings and using the Library.

Starting in January, 1929, an entirely new privilege was offered to members in the services of a gardening consultant. Mr. David Rust was appointed to the position, and, judging from the many calls for his assistance, this service fills a decided need. Mr. Rust made 119 visits to the gardens of members, where he gave practical advice about special problems, in addition to holding many conferences with members by appointment in our Rooms. He also gave several talks before Garden Clubs and acted as judge for flower shows of other organizations, thereby increasing our contacts with kindred associations. In case our newer members do not realize the opportunity that is open to them, I want to emphasize the fact that Mr. Rust's services are available to all the members of the Society, the only charge being for actual traveling expenses to and from their gardens. No members should hold back from asking for this service through mistaken modesty over the size or importance of their gardens.

For the information of those who may not be familiar with the methods by which the Society is conducted, I wish to explain our present organization. All of our officers serve without pay; of course, the office staff is salaried, but the President, Secretary and Treasurer, as well as members of the Executive Council and of various Committees, give their services to the Society without remuneration of any kind. In fact, Mr. Boyd gave his entire time to the interests of the Society for the last five years, keeping regular office hours.

When Mr. Boyd became President eleven years ago (in 1919), he brought about the creation of an active Executive Council, now 21 in number, which has power to transact all the business of the Society. The major activities of the Society are conducted by six Standing Committees (the Chairman of each being a member of the Executive Council), as follows: The Executive Committee, the Finance Committee, the Library Committee, the Lecture Committee, the Garden Committee and the Exhibition Committee. Under a Budget system, each Committee is given a proper share of the Society's income. The following abstracts of the main activities during 1929 are summarized from reports made by the Chairmen.

LIBRARY COMMITTEE: Mrs. Horatio Gates Lloyd, Chairman.

Our Library is gaining accessions constantly. We now possess over 2,500 books, 169 of which were added during 1929. Sixteen of these accessions were presented to the Society and the remainder purchased from the Committee's appropriation. The Committee wishes to remind members that they are always delighted to receive donations of new or old volumes of horticultural interest. Among the new books in greatest demand during the year were: "China, Mother of Gardens," by E. H. Wilson; "Gardeners' Bed Book," by Richardson Wright; "Japanese Iris," by Manabu Majoshi, 4 v.; "The Lilac, A Monograph," by Mrs. Susan D. McKelvey; "Patio Gardens," by H. M. Fox; and "Portraits of Philadelphia Gardens," by James and Louise Bush-Brown. All of the leading horticultural periodicals are also on file. The Librarian is glad to recommend books to members and to help them look up special information. There were over 450 visitors to the Library in 1929, the majority of them availing themselves of the circulating privilege. All persons are cordially invited to use the Library for reference, but the circulating feature is reserved for members. A gift of $250 was made to the Library in the summer of 1929. This is the largest donation the Library has received in the last fifty years, and the Committee hopes that a precedent has been established! Upon the recommendation of the Committee, the William L. Schaffer Medal of the Society was awarded to Susan D. McKelvey for her outstanding monograph on the Lilac. This is the first time the Schaffer Medal has been presented for a literary achievement.

LECTURE COMMITTEE: Mrs. William T. Elliott, Chairman.

The Lecture Committee presented three lectures in January and February, 1929, and then added another lecture on November 5th, when they were fortunate enough to secure Mr. E. H. M. Cox, of London, England, who spoke on Reginald Farrer and the work he did for Horticulture. After this lecture, which was given on the first day of the Chrysanthemum Exhibition, tea was served in the Council Room, and an opportunity given to those who had heard the lecture to meet Mr. Cox. The three earlier lectures were presented on Tuesday afternoons, as follows: January 22d, "Some Gardens of England and the Riviera," by Miss Anna Linn Bright; February 5th, "Notable Trees and Old Arboretums In and Around Philadelphia," by Samuel N. Baxter, Landscape Architect of Fairmount Park; and February 19th, "The Japanese Beetle and Other Important Insects," by G. F. MacLeod, Assistant Extension Entomologist of the Pennsylvania State College. The February 19th lecture was repeated in the evening. The lectures were illustrated and were presented in the Auditorium of the Insurance Company of North America Building, 1600 Arch Street. The attendance ranged from 163 to 217 in the afternoon, and dropped to 60 for the evening lecture. Members were invited to bring guests.

GARDEN COMMITTEE: Mr. William J. Serrill, Chairman.

The Garden Committee added a new phase to its activities in 1929, by awarding medals to the owners of gardens of outstanding merit in the vicinity of Philadelphia, as follows: The Society's Exhibition Gold Medal to Mr. and Mrs. Horatio Gates Lloyd, of Haverford, Pa.; the Society's Exhibition Silver Medals to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sill Clark, of Chestnut Hill, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. George L. Harrison, of St. Davids, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Newhall, of Ithan, Pa., and Mrs. B. Franklin Pepper, of Chestnut Hill, Pa. The Society co-operated with the School of Horticulture for Women at Ambler, Pa., in conducting Garden Visiting Days on eight Saturdays in May and June. Twenty-seven gardens were opened on these occasions and 350 members of our Society took advantage of the privilege. As both the School and our members seemed greatly pleased with the arrangement, it is hoped that it will be continued in 1930.

EXHIBITION COMMITTEE: Mr. W. Atlee Burpee, Jr., Chairman.

The Philadelphia Flower Show was held in the Commercial Museum from March 11 to 16, 1929. The Society co-operated by taking complete charge of the Women's Classes, to which we awarded $300 in cash prizes. Mr. Rust helped stage the exhibits, and the necessary labor and setting for these displays were provided by the Society. The Society was represented by a booth at the Show for the enrollment of new members and also to serve as a meeting place for members. However, its location was not advantageous, and only 52 new members were secured, as against 100 the preceding year, when the Society's exhibit of an old-fashioned garden drew the favorable attention of visitors to our organization. In all, the Society expended about $1,000 in 1929 for its participation in this Show. Our members received two tickets each for the event; the admission price to the public was 75 cents. Members of the Horticultural Society of New York receive a season ticket to the New York Show, but it should be remembered that the dues of the New York Society are $10.00 a year, while ours are only $3.00.

The Exhibition Committee was handicapped by lack of a suitable exhibition hall. No big spring show was attempted, but on June 12th, in the Rooms of the Society, there was a small Rose Show for the award of the Robert C. Wright Rose Medal. The medal, which was offered for the "Best single rose grown by an amateur," was won by Mr. James Boyd with a beautiful specimen of the "Mari Dot" rose. There were also cash awards for collections of Cherries and Strawberries. No admission was charged.

The Dahlia Show was held in conjunction with the Bryn Mawr Horse Show at Bryn Mawr. It was staged in a tent just inside the entrance to the grounds and was an exceptionally beautiful exhibition. The Exhibition Gold Medal was awarded to the W. Atlee Burpee Company for the best display of Dahlias, and Exhibition Silver Medals were awarded to the Lyndora Gardens, Reinhold Greinberg and Echo Dale Gardens for their exhibits in various classes. The Rutledge Horticultural Society received the Challenge Cup for the fourth consecutive year, with a vase of 18 Dahlias. Three hundred and eighty-eight dollars was distributed in cash awards. Members were admitted upon presentation of their Membership Cards. There was a general admission charge of 50 cents to the public, which included admission to the Horse Show and to the Dahlia Exhibition, but our Society had no participation in the gate receipts.

The Chrysanthemum Show was held on November 5th and 6th at 1600 Arch Street. There were comparatively few entries, but the quality of the blooms was exceptionally high. The attendance was 268 (disappointingly small), and cash prizes amounting to $56 were awarded. There was no admission charge for this Show.

The Society's Exhibition Gold Medal and three Silver Medals were given to the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for award at their Centennial Exhibition, March 19th-23d. Our Gold Medal was won by Mrs. A. Sherman Hoyt, of Pasadena, Calif., for her Redwood Tree exhibit, "the most original display in the exhibition." The Society's Exhibition Gold Medal was also given to the Horticultural Society of New York for award at their Autumn Exhibition, and was won by Mrs. H. McK. Twombly for the best collection of vegetables. Silver Cups or Garden Club Plaquettes were given to the following local organizations for awards at their exhibitions: Art League of Conshohocken, Bala-Cynwyd Garden Club, Camden Dahlia Society, Garden Club of Westfield, N. J., Kearney & Arlington Garden Club, Lansdowne Flower Show Association, Rutledge Horticultural Society, Saturday Club of Wayne and the Woman's Club of Germantown.

OTHER ACTIVITIES

In addition to the activities directly under Committee management, as outlined in the preceding paragraphs, other important interests of the Society were the following:

"Horticulture": This magazine continued in 1929 to be one of the most appreciated privileges of membership. It is the official organ of this Society and members should refer to it for news of our activities, notices of meetings, etc.

Relations With Other Horticultural Organizations: It has been the constant aim of the officers and Executive Council to promote harmonious and helpful contacts with kindred associations. One of the ways in which this has been accomplished is the bestowing of Medals and Garden Plaquettes to other societies for award at their exhibitions, as mentioned previously. On the occasion of the Centennial Banquet of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society on March 19, 1929, the Horace Binney Centennial Medal of this Society was awarded to the Massachusetts Society in way of congratulation and friendship. The Society was officially represented at the Centennial Exhibition in Boston and at the International Flower Show in New York.

Flowers for the Flowerless: The Society co-operated again last summer in the movement sponsored by the Art Alliance to provide "Flowers for the Flowerless." Mrs. Charles F. Derby ably represented the Society, and was on duty Friday mornings in August to receive flowers at a booth in the central part of the city.

National Plant Registration: The Society was kept informed of the progress of the Committee which is undertaking the work of national plant registration, and has expressed its approval of the project and its desire to co-operate.

Rose Canker Fund: One hundred dollars was appropriated to the research work that is being carried on by The American Rose Society at Cornell University in the effort to combat this serious plant disease.

Council for Preservation of Natural Beauty in Pennsylvania: Fifty dollars was appropriated by the Society for the purchase of cloth signs asking the public to spare the wild flowers, to further the admirable work of the Council.

Proposed Pennsylvania State Federation of Garden Clubs: The Society sponsored a meeting on November 25, 1929, to consider the formation of a Pennsylvania State Federation of Garden Clubs. Mr. Boyd opened the meeting and then turned it over to Mrs. J. Willis Martin, one of the founders of the first Philadelphia garden club, which was organized twenty-six years ago. Plans were formulated for two meetings to further the project early in 1930, and it is hoped the Federation will be founded on March 26th during the week of the Philadelphia Flower Show. All Pennsylvania garden clubs and horticultural organizations whose names are on our files have been invited to send delegates to the meetings.

History: Mr. Boyd spent more than a year upon the compilation of the History, which had long been planned. It was tragic that his death occurred before the book was actually published, but all of the final proofs had passed through his hands and he had the satisfaction of knowing that his part of the work had been completed. The volume is intended as a book of reference, and contains not only a chronological presentation of the Society's development, but many data of horticultural significance. It is a cloth-bound volume, of over 500 pages, profusely illustrated, and is on sale at the Society's Rooms. The price is $5.

I cannot conclude without mentioning the severe losses the Society has experienced in the deaths of some of its most valuable and active members. Of course, the death which affected the Society most profoundly was that of Mr. Boyd. His loss is felt in every phase of our activities, and his wise counsel will be greatly missed. By referring to the Resolution adopted upon his death by the Executive Council, the particular ways in which his interest in the Society was manifested may be seen and some conception gathered of how vitally he influenced its development. Another valuable member whose death we deplore was that of Dr. John W. Harshberger, who died in April, 1929. He was at the head of the Botany Department of the University of Pennsylvania, and used our Rooms often for meetings of the Pennsylvania Chapter of the Wild Flower Preservation Society, of which he was President. Andrew Wright Crawford, who visited our Rooms frequently in connection with Board meetings of the John Bartram Association, was another member whose constructive work will be missed. Altogether, the Society lost 31 members by death in 1929—one Honorary, six Life and twenty-four Annual Members.

JOHN C. WISTER,
Secretary.

Resolution upon the Death of JAMES BOYD

Adopted by the Executive Council of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society
at a Special Meeting held December 2, 1929.

The Executive Council of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society has learned with profound regret of the death of James Boyd, its beloved President, which occurred on the second day of December, 1929; and

WHEREAS, James Boyd has served as President of the Society, without remuneration, in a spirit of perfect devotion for eleven consecutive years, in which time his knowledge of horticulture, his friendly approaches, together with his vision and wisdom brought the Society from an inactive state, with a membership of but three hundred and fifty, to its present flourishing condition, with a total membership numbering two thousand. He was instrumental in the early years of his presidency in reorganizing the Council into its various committees and establishing a budget system, whereby its income was most wisely expended for the purposes for which the Society was organized more than a hundred years ago. He planned for a new abode for the Society, with space for its expanding library, adequate offices and Council Room, in order to afford accommodations for the growing activities. He brought about the development of the library to the present well-arranged collection of over twenty-three hundred volumes. He secured and maintained the co-operation of garden clubs and other horticultural organizations in the vicinity of Philadelphia. He fostered the present harmonious relations with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and The Horticultural Society of New York. He evolved a method of conducting exhibitions which has been adopted by other organizations, and he was continually looking for improved methods of transacting all of the affairs of the Society. He established a regular course of lectures and instituted the Garden Visiting Days as part of the educational program of the Society. As the crowning accomplishments of his ever-faithful effort, he instigated the celebration of the Society's Centennial Anniversary in 1927, and completed the History of the Society's first hundred years, a painstaking and carefully prepared volume which will serve as a fitting memorial to him; and

WHEREAS, James Boyd throughout his life was deeply interested in the advancement of horticulture, and has served the American Peony Society as President, as Treasurer and in 1928 as Editor of the "Peony Manual"; and at the time of his death was a Director in the American Peony Society, the American Iris Society and the American Rose Society; and

WHEREAS, The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, realizing the great loss it has sustained, desires to place on record its acknowledgment of the loyal service he has unflinchingly rendered to the cause of horticulture; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Executive Council express its heartfelt sympathy to the members of James Boyd's family, and direct that a copy of this Resolution be prepared in proper form and sent to his family and that it be inscribed upon the minutes of the Society.

THE PENNSYLVANIA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

By C. F. C. STOUT,

Vice-President.

OBJECT AND PRIVILEGES OF THE SOCIETY

The Society's object is to promote and encourage Horticulture and to create a love for, and interest in Plants and Flowers. It desires to increase its membership in order that its work and influence may be extended.

PRIVILEGES OF MEMBERSHIP INCLUDE

1. Subscription to "Horticulture," a magazine published semi-monthly in Boston for the Horticultural Societies of Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania.
2. Service of Garden Consultant—the only charge is for actual traveling expenses when members' gardens are visited. The Consultant may be seen at the rooms of the Society by appointment.
3. Illustrated lectures by prominent horticulturists during the winter season.
4. Admission to the Society's Exhibitions of Plants, Flowers, Fruits and Vegetables, and to the Philadelphia Flower Show.
5. Use of the Library, including circulating privileges. The Library contains 2750 volumes, in addition to current horticultural magazines. The best of the new publications are systematically added to the Library.
6. Admission to gardens listed in the School of Horticulture's "Garden Days." In 1930, 38 gardens were so listed.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT FOR 1930

It is a great pleasure for me to be able to report to you that the year has proven one of increasing interest and increasing activity in which your Society has continued to grow and prosper in its work. We are so organized that the various phases of our activities are represented in the Council by Chairmen of Committees who concentrate in their allotted field of administration.

These Chairmen bring to the Council table for discussion wide and varied subjects pertaining to horticulture. As we work under a budget system, the amount allotted each department by the Finance Committee places a limit upon the extent of the work in our various departments. The Society has an income from endowments of $21,000.00. To increase this income we must look for further endowments and an increase in membership, and it is to these I wish to direct your special attention. If our Society continues to advance the cause of horticulture in a virile and worthy way, I feel there will come to it further endowment from those, like Mr. Schaffer, devoted to its interests. To this end it is for us to continue our efforts vigorously in making the service of the Society substantial and lasting.

The increase in our membership this past year is outstanding. We have added 862, making our total membership 2730, as against 400 a decade ago. Whenever I have had the opportunity I have stated the Society should have at least 5000 members. This could be very easily accomplished if all of our members would take it upon themselves to secure one or more. It is this appeal I make most urgently in this Annual Report, as it is the one avenue at hand to increase our yearly income which, in turn, will enable our Society to progress and become even more potent in the work which the founders ascribed to it to fulfill.

I would be remiss if I did not refer to the great loss the Society sustained in the death of my predecessor, James Boyd, which took place December 2, 1929. His last great contribution to the Society was the compilation and editing of our history from the date of its foundation in 1827. He lived to see this work completed, and finished his last annual message to you when death claimed him. With his demise the Society lost a great executive and leader, and his administration will go down as one of the most aggressive, constructive and unselfish of any in its history. In him horticulture lost a staunch friend and advocate.

Mr. Boyd, assisted by some of our prominent women, had inaugurated the preliminary work that led up to the formation of the Garden Club Federation of Pennsylvania. It became my immediate duty to see these plans carried through, and, in accordance therewith, a meeting was held in the Society's room on March 26, 1930, at which time the Federation became an accomplished fact, and Mrs. Thomas Newhall, of the Executive Council of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, assumed the Presidency. Its form of organization and by-laws were passed at this meeting, and it was launched under most favorable auspices, and is receiving the enthusiastic support of its constituent organizations.

In closing, I extend my appreciation and thanks to the Chairmen and members of the various Committees and our executive force for the loyal and splendid support which they have given to me in the efforts which we have put forth.

C. FREDERICK C. STOUT,
President.

SECRETARY'S REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1930

While my report will be brief, I wish to make it comprehensive enough to enable our members to get a bird's-eye view of the year's work. This is the oldest Horticultural Society in America. It is pleasant to report that its 103d year has been most successful, and that never before have we gained so rapidly in members.

The use of our offices also has increased during the year. Over 500 of our members have used the Library from time to time, and over 700 others have come to our offices on other business, often with questions relating to their gardens. The Council Room has been used for ninety-one meetings by our own committees, and by various allied organizations, such as the John Bartram Association, the Council for the Preservation of Natural Beauty in Pennsylvania, various Conservation and Wild Flower Committees, the School of Horticulture, and many Garden Club activities.

Horticulture continues as the official organ of the Society, and our members are referred to the inside of the back cover for notices of our various meetings and activities. This magazine is edited by the Secretary of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for the members of that Society, and of the New York and Pennsylvania Societies. We believe it is one of the best, if not the best, gardening paper which is published in this country, and it has been very encouraging to find how much our members value the privileges of receiving this paper twice a month.

Each winter a series of lectures is presented by the Society. This year we have had Prof. A. P. Saunders on Peonies, Mrs. Charles H. Stout on Rock Gardens, Mr. W. E. Marshall on Lilies, and Mr. Carl Purdy on California Wild Flowers. Aside from any direct information which we may receive from lectures, the presence of eminent horticulturalists at our meetings is an inspiration to us all. I feel that all our members should be proud that our Society by co-operating with the New York and Massachusetts Societies made Mr. Purdy's eastern trip possible. The persons whom we have had to lecture in the past constitute almost an horticultural hall of fame. Members who have been regular in attendance at the lectures have met some of the greatest gardeners of our time.

In this connection I may mention that four times—in 1916, 1920, 1924 and 1927—our members have had the privilege of hearing Mr. E. H. Wilson, and through these lectures here many of us felt that we knew him well. He has often helped our members by identifying plants and answering various horticultural questions. Mr. Boyd and I both called upon him often for advice and suggestions as to the work of the Society.

Mr. Wilson's death in an automobile accident last October was a tragedy from which American gardening will be slow to recover. He meant much to us here in Pennsylvania. The plants he brought from China are well suited to our climate. His work at the Arnold Arboretum taught us how to grow hundreds of plants which formerly were unknown to us. His books, bulletins and magazine articles have been of great value, and may now be considered a legacy to gardeners of the future.

Our Library is being kept up to date by the addition of new books as they appear, and we hope that more and more members will make use of it.

Our Society co-operated with the Philadelphia Flower Show last March, and took entire charge of the women's classes. We had a beautiful garden exhibit and a booth which served as a meeting place for our members. We had a small Rose Show in June in this building, and a Dahlia Show in connection with the Bryn Mawr Horse Show in September, and a small Hardy Chrysanthemum Exhibition in November.

This Society is unique in offering to its members the services of a gardening consultant in order to encourage small gardens and raise their standard. The services of Mr. David Rust are available without charge, except actual traveling expenses from Philadelphia.

The Executive Council discussed at great length the question of a suitable memorial to Mr. Boyd. Some of us hoped that this might take the form of the long-hoped-for garden, which would be run by this Society, using Mr. Boyd's own plants as a nucleus for a future collection. A sub-committee of the Council investigated the possibilities of such a garden in Fairmount Park or some other public place, but many difficulties arose and the Council felt that it would not be possible to create a garden at this time that would be worthy of being known as a memorial to our late President. Therefore, it was voted to place a tablet to Mr. Boyd on the walls of the Council Room, where our members can now see it, to establish a medal for Mr. Boyd's favorite flower, the Peony, and to offer this each year at the annual exhibition of the American Peony Society. This medal was awarded for the first time in July, 1930, at the Duluth Show of the American Peony Society, and was won by some fine seedling Peonies which all felt Mr. Boyd would have himself chosen.

The various activities of this Society are governed and controlled by the Executive Council of twenty-one members. This Council was re-organized by Mr. Boyd when he became President in 1919, and is now divided into various committees which have charge of exhibitions, lectures, library, garden awards, etc. At the beginning of each year a budget is prepared showing the money available for each committee to use, and their programs are made to fit these appropriations. I mention these in detail, as many of our members have the mistaken idea that this is a very wealthy Society that can do anything it wishes. It may, therefore, be of interest to know that for three dollars which each member pays into the treasury of this Society, there is added a sum of $8.50 for each member from our endowment fund. We owe this endowment to the generosity and interest of the late William L. Schaffer, President of this Society from 1867 to 1884. Mr. Boyd, during his eleven years as President, constantly stressed the need of further endowments for a Society of this character, and often commented on the fact that while we had but one endowment given to us, the Massachusetts Horticultural Society has had large gifts from about a dozen different persons. Their total income is more than twice the size of ours, and still is inadequate for their activities. We are unable to undertake any more activities under our present endowment. It enables us to keep our offices in a central and convenient part of the city, to build up our library, to give our lectures and exhibitions, and to pay salaries of our office staff. No officer of the Society receives any salary, and all of our officers and members of our Council are busy people who give without stint of their time to make this Society a success. This was notably true of Mr. Boyd, who practically devoted the last eleven years of his life to this Society and its work. One of the things that he constantly emphasized was the need of more members. Though we are proud of our growth, we look with envy at the Royal Horticultural Society of England which has 27,000. Some of our members have attended the wonderful English flower shows, and it may interest them to know that the Royal Horticultural Society has a yearly income of more than $215,000.00 from membership fees alone. In addition to this it has large endowments and many special funds for prizes, cups and medals. Royal Horticultural Hall with its library and offices has cost more than $1,000,000.00, and again serves to emphasize the more serious interest in horticulture which prevails abroad.

The Horticultural Society of New York and the National Association of Gardeners have for some time recognized the need of an American school to train gardeners. A special committee has been appointed to make recommendations as to how, where and when such a school can be started. I have been made a member of this committee as a representative of this Society, and thus will be enabled to keep our members informed about the plans that are being made.

The Society has been asked to co-operate in the International Peace Garden, which is to be established along the Canadian border by the National Association of Gardeners and other co-operating organizations. Plans for this garden are in a formative stage, and as yet we have taken no official part in the movement. It will be brought up for action before our Council at the proper time in the future.

The Society is always interested in public gardens, and our members will watch with great interest the final fate of the Painter Arboretum in Media. The owner of this wonderful place, John J. Tyler, of Germantown, nephew of the two Painter brothers who founded the Arboretum, died recently and legal complications concerning his will have arisen. It is hoped, however, that his widow will carry out his wishes to preserve the remarkable trees, and to allow the public to see and enjoy them.

In this connection I might also mention that the plans for the new Arboretum at Swarthmore are progressing, and that in time this should become a valuable horticultural asset to all who live near Philadelphia.

In closing, I wish to re-emphasize that your Society exists for the advancement of Horticulture. Your officers are doing their best to guide the Society wisely. They want your help, your guidance, your interest and your suggestions. Help them to make 1931 and the years to come banner years for gardening.

JOHN C. WISTER,
Secretary.

REPORT OF THE EXHIBITION COMMITTEE

During 1930 the Society participated in the Philadelphia Flower Show and held three exhibitions of its own. Arranged chronologically, these were:

March 24th-29th—The Philadelphia Flower Show. This was held in the Commercial Museum as usual, and the Society again took complete charge of the classes designed for members of garden clubs and similar organizations. The Society staged a garden as its own exhibit, and in connection with this was a booth, which served as a meeting-place for members and as an enrollment base for new members. More than fifty new members were secured during the week. Over $2,000 was expended by the Society for its part in the Show. A luncheon was arranged by the officers of the Society in honor of State and Federal officials and for persons prominent in the horticultural world, which took place on Tuesday, March 25th. Through the courtesy of the management of the Philadelphia Flower Show, each member of the Society received two complimentary admission tickets. The price of admission to the general public was 75 cents.

June 10th-11th—Spring Flower Show. This Show was held on the sixth floor of the Insurance Company of North America Building. It was very small, and, due to the unfavorable weather conditions preceding the Show, was not as satisfactory as could be desired. The Robert C. Wright Rose Medal was awarded for the best individual rose shown by an amateur. No admission was charged. The attendance was small—only about 150 persons for the two days.

September 26th-27th—Annual Dahlia Show. This exhibition was held in conjunction with the Bryn Mawr Horse Show, in Bryn Mawr, under ideal weather conditions. Beautiful specimens of Hybrid Cactus and decorative varieties of Dahlias were shown, and a new type that attracted a great deal of attention was the miniature decorative, a few specimens of which were shown by Mr. George L. Farnum, of Media. Our members were admitted upon presentation of their membership cards in lieu of our receiving any part of the gate receipts.

November 5th-6th—Hardy Chrysanthemum Exhibition. Held on the sixth floor of the Insurance Company of North America Building. There were seven classes, including seedlings, large and small Pompon varieties, single varieties, Anemone varieties and artistic arrangements. There was no admission charge, and the attendance was about 400 for the two days.

Respectfully submitted,

W. ATLEE BURPEE, JR.,
Chairman.

EXHIBITION AWARDS BY THE PENNSYLVANIA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY in 1930

Garden Club Plaquettes and Flower Vases:

Fifteen Garden Club Plaquettes and seven Flower Vases to local horticultural societies and garden clubs, for award by them at their exhibitions during 1930.

Cash Prizes:

Philadelphia Flower Show	$138.50
June Show	115.00
Dahlia Show	713.00
Hardy Chrysanthemum Show	56.00

$1,022.50

In addition to the above awards, the Gold Medal of The Massachusetts Horticultural Society was given to us in exchange for our Gold Medal, and was awarded to the Huntington Valley Garden Club as a Sweepstake Prize at the Philadelphia Flower Show, March 24-29, 1930. The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society's Gold Medal was awarded by The Massachusetts Horticultural Society at their Spring Show held in Boston, March 25-30, to Mrs. Lester Leland, Essex, Mass., for the collection of Cyclamen showing the best culture.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON GARDEN AWARDS

The committee, after visiting many gardens in the suburbs of Philadelphia during the spring and summer of 1930, and giving careful consideration to the matter, recommended that the following awards be made to gardens of members:

Gold Medal of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society:

A Gold Medal to Mr. and Mrs. J. Franklin McFadden, "Radnor Valley Farm," Rosemont, for their estate of surpassing beauty and charm. Three distinct seasons of bloom—the flowering fruits, the pink and white dogwoods, and the delphinium with climbing roses—testify to the skill and taste of the owners.

Silver Medals of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society:

A Silver Medal to Mr. and Mrs. John Barnes Townsend for their charming place, "Montrose," at Radnor, in which the landscaping and the use of vistas and views are deserving of admiration.

A Silver Medal to Mr. and Mrs. George W. Elkins, "Cheltenham House," Elkins Park, for their well-rounded estate, including the most exquisite of gardens, whose coloring and design merit unqualified praise.

A Silver Medal to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Sears, Ardmore, for a garden of outstanding beauty, both as to design, plant material and coloring, and introducing that most elusive of qualities—"atmosphere."

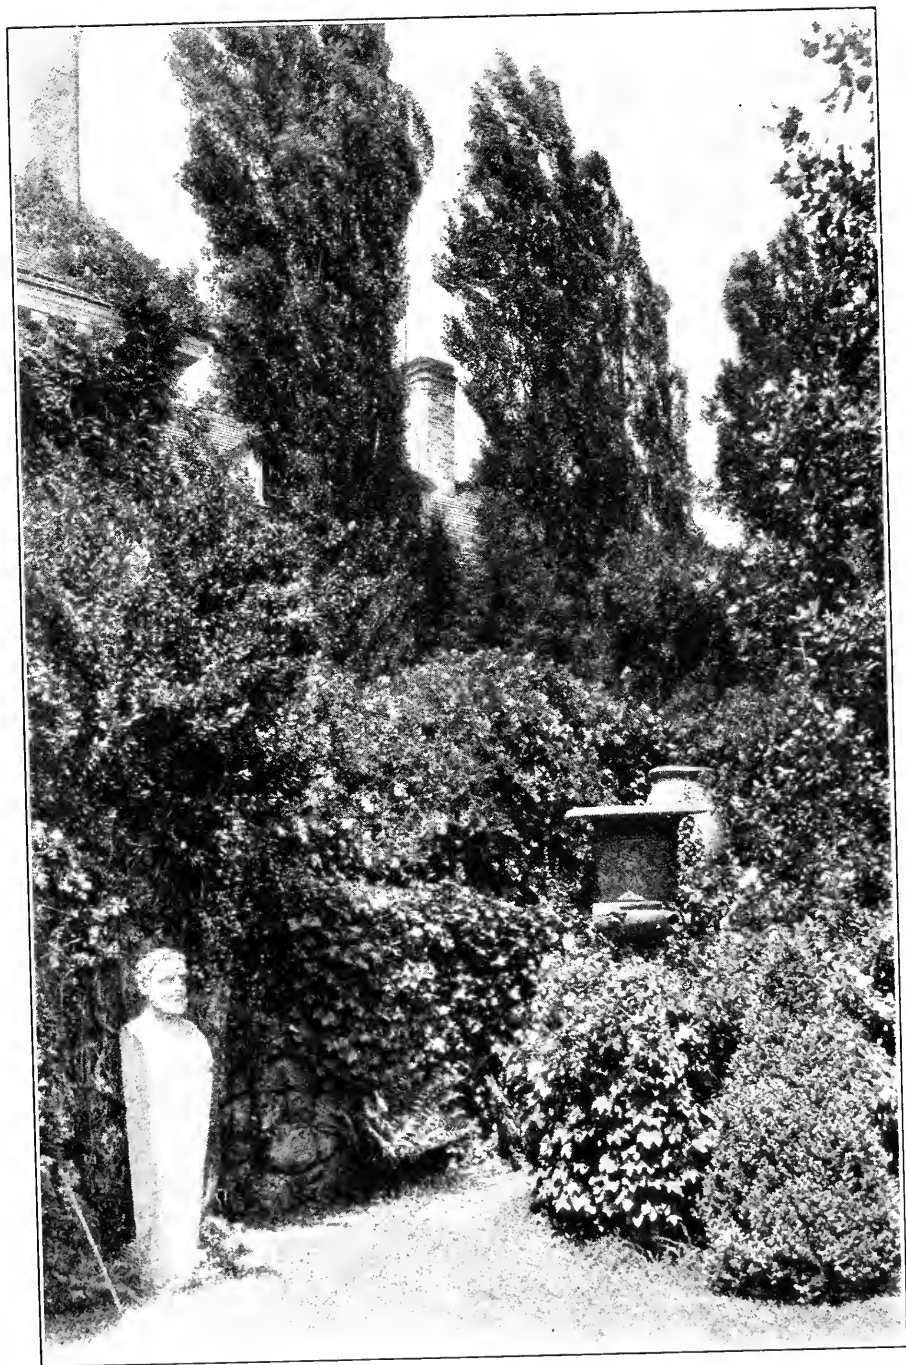

Bronze Medals of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society:

A Bronze Medal to Mrs. Henry S. Jeanes, Devon, for her farmhouse garden, whose outstanding qualities are appropriateness, skill in execution, and the introduction of the personality of the owner.

A Bronze Medal to Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. McCracken, Germantown, for an intimate garden of great charm, nestled with exquisite taste in the angle of the dwelling house.

Respectfully submitted,

WILLIAM J. SERRILL,
Chairman.

REPORT OF THE LECTURE COMMITTEE

Four lectures were given in 1930, all of them on Tuesday afternoons in the Auditorium on the sixteenth floor of the Insurance Company of North America Building. Members were invited to bring their friends and no admission was charged. The attendance varied from 150 to 400, the lecture on Rock Gardens attracting the largest audience of the year.

The following lectures were presented:

January 21, 1930—"Peonies" (illustrated), by Professor A. P. Saunders, of Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y.

February 4, 1930—"Rock Gardens" (illustrated), by Mrs. Charles H. Stout, of Short Hills, N. J.

February 18, 1930—"Lilies" (illustrated), by Mr. W. E. Marshall, of New York City.

November 19, 1930—"California Wild Flowers and Their Introduction Into Gardens" (illustrated), by Mr. Carl Purdy, of Ukiah, Calif.

The text of Professor Saunders' talk on Peonies and that of Mrs. Stout on Rock Gardens are on file in the offices of the Society and may be consulted at any time. Mr. Marshall's book on Lilies may be found in the Society's library.

The Secretary, in his annual report, called attention to the fact that the Society co-operates in many ways with kindred organizations, and one of the most active points of contact is in the matter of lectures. The committee is very glad to be of assistance to the Lecture Committees of other organizations and hopes to build up a really worth-while Bureau of Information.

There is an increasing demand from garden clubs and similar organizations for information about lecturers on horticultural subjects, and to meet this the Lecture Committee has had a list of lecturers prepared, which is given out upon request. The list, however, is by no means complete, and the committee will be grateful for any additions or corrections. The committee cannot undertake to quote fees in this connection except in a very general way, nor can it discriminate among the different lecturers, and all financial and other arrangements should be made with the lecturers direct.

An inquiry that comes to us very often is for lecturers who do not charge for their talks. We have not been able to meet this demand very adequately in the past, as the only person at the Society's disposal for such a purpose is Mr. Rust, our Garden Consultant, who often has previous engagements, and sometimes the subject and type of talk desired are unrelated to his experience. One of our members, upon hearing of this demand, said she would be glad to give talks upon gardening books to small nearby clubs. There are doubtless other members who are well qualified and perhaps willing to speak on special subjects, and the committee will appreciate greatly any offers from members to address groups—the only remuneration being for their traveling expenses, which would of course have to be paid by the organization inviting them to speak.

The Secretary also reminded members in his report that Endowment Funds, either for the general work of the Society or for particular purposes, are most welcome, and, before closing, the Lecture Committee wishes to add that if anyone is interested in creating or increasing interest in a particular branch of horticulture and cares to endow a fund, the interest of which to be used to provide lectures on such a subject, their gifts will be most gratefully received, and the committee will be delighted to use them for the specified purpose.

Respectfully submitted,

ANNA ELLIOTT,
(Mrs. William T. Elliott),
Chairman.

REPORT OF THE LIBRARY COMMITTEE

The Library Committee is pleased to report that during the past year the Library has been used more than ever before. There were 563 visitors, and 850 books were circulated. The use of the Library is not confined to members. Any interested person is cordially invited to use it for reference, and the reading room is at his disposal. The circulating privilege, however, is reserved for members. Our Librarian, Miss Samuel, is glad to be of assistance in any way that is desired.

The list of books, both old and new, is constantly growing. There are now 2,775 books on the shelves, 253 of which were added in 1930. These include 34 gifts from generous members of the Society, and the others were purchased from the committee's appropriation. The committee wishes to remind the members they are always delighted to receive donations of old or new volumes of horticultural interest.

The Library subscribes to 34 of the leading horticultural periodicals, and has on file the recent catalogs of practically every important seedsman and nurseryman. There are also many foreign catalogs.

The Library is open from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M., and on Saturdays from 9 A. M. to 12 noon. An experiment is being tried of keeping the Library open in the evening one day a week to see whether the members avail themselves of this privilege. During January, February and March, 1931, the Library will be open from 9 A. M. to 9.30 P. M. on Tuesdays.

The committee expects to issue a complete catalog of the Library early in 1931. This may be had upon application, by those desiring it, for ten cents.

Respectfully submitted,

MARY HELEN WINGATE LLOYD,
(Mrs. Horatio Gates Lloyd),
Chairman.

The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society wishes to thank the following donors for their gifts to the Library in 1930:

THE OFFICE

A detailed account of the work performed in the Society's office would make tiresome reading, for of course much of the actual labor in any office is of a routine nature. However, our members may like to know something about the kind of work that is carried on in the office and the number of persons required for its accomplishment; and for their information the following report has been compiled.

In the first place, for the benefit of the newer members, we wish to call attention to the fact that the officers of the Society give freely of their services and time without any financial remuneration. There are four salaried employees, who work under their direction, but only two of these are occupied exclusively with matters pertaining to the office. The other two are the Gardening Consultant and Exhibition Manager, whose work is mostly outside of the office, and the Librarian, who helps also with exhibitions.

As the Society at the end of 1930 numbered 2,730 members, one can readily understand that there is a large amount of work involved simply in keeping accurate membership records. During 1930, 873 new members were enrolled, and each enrollment requires six distinct processes—name and address added to membership roll, membership card mailed to new member, check or cash deposited and recorded, two cards made for the card index, and plate made for the addressograph. One hundred and fifty-one members were lost during the year, requiring additional adjustment to the records. Also, many persons changed their addresses through the year, and some members had winter and summer addresses, which of course made the membership recording more complicated.

The wrappers for all the copies of Horticulture, which go to our members, are addressed twice a month in the office on the Society's addressograph, and the wrappers are mailed to the Boston office of the magazine. Horticulture then is placed in the wrapper in Boston and mailed. In this connection, changes in address should be sent to this office, as the Boston office does not have a record of our members, and sends communications of this nature that are sent there to this office for attention. Vouchers are made for all bills and sent to the Chairman of the proper committee for approval, and later checks are prepared for signature of the Treasurer.

The Secretary is in close touch with the affairs of the office and is in direct charge of them. Letters that do not require his special attention are attended to by the office force, who also answer routine inquiries from visitors. Such inquiries relate mostly to lectures, the Garden Club Federation, domestic and foreign gardens and nurseries, the Society's activities, the arrangement for committee meetings and the use of the Council Room by outside organizations. The minutes of the Executive Council and of many committees are recorded and distributed. News items are prepared for publication.

The various communications which go to members throughout the year, such as bills for annual dues, lecture programs and postcard reminders, flower show schedules, programs for garden visiting days and special notices are part of the office work.

In addition to the regular work of the office, each year special pieces of work develop with the needs of that particular year. In 1930 one of the extra activities that demanded additional effort was the formation of the Garden Club Federation of Pennsylvania, in which the Society took a prominent part. Another special activity was a membership campaign, which was conducted by mail from the office with most satisfactory results.

For these two extra activities, during the peak of the office work it was occasionally necessary to employ additional help, but whenever possible the work was planned ahead so as to avoid this.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—We hope that our members will be interested in the above report and make use of the office and find there the courtesy which has always been extended.

GARDEN CONSULTANT

Since January, 1929, Mr. David Rust has acted as Consultant to members of the Society in horticultural, agricultural and arboricultural matters on which they need advice. No garden is too small for Mr. Rust to visit, for it is primarily the small garden that we wish to encourage. Persons with large estates and skilled gardeners do not need a service of this character as do beginners with small places. We hope our members will tell their friends that by joining this Society they can have this valuable service. Mr. Rust also may be consulted at the office on specified Monday afternoons, and other times by appointment.

Mr. Rust made over ninety garden visits in 1930. As it may be of interest to our members to know on what subjects he was consulted, we are listing them in two groups in the order of the frequency in which his advice was asked:

Group One

Treatment of Lawns
 Planting of Perennials
 Treatment of Outdoor Roses, including pruning
 Treatment of Orchards, including pruning of fruit trees and lists of varieties
 Planting of Evergreens
 Planting on old places
 Spraying
 Treatment of Box

Group Two

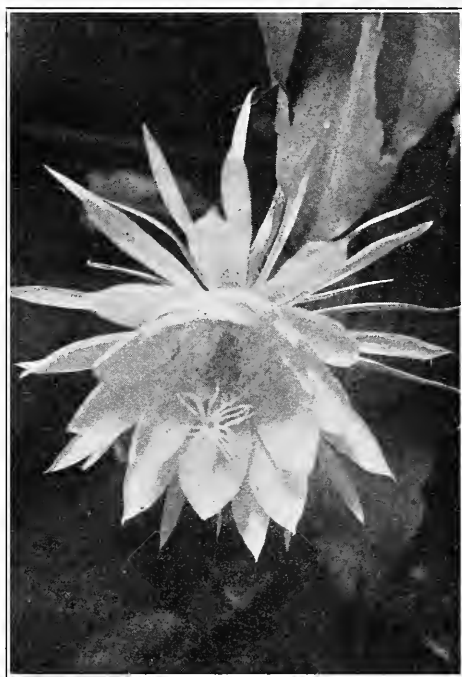

Treatment of Rhododendrons
 Plants for shady places
 Moving of Trees
 Pruning of Trees
 Location and planting of rock gardens, wall gardens, bulb gardens, vegetable gardens, asparagus beds, pools, etc.

Almost all visits included advice on insect pests, especially the Japanese Beetle.

ITEMS OF INTEREST ABOUT MEMBERS

The following notes present a list by no means complete of the accomplishments along horticultural lines by some of our members in 1930. We hope members will keep the office informed of anything unusual they are doing in order that we may have a larger showing next year:

Mr. George L. Farnum acted as the Society's representative at the Ninth International Horticultural Congress, held in London, August 7 to 15, 1930. On the same trip he visited many of the most prominent European Dahlia gardens. Mr. Farnum is a Vice-President of the American Dahlia Society.

SELINICEREUS GRANDIFLORUS (NIGHT-BLOOMING CEREUS)

Mrs. W. W. Frazier has reviewed several garden books in the Bulletin of the Garden Club of America.

Mr. Fairman Rogers Furness is a grandson of Fairman Rogers, President of the Society in 1864. His small but well-arranged, beautifully kept nursery impresses one as a lovely garden, rather than as a commercial nursery—a most alluring quality when the sale of plants is the object as well. Some of the rare plants are from the South, and Mr. Furness is trying to grow them successfully in our Pennsylvania climate.

Mr. Jay V. Hare was a delegate to the International Railway Congress in Madrid last May, and visited many European gardens during the summer of 1930. He took photographs from which he has had lantern slides made, and has given a number of lectures with these. He is Secretary of the Trevoze Horticultural Society.

Mrs. Bayard Henry has continued to serve as President of the John Bartram Association, and has prepared plans for the two hundredth anniversary celebration of the building of the Bartram house.

Mrs. J. Norman Henry has been doing fine work in collecting new varieties of plants, and has made several trips for the purpose of adding to the rare and beautiful collection which she has in her greenhouse and garden. She does most of the gardening herself. Mrs. Henry also has been a contributor to Horticulture.

Mrs. Horatio Gates Lloyd, one of our Vice-Presidents, has written thirteen interesting short articles for the Bulletin of the Garden Club of America, under the head of plant material and the culture of hardy and semi-hardy plants for outdoor and indoor gardening.

Dr. J. Horace McFarland is President of the American Rose Society, as well as its Editor. He has been prominent in civic work for many years. During 1930 he published "Modern Roses," a list of all roses in American commerce, with descriptions.

Mr. Frank B. Meyer has introduced many aquatic plants to the little pools and lakes in his garden, and in his rockeries a congenial setting has been found for unusual subjects, like Tulip species and the California bulbous flowering plants recently described in the lecture by Mr. Carl Purdy. Mr. Meyer's specialties are Peonies, Iris and Oriental Poppies.

Dr. Francis J. Pennell attended the Fifth International Botanical Congress in Cambridge, England, August 16-23, 1930. He spent the summer studying types of American Scrophulariaceæ (snapdragon family) in England and France.

Mrs. Alfred C. Prime grew the Selenicereus grandiflorus (Night-blooming Cereus) which is shown in the illustration. She has the plant growing in her small greenhouse with other unusual things.

Mr. Robert C. Pyle made a rose pilgrimage to Europe last summer to visit rose gardens and to collect new varieties. He visited a number of Rose Shows in France and Spain. He is Secretary of the American Rose Society and Chairman of the American Association of Nurserymen's Committee on Botanical Gardens and Arboretums.

Mr. W. H. Ritter has been very successful in propagating Hardy Chrysanthemums. He specializes in outdoor varieties and has introduced many beautiful seedlings.

Mr. Edwin M. Rosenbluth has achieved remarkable success in protecting his collection of roses from infestation by the Japanese Beetle in an area where the Beetle was particularly prevalent.

Mr. Romaine B. Ware has written sixty articles on garden subjects in the following magazines, and has also supplied a newspaper with a daily article: Ladies' Home Journal, American Home, McCall's, Nature Magazine, Country Gentleman, Christian Herald, Country Life and Your Home.

Mr. John C. Wister, Secretary of the Society, has had two books published during the year: "Lilac Culture" and "Bulbs for American Gardens." Last winter he made a lecture trip to the Pacific coast, speaking in fourteen States. In June he was awarded the Arthur Hoyt Scott Horticultural Medal, and in December the American Iris Society Gold Medal in recognition of ten years' service as the Society's President.

Mrs. Clarence C. Zantzinger has worked very hard and with fine results in the interest of billboard restriction and conservation of natural beauty. She has got in touch by letter, telegram and radio with newspapers, magazines and organizations. Mrs. John Hampton Barnes has also taken a very active part in furthering billboard legislation, and has talked over the radio in the interest of conservation of natural beauty, as have the following: Miss Emily Barclay, Mrs. Arthur Biddle, Mrs. Francis Von A. Cabeen, Mrs. Nathan Hayward, Mrs. Isaac LaBoiteaux and Mrs. Algernon B. Roberts.

Miss Mary Evans edited the current Year Book. She is the great-granddaughter of the first President of the Society, Horace Binney.

GARDEN DAYS

In 1930 an arrangement was again made with the School of Horticulture for Women in Ambler, Pennsylvania, whereby the members of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society were allowed the privilege of visiting the gardens listed on the School's program of Garden Days.

Eight afternoons in May and June were devoted to the Garden visits, and the list included thirty-eight unusually lovely gardens. All of the visits were made on Saturday afternoons, with the exception of Princeton, New Jersey, where the gardens were opened on a Tuesday afternoon. One afternoon was taken up with visits to gardens in the vicinity of Wilmington, Delaware, and the plan of including Princeton and Wilmington gardens proved a delightful new feature of the 1930 program.

The Society was largely represented on these afternoons, and many hundreds enjoyed the opportunity of seeing various types of gardens. It is planned to offer a similar privilege to members in 1931.

DONATIONS

In addition to the books which have been given to the Library and which have been mentioned in connection with the report of the Library Committee, we wish to thank the persons who have given us flowers to beautify our rooms. The principal donors were Mr. John C. Wister, who brought in Daffodils; Mr. Edwin M. Rosenbluth, who presented us with some fine seedling Iris; Mr. George L. Farnum, who donated especially lovely Dahlias; and Mr. W. H. Ritter, who kept us supplied with Hardy Chrysanthemums during the fall season.

We also wish particularly to thank Mr. Henry H. Collins, who donated the attractive cover of the current Year Book.

We are sorry that another year has gone by without any additions to our Endowment Fund. It is indeed strange that in the hundred years of its existence, only one person, Mr. William L. Schaffer, a former President, has given money to endow the Society. While his gift was a magnificent one and makes our present work possible, we should like to enlarge our finances greatly and undertake many pieces of work that at present cannot be considered on account of lack of funds.

JANUARY

Early Work

Potted tulips can be forced readily from now on. It is well to remember that all bulbs force more rapidly as the winter progresses.

Lilies-of-the-Valley can be brought into flower in three weeks from the time the pips are planted at this season, provided they are given a temperature of from 75 to 80 degrees the first week.

The seeds of begonias for bedding purposes or for growing in the house may be planted now if a greenhouse is available.

This is a good time to pot up gloxinias, which like a light, rich soil into which some sand has been incorporated.

Calla lilies should be given a top dressing of bone meal once in ten days, as they are heavy feeders.

Pussy willows can be brought into the house and forced from now on.

The new catalogues are beginning to arrive and it is none too early to begin making up tentative lists of seeds, bulbs and plants.

Fruit trees and grape vines may be trimmed this month.

Greenhouse hydrangeas and rambler roses for Easter should be started into active growth.

Martha Washington geraniums should be potted firmly and kept at 50 degrees in full sunlight for Easter flowers.

Seeds which have been left over should be tested before they are planted. A satisfactory way to test them is to sow a few seeds in small flats, labelling each kind carefully as to the number of seeds sown.

Rhubarb can be forced quickly in the cellar from now on, but the roots should be frozen before the forcing process is begun.

Late Work

Abutilons, or flowering maples, should not be given much water during the winter months, unless an early bloom is desired; but they should not be allowed to get so dry that they wilt.

An occasional sprinkling overhead, or dipping in a tub of water, will serve to remove dust from the foliage of ferns grown in the house, and also to promote their more healthy growth. Palms should be sponged.

Spraying with lime-sulphur, or with miscible oils, during warm winter weather is the most effective method of eradicating scale pests from fruit trees, shade trees and ornamentals.

Stocks and clarkias may now be sown in the greenhouse flowering indoors in late spring.

Small hardy shrubs like Deutzia gracilis, as well as the astilbes and spiraeas, that have been stored away in a cool place for forcing, may now be brought into a cool greenhouse and slowly started into growth.

Trees may be transplanted in winter, if the ground is not frozen too hard; large ones should be moved and planted by digging around them gradually, and allowing the root balls to freeze solid.

Preparations for starting seeds indoors may be begun by the end of this month.

Single tulips may be brought into heat now, but the double tulips cannot be forced as readily until February.

The following house plants will grow well in a warm room: Palms, ferns, Asparagus plumosus, aspidistra, cycas, pandanus, sansevieria, calla, cacti and figus. They grow best in a temperature of 68 to 75 degrees in the day-time and 64 to 68 degrees at night.

Dahlia tubers should be examined for signs of damping off or dry rot and all diseased parts cut away.

It is not too early to order sash for the hotbed or coldframe. Some of the substitutes for glass are cheaper, lighter to handle and are satisfactory in many respects. The pruning of fruit trees can be done at any time when the weather is not too cold.

FEBRUARY

Early Work

Begin ordering hardy shrubs this month, keeping in mind the following considerations: Height, time of bloom, color, texture of foliage, spread of the whole plant and preference for sun or shade.

Egg masses of the tent caterpillar should be gathered and burned during February and March, for they will hatch as soon as there is something green to feed upon.

Many trees and shrubs should be pruned before the buds begin to swell, but not lilacs, forsythias, weigelas, deutzias, Japanese quince, tree peonies, most spiraeas or the viburnums—until they have finished blooming, for their flower buds were formed on last autumn's growth.

Oxalis and begonia bulbs should be potted in February or March. Place a dash of sand under each bulb, plunge the pots in a box of wet ashes or sand up to the rims, and put away in a cool part of the cellar. When signs of growth are apparent, bring the plants into the light, but do not supply them with too much water until they become well-rooted.

Keep Daphne cneorum well-protected in February, so that the tips of its evergreen branches, which bear the clusters of pink buds, will not be burned by the sun.

The seeds of hardy annuals, biennials and perennials should be sown in hotbeds by the middle of February; seeds of asters for early bloom in the flower garden should be planted by the fifteenth of this month, in the green house, or in boxes four inches deep.

Hedera helix baltica is a hardy variety of the ordinary English ivy, and will lose only a branch or two in the most severe New England winter; but, if it is planted where it gets direct sunlight during February and March, some sort of protection will be needed—evergreen branches being best.

Take stock of garden tools; replace all broken or worn-out parts, and have the edges sharpened, so that when the gardening season opens they will be ready for immediate use. If they are getting rusty, scrub them with a stiff, wire brush and a little benzine; then paint them over with a mixture of white lead and lard; this will scrape off easily in the spring.

On very cold nights place newspapers between house plants and the window panes.

Late Work

Twigs of the following native trees and shrubs may be brought indoors for winter decoration, they will develop very rapidly in tepid water in a warm room: alder, filbert, willow, maple, elm, hickory, sweet gum, cassandra, shadbush, cherry and crab apple.

Grape vines should be pruned before they start into growth, because they bleed very freely.

If you wish to buy small plants from commercial growers to set out in the garden this spring, instead of raising them from seed, you should place your orders immediately.

Keep window boxes that are filled with evergreens well-watered during the winter months. Even if ice forms around the plants, no harm will be done to them, and a constant supply of moisture will keep them fresh and luxuriant.

Repot ferns and foliage plants which start to grow in the greenhouse as the days lengthen, and begin to propagate such plants as ferns, stevia, erica, Buddleia asiatica, genista, bouvardia and crotons.

Soil for seed flats should contain plenty of compost to make it light. Mix it in the following proportions: one-third sand, one-third garden soil, and one-third humus. No active fertilizer should be used.

Rhododendrons and boxwood should be protected during February and March by some sort of covering such as evergreen boughs to protect them from the strong sunlight.

Start Easter lilies before the end of this month in 55 degrees.

Warm the hotbed by leaving the sash on during sunny days, and, at the end of the month, by tramping in two feet of manure in active fermentation. Seed of tomatoes may be planted when the soil temperature drops to 90 degrees, and seed of cooler plants such as onions, egg plants and peppers when it cools to 80 or 70.

When the weather is cold, and the ground free from snow, water should be set out for the birds or the bird bath kept filled with cracked ice.

MARCH

Early Work

If dahlia tubers are started into growth during the first week in March, cuttings can be taken from them, after the middle of April. A limited number may be planted in boxes, rather close together in rich soil; they should be given plenty of light and a temperature not lower than 55 degrees.

Seeds of mignonette, stocks and candytuft sown now will produce good plants by Memorial Day.

Pot bulbs and corms or tubers of fancy-leaved caladiums, tuberous begonias, gloxinias and achimenes in a rich, mellow soil, and start them into active growth in a fairly warm temperature.

Work in the garden begins underground and the time is approaching when this work should be started. Well-rooted cow-manure not only provides the soil with the four nutritive elements which plants demand from it, namely, nitrogen, phosphorous, potash and lime, but it makes the soil more porous. This active fertilizer may be spread over the surface of the ground, but it should not be plowed or spaded in until the soil is dry enough to crumble in the hand.

Seeds of eggplants, tomatoes and peppers should be sown early in March; but, unless an early crop is desired, those of celery, cabbage, cauliflower, Brussels sprouts and lettuce may wait a few weeks longer.

By the middle of this month, in sections where warm weather prevails, it is possible to start uncovering the flower borders, but this work should be left until early April in the north. It should be done gradually in all sections, for late March is likely to bring cold weather with high winds.

The pruning of grape vines, fruit trees, ornamentals and late-blooming shrubs should be finished immediately.

It is time to get the hotbed ready for seed planting, but coldframes need not be built until the end of the month.

Late Work

Begin to uncover the garden when the bulbs appear; as soon as all danger from frost is past remove the dead leaves and stalks from around the perennial plants, and spray new growth with Bordeaux mixture to prevent fungus diseases. But do not be too hasty.

Rock plants which have been heaved by the frost should be pressed firmly into the soil and all rotting leaves of fleshy- or woolly-leaved plants cut away.

Spray apple tree at once with lime-sulphur or a miscible oil.

Apply a topdressing of salt and nitrate of soda or manure to the asparagus bed; and sow such hardy vegetables as radishes, lettuce, spinach, smooth peas and parsnips where the soil is dry enough so that it will crumble in the hand.

Start the seeds of slow-growing annuals, such as lobelias, zinnias, pot marigolds, petunias, asters, heliotropes, ageratums and salvias, in boxes of earth or in pots in the house or in hotbeds.

Order rose bushes for planting while they are still in a dormant condition. Prune the old plants when the weather is not too cold, cutting out all dead wood. Dig bone meal and wood ashes around the roots when the ground is dry enough to work.

It is not too early to graft cherries and plums; grafting operations on them should be done earlier than on apples or pears.

Repot palms, dracaenas and rubber plants within the next month if they are too large for their pots or not growing well.

Start tuberous rooted begonias in boxes or pots at once. Have them level with the surface.

Start gloxinias into growth now.

Finish the pruning of trees and shrubs.

APRIL

Early Work

If deciduous nursery stock cannot be planted as soon as it arrives, heel it in carefully and provide it with plenty of water.

Young dogwoods that have died back will almost always send up new shoots if they are cut back to the ground.

Clean the lawn of weeds, fill in the holes with fresh soil and seed over the bare spots.

Old lawns may be repaired by covering them with an inch of good loam mixed with peat moss and a little pulverized sheep manure.

Plant the following hardy vegetables as soon as the ground has been plowed or spaded: Swiss chard, onions, turnips, kohlrabi, carrots, beets, smooth peas, salsify, spinach, parsnips and radishes.

All early sown plants should be hardened off in the coldframe before they are moved to the open ground. They will need more thorough soakings of water as the days get longer.

Seeds of Jerusalem Cherry sown in boxes of earth in the house early this month will grow into fruiting plants by next Christmas or New Year's.

Perennials should be divided and planted as early as they can be handled in workable soil. Each small division of a chrysanthemum clump will make a blooming plant by autumn. Use only the outer portions of Michaelmas daisies.

Box and privet hedges should be trimmed before they start into growth.

New varieties may be grafted on fruit trees that bear unsatisfactory fruit; but dormant scions must be used.

Pachysandra terminalis should be started for quick ground-cover effects when the plants are rather small, and the tops should be pinched out the year following the first planting.

The following trees and shrubs prefer spring to fall planting: birches, magnolias, tulip trees, sweet gums, Japanese maples, large-flowering dogwoods, roses, altheas, flowering almonds, ornamental cherries and peaches.

Warm periods have made many plants start to grow earlier than usual this year; but uncovering the border should proceed gradually, for new shoots may be nipped by late frosts.

Examine roses for scale; cut off diseased twigs and spray.

Space rows of vegetables evenly for convenience in cultivating; group all early maturing kinds together, so that the space can be used for another crop, and plant those that occupy the ground all season in the same section of the garden.

Many tender vegetables, such as lima beans, squash and tomatoes, can be started under glass in dirt bands or paper pots; they will be protected from cut-worms when they are transplanted into the open ground.

Prune and tie up vines on walls, arbors and trellises.

Stake and wire newly planted trees to prevent them from swaying in high winds. Water all newly planted tree and shrub material at frequent intervals.

Plant the Japanese anemone as soon as danger of frost is past.

Do not forget that all root crops in the kitchen garden require potash.

Gladiolus can be planted now for early flowering effects.

All heavy plants such as evergreen trees should be balled and burlaped when they are brought from the nursery. They should be platformed as well, when transplanting, particularly during a dry spell; the balls of earth must be damp enough so that they do not fall apart during transportation or the setting out process.

Do not delay the planting of deciduous stock; the earlier it is put into the ground, the better showing it will make the first year, and a much better choice of material can be had in the early spring months.

Work in a generous supply of fertilizer around perennials, but be careful not to disturb those which have not yet started into growth. Bone meal is good.

Keep careful notes on the bulbs that are now in flower, for convenience in buying new bulbs next fall.

Destroy all nests of tent caterpillars as soon as they appear, by burning them or painting them with creosote.

Sow seeds of Cinerarias and Chinese primroses now under glass for indoor bloom.

If the soil remains in a solid mass when squeezed in the hand, it is too wet to be worked; it should fall apart before garden operations are commenced.

Late Work

Oak and elm trees should be sprayed with an arsenate of lead solution for canker worms and "leaf rollers" as soon as the bud leaves begin to separate.

Do not scrape the bark of trees to destroy injurious insects, for irreparable damage may be done to the cambium layer.

Pear trees infested with the "pear psylla" may be effectively treated with a "whitewash spray" of lime, Bordeaux mixture and nicotine.

The following late blooming or semi-hardy perennials are best transplanted in the spring: Anemone japonica, fall asters, ceratostigma, shasta daisy, helenium (sneezeweed) and monarda (beebalm).

Only the younger, outside divisions of perennial phlox should be reset. Phlox should be divided at least every three years.

Plants which spread rapidly, such as achillea, boltonia and golden glow, should be rooted out early.

Pansies, myosotis, daisies, canterbury-bells, aquilegias and foxgloves, that have been carried over the winter in coldframes, can be moved into beds or borders now to make room in the frames for early plantings of tender perennials.

Sow small herbs, such as thyme, sage, marjoram and dill, in the border.

To keep poppies from being trampled or blown down, place light brush over the beds as soon as they are seeded.

Nemesias and lupines that have been grown in pots are often better than those grown from seed sown in the open, because of the early start they get during the cool months.

With the exception of the magnolia, which may be moved in May, all deciduous trees and shrubs should be transplanted as soon as possible. There is no special hurry about evergreens.

Delphiniums and hollyhocks should be sprayed with Bordeaux mixture, or with lime and tobacco, or with a proprietary mixture, before they show signs of blight; and the application should be repeated fortnightly in areas where this disease is prevalent.

Sow seeds of lettuce, onions, beets, carrots, parsnips, radishes and the vegetable oyster. A few radish seeds mixed with the others will come up quickly and mark the rows.

The small worms which strip currant and gooseberry bushes of their foliage can be destroyed by a thorough spraying with arsenate of lead or pyrethrum powder as soon as they appear. It is well to remember that they begin eating at the bottom of the plants and may escape observation for a long time.

Sweet peas should be sown immediately; they should be planted five inches deep and not too thickly. It has been found helpful to work peat moss into the soil with which they are covered.

Thin out seedlings in the coldframes and give them plenty of air, so that they will be hardened off when it is time to transplant them into the open ground.

Dig out the dandelions and other weeds as soon as they appear in the lawn or else inoculate them with gasoline; fill in the holes with good loam, reseed and roll.

One good rolling of the lawn is sufficient.

Cultivate all crops in the vegetable garden when they begin to come up to keep the weeds from getting a start.

Complete the planting of new roses as early as possible. When the leaves are well grown, start dusting them with Massey dust (nine parts of powdered sulphur, one part arsenate of lead, one part tobacco dust) to control such common pests as the leaf-eating worms, black spot and mildew.

It is time to put the bird houses in place. They should be painted, if at all, with a dark color or stain.

Plants that have been touched by late frosts should be shaded and sprayed frequently with cold water.

MAY

Early Work

Evergreens can be planted later than deciduous trees, but do not neglect to soak them with plenty of water daily for several weeks after they have been moved, because if the roots once get dried out they cannot be revived.

Mark the bare spots in bulb beds for refilling in the fall, and when the bulbs finish blooming, allow those that are to be dug to remain in the ground long enough to ripen.

Daffodils do not need to be disturbed for several years. When bulbs of any kind are naturalized in the lawn, the grass should not be cut until their leaves begin to turn yellow.

Prune early-flowering shrubs, such as the cornelian cherry, Cornus mas, the forsythias and some of the spiraeas, as soon as they have finished blooming, so that the new wood for next season will have a chance to form during the summer.

Most of the hardy annuals can be sown early this month where they are to flower. Dwarf varieties of alyssum and candytuft will make fine edgings if they are planted along the front of the border immediately.

Peonies require an abundance of water while the buds are being formed in May. A spray of one pound of blue stone and one pound of lime to 50 gallons of water, applied when the buds are the size of buckshot, will prevent blight, and early applications of bone meal will supply nourishment. Wood ashes are good but should be kept two or three inches from the crowns.

If aphids begin to attack the roses in great numbers, they can be checked by applications of Black Leaf 40 or heavy soap suds made from hand soap.

Some of the more serviceable plants to grow in window boxes, besides the common geraniums, are petunias, verbenas, ageratums, lobelias, begonias, fuchsias (for partial shade), lantanas, browallias and alyssums.

Special plantings of pot marigolds, zinnias or snapdragons are useful for filling vacant spaces in the borders. The Mexican and Lilliput zinnias are most popular this year.

Sow string beans, lima beans, pole beans, corn, squash, cucumbers, melons, okra and spinach, and plant potatoes in the vegetable garden. Thin out vegetables sown in April.

Continue to sow the short crop vegetables, such as lettuce, carrots, radishes and peas. Feed lettuce and leaf crops with nitrate of soda.

Remember that iris forms the bulwark of bloom in the flower garden in late May and early June.

When the bark of a tree is broken, the exposed wood should be protected with a coating of grafting wax, tar, asphalt or hot paraffin, but the cambium layer around the edges of the wound should be left uncovered.

Late Work

Magnolias, rose of Sharon bushes and coniferous evergreens dug with a solid ball of earth about their roots may still be moved with safety.

Most perennials should be transplanted in late May or June and not as late as mid-summer. Perennial seeds can be ordered now and the frames made ready for them.

Best results in destroying weeds, with one-quarter the time and energy expended in hoeing, are obtained by sprinkling a good weed killer over walks and drives and washing it in with the hose.

Hollyhocks, delphinium and phlox should be sprayed every ten days for rusts and other fungus diseases with Bordeaux mixture or one of the proprietary remedies.

Massey dust should be applied to roses and other perennials to control black spot and mildew. It may be obtained ready for use under various trade names.

Daily sprinklings of the lawn will bring the grass roots to the surface of the soil, which quickly becomes dried out in hot weather. It is better to give the lawn less frequent but heavy soakings.

Newly seeded lawns should be cut high until the grass starts to grow vigorously and thickens up.

Bone meal can be used with good effect around perennials and roses. The latter respond well to applications of liquid manure when they are coming into bloom.

Sheep manure is a good fertilizer for damp places, because it does not hold moisture.

Many of the summer blooming bulbs may still be planted; they include three of the best lilies: Lilium regale, L. auratum and L. speciosum.

This is a good time for the principal planting of gladioli. Different varieties should be selected for a long season of bloom.

Both cannas and dahlias can go in now but it is better to hold back the latter for another week or two, since their greatest show comes in the cool months of autumn.

Harden off annuals that have been started in boxes or frames before setting them in the open ground.

The ordinary house plants will be rejuvenated if they are set out-of-doors after all danger of frost is past.

Cut worms are already at work. A poison bait such as the seed stores sell offers the best means of destroying them.

Ornamental hedges may be trimmed now.

Plant the double blue variety of bachelor's buttons or cornflower, Centaurea cyanus, with the yellow perennial, Coreopsis lanceolata, for continuation of bloom in the iris garden.

JUNE

Early Work

Remove water sprouts before they damage the growth of fruit trees.

Prune shrubs that are through flowering, removing some of the old wood at the base and shorten the canes which are too long.

Order spring-blooming bulbs now for fall delivery and planting.

Sow seeds of the following biennials and perennials: fox-gloves, Canterbury bells, hollyhocks, wallflowers, violas, cynoglossum, aquilegia (long-spurred hybrids), myosotis and others.

Plant tropical waterlilies as annuals to give bright color over a long period, with the more common water-loving plants, such as arrow-head, water hyacinth, water forget-me-not and umbrella plant.

June is the ideal month for planting dahlias, either tubers or green plants. The clumps should be separated, leaving a part of the neck with an eye on each tuber, and the tubers should be placed six inches deep on their sides.

Moonflower plants may be set out now. They are difficult to grow from seed but started plants may be purchased from nurserymen.

Petunias, alyssums and forget-me-nots make good fillers for rose beds, because they do not draw much nourishment from the soil.

If peony buds are cut off before they break, and placed with their stems in deep water in a cool cellar, they will form better flowers and their opening can be considerably delayed. The buds should be soft to the touch when they are cut.

Cuttings may be taken from the following low-growing perennials when they have finished blooming: creeping phloxes, cerastiums, sedums, aubrietias, arenarias and iberis.

The leaf hoppers that disfigure rose foliage may be controlled by spraying the under sides of the leaves with a nicotine preparation containing soap.

Oyster shell scale on lilacs may be eradicated at this season by spraying with miscible oil or a whale oil emulsion. The larvæ move about when they are first hatched and this is the best time to kill them.

Striped beetles may be kept away from cucumber and melon plants by dusting with tobacco dust and by pouring a little tobacco water around each plant to kill the larvæ in the soil.

Tobacco dust worked into the ground when asters are being set out will help to protect the plants from root lice.

The use of a liquid spray or some form of Massey dust to protect roses from mildew and black spot should be continued at least every ten days. Massey dust can now be obtained in small packages under a trade name and combined with material to prevent the staining of the foliage.

New Zealand spinach, the best substitute for common spinach, may be planted now. Since the plants are not pulled when harvested and the leaves can be gathered all summer, a short row will be enough in the ordinary garden.

Make a second planting of Golden Bantam corn, with four or five kernels to a hill, and follow this with later varieties.

Thin out beets, radishes, turnips, kohlrabi and other vegetables before the plants become so crowded as to make them weak and spindling.

Stop cutting asparagus and give it a large amount of commercial fertilizer, for next year's shoots are now being formed. Spray the tops with arsenate of lead to kill the beetles.

Plunge oleanders in shady spots until fall; also put out the acacias, ficus and other indoor plants.

Late Work

Continue to sow the seeds of perennials, to have plants ready to move into the border by early fall.

Cut off the old flower heads on lilacs, and break off those of rhododendrons without removing any of the branches.

Clean up the foliage of tulips and early flowering bulbs as soon as it turns brown. Order bulbs for fall planting.

Transplant bearded irises when they have finished blooming, cutting the leaves back half way, shortening the roots and dividing the clumps into pieces with two or three shoots on each.

Clip the tops of alyssum, forget-me-not and helianthemum plants when the flowers have faded, to insure a second bloom.

If it is necessary to cut back the leaders of evergreen trees, the work should be done at this season when the wood is soft, green and watery. Leave at least an inch to give an opportunity for the setting of a new bud. Do not cut the tops of evergreen hedges until they reach the desired height.

Final plantings of gladioli, tuberose and dahlias should be made before the end of the month.

The following annuals make good potted plants for porch or terrace decoration: petunias, salpiglossis, Drummond's phlox, annual larkspur, snapdragons, Arctotis grandis, heliotrope, mignonette and stocks; but they must receive more or less frequent applications of plant food and be watered faithfully throughout the summer.

Fuchsias are among the few flowering plants that will bloom in the shade.

Do not neglect to spray delphiniums and hollyhocks with Bordeaux mixture every ten days during the growing season.

Plants with lice on them should be sprayed with a nicotine preparation as soon as they become infested.

Currant worms can be killed with hellebore.

Spray grape vines with ammoniacal copper carbonate solution or potassium sulphide for mildew and black rot; spray or dust them with arsenate of lead to kill the little worm found in the curled up leaves.

Dust the young plants of melons, cucumbers and squashes with arsenate of lead and lime or with tobacco dust, to keep away the striped beetle and the flea beetle.

Spray evergreens with a solution of lime-sulphur to prevent the appearance of the red spider during hot weather.

Thin apples, peaches and plums, leaving only perfect specimens that do not touch each other.

Sow the following vegetables: Chinese cabbage, kale, corn, beans, New Zealand spinach, winter turnips and beets, carrots, kohlrabi, pumpkins and squashes. Replace tomatoes destroyed by cutworms. Set out celery plants in rich soil where water can be applied freely.

JULY

Early Work

Thin out the old wood of shrubs that have finished blooming.

Stake tall perennials before they begin to bend and break. Tie them with raffia or keep them confined in wire hoops.

Lawns should not be cut as closely now as in the spring, and the clippings should be left as protection from the scorching sunshine.

Cut back the old, hard canes of rambler roses when their blooming period is over; prune hybrid perpetuals; feed and mulch the teas for autumn bloom.

Daphne cneorum may be propagated by layering the trailing branches at this season. Make a small incision in the under part of the stem and bury it two inches underground.

Divide trollius clumps after they have finished blooming and set them in a partially shaded position. Since flowering clumps will not mature for two or three years, they should be set in a light and well-drained soil.

Pinch off the lateral stems on dahlias to throw the growth into those that will bear flowers at the tops of the plants.

To prevent blight or rust on phlox, aconite, shasta daisies and snapdragons, spray the plants with Bordeaux mixture.

Thin out rows of vegetables, leaving two or three inches between carrots, onions and salsify, three or four inches between beets, parsnips and small turnips, and four to six inches between large turnips, and rutabagas.

Set out late celery plants, being sure that the ground is thoroughly saturated with water; and in setting late cabbage and cauliflower plants, press the soil firmly over the roots.

Tie up tomatoes to stakes and keep the side shoots pinched out for the early ripening of good fruit.

Sow seeds of cinerarias, Chinese primroses and calceolarias now to give plants for winter blooming.

Plant violets as a ground cover in shady places; their delicate bloom is desirable in the spring, and their foliage is pleasing throughout the summer months.

This is a good time to repot house ferns.

Late Work

Keep the ground about newly planted trees and shrubs well-watered during dry summer weather. Give the lawn a good soaking, if it shows signs of turning brown.

Mulch the rose beds and perennial borders with leaf-mold or peat moss to prevent their drying out.

Cut out old raspberry canes and burn them, when they are through bearing, to strengthen the new growth and keep diseases in check.

Sow the seed of delphinium as soon as it is ripe, for blooming plants of the ordinary varieties next summer; but obtain divisions of a selected strain of plants from which to grow prize-winning spikes.

Bearded irises may be lifted and divided at any time in the next six weeks.

Japanese irises need dividing every three or four years. Do this work soon after they have flowered, lifting the crowns carefully and separating them with a sharp knife. They should be set deeper than the bearded kinds.

Sow the seed of columbines and perennial lupines.

Make final sowings of annual lupines, Shirley poppies, and mignonette.

Autumn crocuses should be ordered now for planting in early August.

The tarnished plant bug that punctures the growing tips of asters in hot weather can be kept in check with a tobacco spray or by dusting with air-slaked lime. Spraying the seedlings with Bordeaux mixture on the under sides of the leaves will act as a preventive of rust.

Spray nasturtiums, sweet peas and golden glow with a nicotine preparation, to eradicate the aphids.

Give tomato plants liberal side-dressings of sodium nitrate or ammonium sulphate, just as the plants begin to set fruit, for maximum yields; but be sure that these fertilizers do not come in contact with the vines.

Rhubarb, sea-kale and asparagus should be given liberal applications of fertilizer and cultivated to obtain strong roots which will yield a good crop next spring.

Sow late cabbage, cauliflower, Brussel sprouts, beets, kohlrabi, and turnips, in the vegetable garden; the last may be planted where early potatoes have been dug. Endive, lettuce, kale and spinach may be sown through early August.

This is a good time to set out clumps of Virginia cowslip, Mertensia virginica.

The best way to obtain winter blooming geraniums is to start slips or cuttings in early summer, and to grow the plants in pots, shifting them into larger pots as they develop.

AUGUST

Early Work

Remove all dead and dying branches from trees to keep out injurious insects and diseases.

Do not allow either herbaceous plants or shrubs to set seeds, unless these are desired for propagation. Nothing so exhausts new plants as the production of fruit, and some varieties—such as garden phlox—do not come true from seed.

Take two-inch root cuttings of bleeding heart and oriental poppies. They will take hold in any good garden soil that is moist but well drained and form new plants for next year.

Cut strawflowers and other "everlastings" when they are free from moisture and just before the blossoms open wide.

Sow the seeds of pansies, English daisies and forget-me-nots at once in a frame and supply some shade during hot weather.

Put a mulch of lawn clippings or any safe refuse around gladioli and dahlias. Disbud the latter for extra large blooms and give them both plenty of water.

Use liquid manure on chrysanthemums, dahlias and hydrangeas, but do not apply this when the soil is dry.

Set out daffodil bulbs for early spring bloom.

Madonna lily bulbs should be ordered now and planted three or four inches deep as soon as they arrive.

Prepare the soil for peonies several weeks in advance, digging it to a depth of one and one-half to two feet, so that it will settle before planting time in September.

Sow the following cover crops: crimson clover, hairy vetch, rye, buckwheat and millet.

Pinch off the tips of squash, pumpkin and tomato vines.

Make final sowings of spinach, cress, radishes, lettuce and turnips.

Potato blight may be prevented by spraying with Bordeaux mixture.

Cut a few leaves from the grape vines so that enough sunlight will enter to ripen the fruit, but do not prune them.

Pot up freesias for forcing. Place the bulbs in a coldframe, water them well, cover with hay or dry leaves and shade them with a partial covering of boards.

Late Work

Water all plants during a period of drought until the ground is saturated not less than four inches in depth; never spray them when the temperature drops suddenly, for this causes mildew.

Remove plantains and other weeds from the lawn with a small trowel and seed over the bare spots. Do the filling and grading for new lawns, which should be sown by the middle of next month.

Cut the galls from spruce trees and burn them. The special oil sprays that are used to eradicate gall aphids and the pine needle scale should not be applied at this time of year but in early spring.

Take cuttings of English ivy, poinsettia and heliotrope, and pot them up for house plants next winter.

Transplant perennials grown from seed in June and July.

Cut garden phlox to the ground when it has finished blooming and fertilize with sheep manure; it is best grown from late summer divisions.

Continue to use Massey dust or one of the prepared sprays on roses to prevent mildew and black spot.

Watch for the appearance of black beetles on aster plants.

Potted strawberries should be set now—18 inches from each other in rows three feet apart, with the crowns even with the surface.

Harvest onions when the tops turn yellow, spread them out in the sun to dry, then store them in a cool place.

Plant a few freesia bulbs every two weeks. Use three-quarter inch bulbs for early flowers. Keep the pans or pots shaded a little until growth starts.

Elm trees infested with elm leaf beetles should be sprayed immediately. Start the planting of daffodils as soon as the bulbs can be obtained at the stores. Plant the bulbs of fall crocuses as soon as they arrive. They do well in the rock garden.

Privet hedges should have a final trimming now.

Planting of evergreens can be undertaken at any time now. They should not be pruned.

SEPTEMBER

Early Work

Order deciduous trees and shrubs for fall planting.

Begin to make the new border for perennials now, using at least a foot of mel-low, moisture-holding soil. Save only the vigorous pieces of the outside growths on each clump to be divided and reset.

If lily-of-the-valley plants have become over-crowded and flower rather sparsely, the entire bed should be dug up at this time and the larger pips or roots reset two or three inches apart and just under the surface. A dressing of well-rotted manure and leafmold may be applied after the leaves have died down to ensure a better bloom next spring.

Divide and plant peonies this month so that they will become well established before the hard frost. Mix a handful of bone meal with the soil around each plant and supply plenty of water; select strong divisions with three to five eyes and set them with the topmost eye two inches below the surface.

Withhold fertilizers from the rose garden from now on, but keep the soil well mulched.

Continue to plant narcissi and all other bulbs that are available, except tulips, which should not go into the ground until October.

Sow new lawns by the middle of the month and stimulate old ones to crowd out the weeds, by applying six pounds each of sulphate of ammonia, phosphoric acid and potash over 1,000 square feet of surface, once now and twice in the early spring.

Spanish and Dutch irises may be planted now in clumps about five inches deep, provided they are set in a well-drained part of the border and given the protection of a liberal mulch during the winter. They will not stand alternate freezing and thawing.

English irises are more difficult to grow but will survive under careful treatment. They should be planted in a rich black soil and be given plenty of moisture during the spring months.

Calendulas will continue to bloom quite late in the garden, but the smaller plants may be cut back and potted up to produce flowers for several weeks and perhaps months longer indoors.

Place one-half to three-quarters of an ounce of paradichloro-benzene in a narrow band around peach trees that are over three years old to exterminate the borers. Do not allow it to come in contact with the bark but cover it with five inches of soil and tramp it down hard.

Late Work

Most shrubs, with the exception of Spicebush (Benzoin aestivale), Butterfly Bush (Buddleia), Sweetshrub (Calycanthus floridus), Bladdersenna (Colutea arborescens), Hawthorn (Crataegus), Shrub-althea (Hibiscus syriacus), Sumac (Rhus), magnolia, tamarisk and Japanese Snowball (Viburnum plicatum), can be moved readily and safely from now until the end of October. The leaves should be stripped off and plenty of water supplied to the roots.

Continue to sow new lawns and renovate those which are old.

Many perennials may be divided now, and in particular peonies, phlox, Bleeding Heart and oriental poppy.

Chrysanthemums should be staked, given liquid manure and sprayed or dusted with a nicotine preparation.

Do not allow bulbs that have been saved from the home garden to remain out of the soil any longer than necessary, and plant crocuses, snowdrops, chionodoxas and scillas by the end of this month.

Plant Mariposa lily bulbs (Calochortus) three inches deep in a light loam mixed with sand, sawdust or road grit, and a little powdered charcoal, in a raised bed facing south. They must have perfect drainage.

Among the hardy annuals which may be treated as biennials and sown now in vacant places in the herbaceous borders are larkspur, sweet alyssum, eschscholtzia, calliopsis and Centaurea cyanus. Do not forget these little plants when spading up the borders.

Dwarf asters may be taken from the garden and set into small pots for flowering in the house. The ground around the plants should be thoroughly watered an hour or two in advance and the pots should be placed in a sunny window.

Sow seeds of nasturtiums, petunias and sweet peas to be grown in the greenhouse.

Get ready to protect cosmos, dahlias and other annuals from the first frost.

Sow such hardy vegetables as cabbage and cauliflower in protected coldframes for spring use.

Set out all fruit trees, except the stone fruits, when their leaves begin to drop.

Do not allow pears to ripen on the trees but pull them while they are still firm.

Purchase house plants from the florist as soon as possible, so that they will become gradually inured to the dry house air while the windows may still be left open.

Dig potatoes when the tops have died and before the coming of hard frosts; dry them so that the soil will fall off easily and store in a cool, dark cellar.

Bank winter celery with soil on a dry day, but be careful not to get any in the centers of the plants.

Lettuce and radish seeds may be sown in a coldframe for a continued succession of these vegetables up to Thanksgiving.

OCTOBER

Early Work

If trees are fed with a slow-acting commercial fertilizer at this time, they are supplied with nourishment as soon as the ground thaws in the spring.

Crocus bulbs should be planted immediately, but not over an inch deep. Deep planting is often the cause of failure to bloom.

Plant the bulbs of chionodoxas, fritillarias, scillas, snowdrops, hyacinths and grape hyacinths this month.

Hardy lilies are often held over until spring, but it is much better to plant them, when possible, in the autumn or early winter. This is particularly true as applied to Lilium auratum, which deteriorates rapidly over winter.

Use well-rotted barn manure or bone meal as a fertilizer when setting out bulbs. If the soil is very hard or filled with clay, work in a liberal amount of peat moss.

Freesias for winter forcing should be potted up at once. They need a cool temperature—but not darkness—until they start to grow.

Tulips, daffodils and hyacinths which are to be forced indoors must be buried in a trench outside or kept in a cold frame or a cool cellar for several weeks until root growth has been started.

Duc Van Thol tulips potted up early can be forced for Christmas. This is true of no other tulip.

Continue to make over the flower borders, heeling in plants that must be taken up temporarily until there is room to reset them. If perennials are not to be transplanted, it is best to allow their tops to die down naturally, but be sure to remove all refuse this fall.

Plant all varieties of garden tulips this month. Try some of the following wild species in the rock garden: Tulipa clusiana, T. eichleri, T. greigii, T. Kaufmanniana, T. sylvestris.

Be sure to plant bulbs right-side-up; most spring-blooming kinds have a pointed top and a kind of ring at the bottom, where the roots were attached. Lily bulbs have scales pointing towards the top and should be tilted slightly so that water will not lodge in the scales and cause them to rot. The bottom of a crocus bulb is slightly depressed.

Dig tender material like gladioli, cannas, caladiums, tigridias, tuberose, Red Hot Poker plant (Tritoma) and Salvia patens. Leave as much earth as possible on the cannas and store the others in boxes of sand or peat moss in a cellar or cold frame.

Cut everlasting flowers and parsley, sage, thyme, sweet marjoram and other herbs, and hang them up to dry.

Plant the eremurus in a sunny position against a background of shrubs as soon as its foliage dies down in the fall. It should be set in a rich and moist but well-drained soil, with the crown just below the surface.

Mulch the bush fruits to protect their shallow root systems.

Grape-vines planted in the autumn will make much more rapid growth next spring than when planted in March or April.

Many vegetable crops can be protected from early frosts by covering them with hay, straw, strips of cloth and paper, or pieces of old burlap on cold nights. Late egg plants can be covered with boxes or barrels.

Put up Indian and Chinese azaleas, rhododendrons, lilacs, deutzias and other shrubs to be forced in the greenhouse, and store them in a pit, where they will get the light in the daytime but be protected from frost at night.

Repot callas which have been resting during the summer in a good compost containing leafmold and sand. Plant the tubers just under the surface, give them only a moderate amount of water until they have started into growth, and keep them in a cool, dark place for at least a month.

Late Work

There is still time to make over the perennial beds, but it is not wise to undertake this work in sections where the drought continues.

Roses may be planted out after October 20th.

Apple trees, pear trees and raspberries, blackberries, currants and gooseberries may be set out now.

Tulips may be planted to best advantage within the next two weeks.

Early tulips, hyacinths, narcissi (including paper whites and Soleil d'Or), freesias and the oxalis may be started now for flowering indoors.

Such of the hardy lilies as are now in the stores should be planted at once. The Japanese bulbs will not arrive until later in the season.

Several of the ferns which grow wild in the woods make very good house plants. They should be taken up after the frost has destroyed the tops, but before the ground has been frozen. It is best to leave them in a large pot until they freeze solid and to take them indoors early in December.

In northern sections, where the red hot poker (Kniphofia Pfitzeri) is not reliably hardy, the plants may be lifted and carried through the winter in boxes of sand in the cellar or in a covered cold frame.

Four-o'clock plants grown from seed this season may be lifted and wintered in the cellar. They will make very large plants with myriads of flowers next summer.

After pumpkins and squashes have been lifted they should be thoroughly dried in the sun and stored in a warm place like the furnace cellar or a dry chamber. The best temperature is from 50 to 60 degrees. They should not be stored in the vegetable cellar.

Nothing is gained by picking apples before they are ripe for winter storage. The skin of ripe fruit is bruised by the use of an apple picker.

It will be well to make a ring of earth around newly set trees and shrubs this autumn to hold as much rainfall as possible. They may be mulched after the ground freezes.

Dahlia tubers may be stored in boxes of sand, sawdust or peat moss, preferably with the stems down.

Lemon verbenas, Salvia patens and incarvilleas may be carried over the winter in a cool cellar with plenty of earth around the roots.

Lily-of-the-Valley may be reset now, being divided so that there will be about six roots to a clump. They should be set two inches underground. Beds of lily-of-the-valley should be made over at least once in four years.

Apples or other fruit should never be put into winter quarters while wet with dew or rain. A very good way to keep apples and pears in a crisp, fresh state is to pack them in clean, nearly dry leaves. Use a layer of leaves, then a layer of apples.

NOVEMBER

Early Work

Sweet peas may be sown in pots and kept in cold frames over winter, or even sown in the open ground in deeply prepared trenches. When the ground is frozen, mulch the rows with three inches of straw.

There is still time to plant roses, hardy lilies and bedding bulbs. Wherever late planting of imported bulbs is necessary, the ground should be mulched to prevent it from freezing.

Wherever peonies, delphiniums and hollyhocks have been troubled with blights or rust, be sure to remove all old stalks and leaves from about the crowns. In the case of delphiniums, it will be wise to cover the plants with coal ashes.

Bulb beds and perennial borders should not be mulched until the ground is well frozen. Otherwise, a nesting place for mice will be provided.

Slaked lime may be worked into the soil among bearded irises.

Mark the spots in the perennial border where plants which start late in the spring, such as mallows, are located.

Young fruit trees must be protected against girdling by mice. Wrap ordinary building paper around the trunk and heap up earth for a few inches about the lower end to prevent the mice from entering there. Close mesh wire may also be used.

A few strong clumps of rhubarb may be dug with a large ball of soil and placed in a shady place until they have been thoroughly frozen, when they will be ready for forcing in the cellar. This will not be until after the first of the year. While they are outside cover them with burlap so that the soil will not be washed away.

The vegetable garden and any borders intended for planting in the spring may be spaded deeply now and left in a rough condition, even as the farmer plows in fall.

After the ground has frozen, a mulch of straw or buckwheat hulls may be applied to the strawberry bed.

Carrots, beets and parsnips may be stored in a cool cellar in sand for winter use.

In the vegetable garden gather and burn all refuse which is likely to harbor pests.

Keep celery well banked with earth or boards to protect the hearts. However, avoid getting soil into the center of celery.

Late Work

After the hardy Chrysanthemums are through flowering, cut them back to within a few inches of the ground. If this is done, heavy shoots will appear in the spring which will be excellent as cuttings.

Be sure that choice garden plants are marked properly with permanent labels. This applies to bulbs and tubers in storage as well.

Store the garden furniture and clean all tools. Grease or oil the metal parts to prevent them from rusting.

Cover the bulb beds with a light litter when freezing weather has set in. The deeper the mulch, the later the bulbs will be in starting next spring. Crocus bulbs should not be too near the top or they will heave and will also be easily dug out by mice.

Make haste to get imported lily bulbs into the ground as soon as they arrive. This applies as well to the rare little bulbs shipped from the Western coast.

All hyacinths that are to be forced should be potted by the end of November. Be sure that the ground is soaked before they go into the cellar or their roots will not start. An occasional watering may even be necessary.

Heap manure around the rhubarb plants, especially those which have been established for several years. Rhubarb is a gross feeder.

Cold frames and hot beds which are to be used next spring should be covered with wooden tops to keep them dry and in good condition.

Winter varieties of celery may be replanted in deep frames, where they will stay in excellent condition for the holiday season. Keep the frost out with wooden tops and mats.

Be sure to ventilate cold frames on sunny days, when perennials or half-hardy materials are being stored over winter. This will prevent their heating and avoid rotting.

Mulch the cane fruits with leaves or manure, but use hay or straw on late plantings of onions or spinach, just as is done with strawberries. Use clods of soil to hold the mulch in place.

Stagnant surface water from melting snow during the winter months is dangerous to perennials. This condition can be averted now in many instances by digging shallow ditches to carry off this surface water when the ground is frozen.

Newly planted shade trees are often injured by sun scald during the winter months. This may easily be prevented by wrapping the trunks from the ground up loosely with burlap.

Now that poison ivy is as dormant as it will ever be, grub out the plants, roots and all, and pile them to dry, ready for burning late in winter—but only on a quiet day.

One never thinks of the berried shrubs until fall. Make a list of the ones liked best and order them for spring planting.

DECEMBER

Early Work

Those who have conservatories may start clarkias and godetias from seed now. Salmon Queen is a good variety of clarkia; seed should be sown in flats or pans. Transplant the seedlings later into small pots.

Japanese lilies may still be planted in the garden. Speciosums and auratums may be potted singly and kept under the bench in the conservatory for forcing into bloom later. Both these lilies must be forced slowly.

Seeds of schizanthus should be planted as soon as possible in order to have flowers next May. Gloxinia and heliotrope seed may also be sown this month, but the latter will germinate very slowly.

Seeds collected from the garden must be kept dry over winter. Stout paper bags or envelopes are best, and each should be plainly marked and arranged alphabetically in boxes.

Lilies-of-the-valley may be forced into flower quickly if pips from the seed stores are used. Plant them closely together in soil or fiber, adding a little moisture. Keep the pots in a shaded place for a week or ten days, maintaining a temperature of at least 70 degrees.

Those bulbs in pots which are showing white roots at the bottom are ready for forcing.

Look over the dahlia tubers that are in storage and, if decay has begun, cut out the bad spots and sprinkle the cuts with sulphur.

Deciduous shrubs, such as deutzia, philadelphus, forsythia, Prunus triloba and azaleas, should be potted now and put into storage for forcing in late January.

Trees to be moved by the frozen ball method should be trenched around the base now. Fill this trench with strawy manure.

Late Work

If young fruit trees are pruned early and the branches allowed to remain on the ground, mice will eat their bark in preference to girdling the trees.

When manure is spread on the ground around shrubs in the shrub border, be sure that none comes near the trunks of flowering crabs, because mice will winter in it and damage the trees.

All garden statuary that is movable should be stored away. Otherwise, it should be covered over with water-tight boxes, particularly if it is of soft stone. Formal gardens which adjoin the house should be neat appearing even in winter. For this reason, statuary should be moved from them instead of being covered.

Tubbed bay trees, box bushes and hydrangeas are best stored in a dark, cool, well-ventilated cellar that is frostproof. It is necessary to water them only occasionally.

Deciduous shrubs in tubs can be kept over winter in a cold pit or cold frame, but in either case they will need ventilation to prevent damping off. It is just as satisfactory to knock them out of the tubs, plant them in a sheltered place and mulch heavily.

Lilies and bulbs should now receive their winter mulch. A light covering of peat moss or buckwheat hulls will do.

Give the rose bed a mulch of manure, peat moss, buckwheat hulls, straw or evergreen boughs—whichever is preferred.

Ventilate cold frames in which pansies, English daisies, campanulas and other perennials are being wintered until the ground is thoroughly frozen. Then mulch lightly and replace the sash, covering it with straw mats for the rest of the winter.

The stems of poinsettias and Euphorbia jacquinaeflora bleed when cut, but this bleeding may be stopped by dipping the ends of the stems in hot water for a few minutes or by burning them with a match.

Water should not be allowed to drip from the gutters onto the perennial borders. Therefore, clean all rubbish from the drain spouts and save the perennials.

Garden books make attractive gifts for the holiday season.

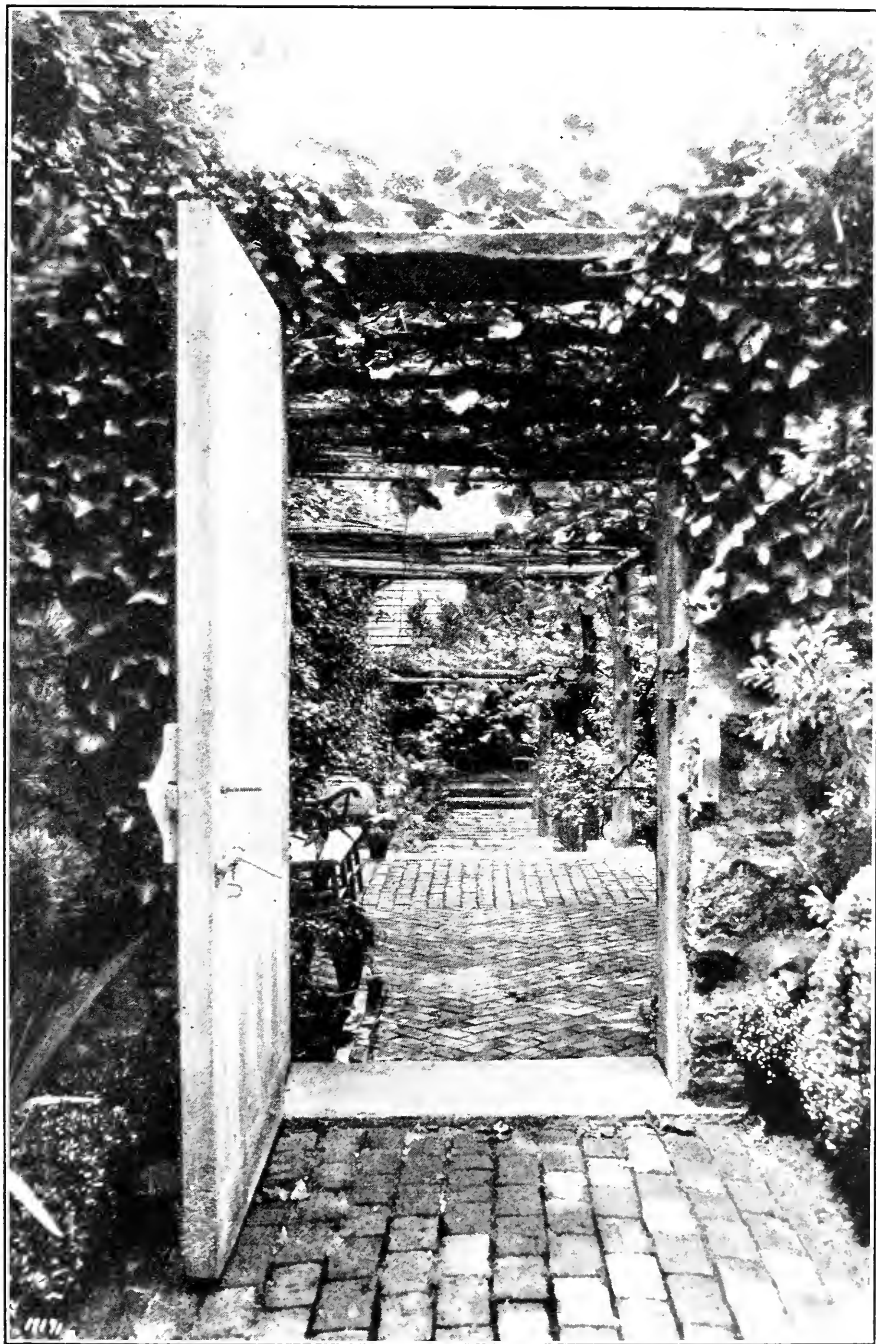

Be sure that choice garden plants are marked properly with permanent labels. This applies to bulbs and tubers in storage.

The leaves of foliage plants in the house, such as palms and rubber plants, should be scrubbed with a soap solution to free them of dust. Also, it is well to clean the pots of green algae.

Newly planted evergreens should have the protection of a windbreak this winter. Burlap stretched over stakes driven into the ground or an A-shaped barricade made of boards will serve the purpose.

Window boxes may be planted for the winter with little evergreens, such as arborvitaes, spruces, pines and hemlocks. It is usually best to use one kind only in each box. Water the soil thoroughly and mulch with peat moss.

Globe artichokes in the field should be cut back to the ground and mulched with six inches of coarse manure.

PATH IN GARDEN OF MR. AND MRS. ROBERT T. McCracken

THE GARDEN CLUB FEDERATION OF PENNSYLVANIA

The Garden Club Federation of Pennsylvania was organized on March 26, 1930, at a meeting held at the invitation of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society at 1600 Arch Street. Thirty-nine organizations enrolled as charter members. According to the Constitution and By-Laws adopted at this meeting, the objects of the Federation shall be "to co-ordinate the interests of the Garden Clubs of the State and to bring them into closer relations of mutual helpfulness by association, conference and correspondence, and to co-operate with other educational agencies furthering the interests of horticulture and conservation."

A second meeting of the Federation was held on Wednesday, October 15, 1930, at the Allegheny County Country Club, Sewickley Heights, Pennsylvania. Most inspiring reports were read, listing the activities of the various member organizations, and it was announced that Mrs. George L. Harrison, Corresponding Secretary of the Federation, is offering a Gold Medal to the club that can show the greatest achievement for the year.

The Executive Committee of the Federation has held regular monthly meetings and other committees have functioned successfully. The Committee on Conservation and Billboard Restriction has co-operated with a similar committee of the Garden Club of America and with the Pennsylvania State Highways and Forestry Departments in endeavoring to conserve native material and to restrict billboard advertising in scenic locations.

(The first annual meeting of the Federation will be held in Philadelphia on March 17-18, 1931, at which time a full report of the year's work will be made and the Medal offered by Mrs. Harrison will be awarded.)

The names of the officers and Directors of the Federation and a list of the member organizations are as follows:

President—Mrs. Thomas Newhall, Ithan, Delaware Co.

JAMES BOYD MEMORIAL MEDAL

Established 1930. To be offered each year as a prize at the National Show of the American Peony Society. Awarded for the first time at the Twenty-seventh Annual Peony Show, in Duluth, Minnesota, July 2, 1930, to Mr. A. B. Franklin, Minneapolis, Minnesota, for the most distinguished entry—some exceptionally fine seedlings.

JAMES BOYD MEMORIAL MEDAL

History of THE PENNSYLVANIA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY 1827-1927

The History of the First Hundred Years of the Society's existence, written, compiled and edited by its late President, James Boyd, has been published recently by the Society.

It is a cloth-bound volume, of 500 pages, profusely illustrated, and includes a section of 60 pages describing Philadelphia's gardens of a hundred years ago and today.

Copies may be obtained upon application to the Secretary, accompanied by check for $5.00. (Postage prepaid.)

JOHN C. WISTER, Secretary

OBJECT AND PRIVILEGES OF THE SOCIETY

The Society's object is to promote and encourage Horticulture and to create a love for, and interest in, Plants and Flowers. It desires to increase its membership in order that its work and influence may be extended.

PRIVILEGES OF MEMBERSHIP INCLUDE

1. Subscription to Horticulture, a magazine published semi-monthly in Boston for the Horticultural Societies of Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania.
2. Services of Consultant in Horticulture—the only charge is for actual traveling expenses when members' gardens are visited. The Consultant may be seen at the rooms of the Society by appointment.
3. Illustrated lectures by prominent horticulturists during the winter season.
4. Admission to the Society's Exhibitions of Plants, Flowers, Fruits and Vegetables.
5. Admission to the Philadelphia Flower Show.
6. Use of the Library, including circulating privileges. The Library contains over 3000 volumes, in addition to current horticultural magazines. The best of the new publications are systematically added to the Library.
7. Admission to gardens listed in the School of Horticulture's Garden Days.
8. YEAR BOOK, including reports, list of members, etc.

CLASSES OF MEMBERSHIP

Patrons: Who contribute the sum of $10,000.

Benefactors: Who contribute the sum of $5,000.

Sustaining Members: Who contribute the sum of $1,000.

Life Members: Who make a contribution of $100.

(Life Membership fee will remain fifty dollars until May 1, 1932.)

Annual Members: Who make an annual contribution of $3.00.

THE ANNUAL MEETING, 1931

The President, Mr. C. Frederick C. Stout, presided at the annual meeting of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, held at 1600 Arch Street, Philadelphia, on November 18, 1931, at 3 P. M.

After welcoming the members, Mr. Stout asked the Secretary, Mr. John C. Wister, to announce the election of members to the Executive Council for the term ending December 31, 1934. These were as follows: Mrs. Thomas Newhall, Mrs. Arthur H. Scott, Mr. John P. Habermehl, Mr. Jay V. Hare, Mr. Alexander MacLeod, and Mr. Henry F. Michell.

The President then presented his annual report * and following this the Secretary announced the election to Honorary Membership of the active officers of the Horticultural Societies of Massachusetts and New York.

The Secretary presented his report for 1931,* in which he outlined the activities of the Standing and Special Committees and noted the Society's accomplishments during the year.

An opportunity was given to the members to ask questions and offer recommendations in regard to the Society's work. A horticultural forum was then held, at which the Secretary presided. Many questions were asked on various phases of gardening and the following authorities were on hand to answer them—Mr. George L. Farnum (dahlias), Mr. Harold G. Mattoon (injurious insects), Mr. William H. Ritter (hardy chrysanthemums), Mr. David Rust (general gardening), Mr. John C. Wister (bulbs and spring flowers).

After the meeting adjourned, the members were invited to the Board Room, where tea was served.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT FOR 1931

In this day and hour of so much financial and economic distress wherever we turn, it is indeed a great pleasure and privilege for me to report to you that your Society has been able to maintain its financial status and prosecute its mission with even greater vigor and scope than heretofore. And if our success is to be measured by popular favor, the fact that we have taken in an additional thousand members, and lost but two hundred, is significant not only of the need for our existence, but also a recognition of the help and inspiration which the work of this Society is giving forth in the great field of horticulture. Our membership today stands at thirty-five hundred. Last year I said to you the Society should have at least five thousand members. To obtain this goal we need fifteen hundred new members. It would indeed be easy to acquire these if all of our members would exert their influence on one or more of their friends. The Society actually spends about eight dollars for the services which it makes available to its members for three dollars. The Society cannot enrich itself financially only by acquiring new members, but should seek endowments and legacies that can be placed in trust. We have a fine example of this in the Schaffer Memorial.

I wish to announce the gifts to the Library of a complete set of Curtis's Botanical Magazine, 1787-1926, by Mr. George L. Farnum, Professor Sargent's North America Silva in fourteen volumes, presented by the Executive Council, and the two supplementary volumes, Trees and Shrubs, given by Mr. Hare. In this connection I wish to say the Library has outgrown its present quarters. This coupled with the many activities that take place in the offices of the Society, has compelled us to look for more room, and we have concluded negotiations with the lessors of our offices for an addition of nine hundred square feet, and in renewing our lease we will get this addition without any advance of rent. It is going to take quite a little money for the changes that will have to be made in furnishings. Many of you can make contributions to this expense and should take it up with the Library Committee.

Your Society co-operated with the John Bartram Association, the Academy of Natural Sciences and the American Philosophical Society in observing the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the founding of John Bartram's Garden, June 5th and 6th last. Your Society contributed five hundred dollars toward the replanting of trees and shrubs in the Garden.

We make an annual contribution of one hundred dollars toward the fund that is being built up to fight Rose Canker at Ithaca, New York, sponsored by the American Rose Society and Cornell University.

We also contributed six hundred and seventy-five dollars to the School of Horticulture at Ambler in exchange for privilege of Garden Days.

The Society co-operated with the Philadelphia Flower Show Association in the presentation of their great spring exhibit, held in the month of March at the Commercial Museum, West Philadelphia, and the Philadelphia Flower Show Association again accorded our members the privilege of two tickets for this Show.

We have maintained friendly relations with the Horticultural Societies of New York and Massachusetts and exchanged gold medals with them at important Flower Shows, as we did in previous years. In this connection I regret, indeed, to note the passing of Mr. Albert C. Burrage, President of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

The Centenary Gold Medal of this Society was first given to Mr. Boyd for his life work in the interests of this Society, and then two years later to the Massachusetts Horticultural Society when it commemorated its Centennial Anniversary. Your Council at the October, 1931, meeting awarded this medal for the third time to Mr. and Mrs. Pierre S. duPont for their accomplishments in the field of horticulture, as expressed at their country estate, "Longwood." For its beauty, grandeur, and its vast collection of specimens and rare plants it is outstanding and unexcelled.

In closing, I wish to extend my appreciation and thanks to the Chairmen and members of the various Committees who have done and are doing outstanding work in their own particular field, and also the executive force for the loyal and splendid support which they have given to me in the efforts which we have put forth.

C. FREDERICK C. STOUT,
President.

SECRETARY'S REPORT FOR 1931

It is gratifying to report that your Society has made such a splendid growth this past year in spite of general business conditions. There has been a corresponding increase in use of the rooms and the Library, and also, I am glad to report, in the number of meetings held in our Board Room. As you know, our quarters are at the disposal of allied organizations for their meetings, and among those who use our Board Room in this way are: the John Bartram Association, the Council for the Preservation of Natural Beauty in Pennsylvania, Conservation and Wild Flower Committee, Keystone Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, the Garden Club Federation of Pennsylvania, the Pennsylvania Forestry Association, the Executive Board of the Philadelphia Flower Show Association, the School of Horticulture's Executive Board, and various Garden Club Committees.

Our relations with our sister Societies of New York and Massachusetts continue to be most friendly. The magazine Horticulture, sponsored by the three Societies, but edited and published by the Massachusetts Society, is probably the most outstanding privilege offered to the members of these three organizations, and we are proud that we are able to include it in every member's subscription.

In regard to our finances, the Treasurer asks me to tell you that he will not make a formal report this afternoon, as his complete statement will be published in the YEAR BOOK. However, he would like me to mention to you that your Society is in good condition and has not shared so far, to any appreciable extent, in the prevailing depression. It looks now as if we shall be able to keep within the budget this year, which is encouraging, as we expect to incur some unusual expenses next year.

I shall not attempt to enumerate in this report the various activities engaged in during the year, as they also will be set forth in detail in the various Committee reports in the YEAR BOOK, but I should like to mention some of the more important and interesting things that have been accomplished.

Mr. Stout has told you that the Library has grown out of its present quarters, and that within a few months or so we hope to have it installed in its new location. We hope that its attractive new home will encourage more members to use its splendid books and periodicals. The Library has been the recipient of some important books during the year—first, Professor Sargent's North American Silva, in fourteen volumes, was presented by the Executive Council. As our President has told you, two supplementary volumes, Trees and Shrubs, were given by one of the members of our Council, Mr. Jay V. Hare, from his own collection, to complete the Society's set, and Mr. George L. Farnum, another member of the Council, gave the Society a complete set of Curtis's Botanical Magazine, the first issue of which was published in 1787. There are about 135 volumes altogether, and the books constitute an outstanding and valuable addition to the Library. This is the most important gift the Library has ever had, and we are all very grateful to Mr. Farnum.

The Library Committee published a catalogue of the books last spring, and the cost of this cut pretty deeply into their appropriation for the year, so that they were curtailed in the purchase of books and welcomed donations with more than usual gratitude. The catalogue was not distributed to every member, as the cost of printing was high, and it was felt that a certain proportion of the members would have no occasion to use it, but copies are available for all who are interested, and may be obtained, without cost, at any time from the Librarian.

The Lecture Committee is planning a series of three lectures for January and February next, and announcement of these will be made around the first of the year. Notices of the lectures and all other activities are sent to all members, but I might remind you that our events are also announced in advance in Horticulture, and I would refer you to the regular space assigned to our Society on the inside of the back cover for all items of general interest to members.

This past spring an experiment was tried of holding the Society's Peony and Spring Flower Show jointly with that of the Trevoise Horticultural Society, upon the invitation of that organization. The exhibition was held in Trevoise and was an interesting and creditable one, but it was so far for many of our exhibitors to carry their exhibits that it would hardly seem fair to ask them to go to distant suburban territory in a different direction every year. However, if a suitable hall cannot be found that is fairly accessible to the majority of our exhibitors, this plan may be the best that is available.

The Dahlia Show was held in conjunction with the Bryn Mawr Horse Show in Bryn Mawr, and perfect weather the first day made an outdoor Show most alluring, but a steady downpour of rain the second day resulted, naturally, in an almost empty tent as far as spectators were concerned.

The Philadelphia Flower Show in March, in which this Society co-operated as usual, was, I believe, the most beautiful yet staged by the Flower Show Association. The Society sponsored classes which were, as always, a very popular feature of the Show, and also, through the courtesy of the Four Garden Clubs, which have always been closely associated with the Society's exhibitions, staged an exhibit of a Courtyard in the French Manner.

The Philadelphia Flower Show Association in the past has very generously allowed us to give two tickets to each of our members for this exhibition, but, as we are growing so rapidly, there has been a question in their minds as to whether they were justified in keeping up this practice indefinitely. I am glad to report that at their first meeting in preparation for the 1932 Show (which will be held March 7th to 12th, inclusive) they voted that we might again offer two tickets to our entire membership.

This year there were eleven Garden Days, with 57 Gardens, opened on certain Saturdays in the spring, early summer and autumn, and our members attended them in greater numbers than ever before. Perhaps most of you realize that these Days are under the auspices of the School of Horticulture and that this Society is a co-operating agency. For several years both the School and the Society conducted series of these Garden Days, but finally, in order to avoid duplication, it seemed simpler for the Society to give up the affairs and to co-operate in the School's Days. The School conducts the series in order to raise money for current expenses, and the Days are an important source of revenue, and the Society therefore contributes to the School for the privilege of admission to our members.

I hope everyone realizes by this time that Mr. Rust, our gardening consultant, is at the service of all our members, and that no garden is too unimportant for him to visit, nor no problem is too insignificant to consult him about. Our new members and members with very small gardens seem to be rather reluctant to bother him with their questions, but I assure you he will be very happy to help in any way he can. This afternoon we are trying something rather new for us in a horticultural forum or round table, and Mr. Rust and others are here at hand to help us answer your questions. If the members like this kind of a meeting and would welcome them at different periods of the year, we shall be glad to arrange them.

The Horticultural Society of New York invited our members to participate with them in a pilgrimage to Charleston, South Carolina, in April, to visit Magnolia Gardens and Middleton Place when the azaleas were in bloom. Nine of our members availed themselves of the opportunity. They were most enthusiastic about the trip and reported that under Mr. Leonard Barron's guidance they were able to visit some lovely private gardens and also to view a cypress swamp, not seen by the average visitor.

Our members were also invited to visit Dr. J. Horace McFarland's gardens at "Breeze Hill" in Harrisburg in early June, when his roses were at their height, and the trip proved well worth while to those who made it.

The Garden Club Federation of Pennsylvania, of which this Society is a Charter Member, has been very active this past year and has grown in influence and membership. We have tried to co-operate with them from the beginning in every way possible and are happy to see that they are in such a flourishing condition. At the last Philadelphia Flower Show the Society arranged a special class, open only to members of the Federation. We have been requested by the Federation to use our influence to have a judging course conducted in Philadelphia, at this building if possible, some time this winter. We are making inquiries about the cost and other details at the present time and it looks as if such a course could be arranged, to last three or four days, at a cost of $10.00 per person, if a hundred people are interested. The New York Federation presented such a course last winter and are planning another one this season. I hope you will all remember that through your membership in this Society you are also members of the Federation and are eligible to exhibit in Federation classes in the Flower Show, to enroll in the judging course if it is given, or in anything else that is open to Federation members.

There is nothing to report to you in regard to Painter Arboretum, but I am simply mentioning it, as I know that several of you are wondering whether there have been any developments. It is hoped that Mrs. Tyler will wish to properly endow the property and leave it as a memorial to her husband, but she has not shown any inclination to do this so far, although she has deeded a certain portion of the place to her attorney, to be given to the public at some future time as a park.

I am sorry to report that I have no announcement to make of large additions to our endowment fund. Every year we hope that someone who is interested in our work may wish to make it possible for us to broaden our scope and undertake important things that are impossible now on account of lack of funds, but as yet no one has been moved to do it. Some of the things we should like to do if we had the money are:

1. To establish a test garden where scientific experiments could be conducted. An ornamental garden would also be a good feature.
2. To make our Library more valuable by buying old and rare books that are available and by buying more of the modern books. There are many horticultural periodicals that the Library cannot afford.
3. To increase the number and variety of our lectures and to arrange the subjects in courses—one for beginners and one for more advanced members.
4. To establish a scholarship at the School of Horticulture, and to be able to help worthwhile movements in allied organizations from time to time as they occur.

Your officers have felt that it is a fitting and nice thing to have flowers in our rooms whenever possible. Therefore, in past years, a certain sum was appropriated in the budget for this purpose. This year, however, the officers felt that perhaps the members would like to contribute flowers, so that the money might be devoted to other things. This is the first time I have had an opportunity to bring the matter to your attention, and if any of you would like to assume responsibility for any particular week or month, I shall be very glad if you will communicate with the office and inform them of the period you would like. We take good care of the flowers, and if they are brought in on Monday morning they will usually last through most of the week. Some of the Council members and other members have been very generous this year, and I am sure you will all join me in thanking the following persons for the flowers they have provided: Mrs. Horatio Gates Lloyd, Mrs. Thomas Newhall, Mrs. Arthur H. Scott, Mrs. John W. Hutch-

HENRY F. MICHELL
Honorary Vice-President 1930-1932

We are glad that we obtained this photograph from Mr. Michell in December, 1931, to use in the current YEAR BOOK. Mr. Michell's death, which occurred on February 20, 1932, just as the YEAR BOOK was going to press, is a great loss to the Society.

inson, Mrs. C. J. Orth, Mrs. Edgar T. Wherry, Mr. Fitz Eugene Dixon, Mr. George L. Farnum, Mr. S. S. Pennock, Mr. C. F. C. Stout, Mr. W. Atlee Burpee, Jr., Mr. W. H. Ritter, the School of Horticulture.

During the year we have been sorry to learn of the deaths of twenty-three of our members. We have also sympathized with the Massachusetts Society in the death of their President, Mr. Albert C. Burrage, on June 28th, and with the Horticultural Society of New York in the death of their former Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. Frederick R. Newbold, on June 30th. Both of these men gave unselfishly of their time and money for the advancement of horticulture and were outstanding figures in horticultural circles in this country.

JOHN C. WISTER,
Secretary.

REPORT OF EXHIBITION COMMITTEE FOR 1931

There has been a most gratifying advancement in the exhibitions which your Society staged or in which it co-operated with other societies. This advancement has been gradual but most consistent during the past four or five years, and only by looking backward for a period of some years, by those who remember our earlier shows, is this change really noticeable to the proper degree.

The Spring Flower Show, held by the Philadelphia Flower Show at the Commercial Museum, was undoubtedly the best show in point of quality and variety of plants and flowers as well as artistic effect ever staged in this section. The increased attendance and popularity attested to the public interest and approval. In this great Show The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society sponsored the Amateur Exhibits. These were most ably carried out by the several committees of ladies in charge. In addition to the competitive classes, the Society staged a Norman courtyard, which received much favorable comment. This was planned and constructed for the Society by a group of ladies under the leadership of Mrs. John Hampton Barnes and Mrs. George L. Harrison.

The June Show was held at Trevoise in co-operation with The Trevoise Horticultural Society. It was a beautiful Show and was visited by many people. The Dahlia Show was held in Bryn Mawr as in previous years and a small Chrysanthemum Show was held at 1600 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

Your Committee most earnestly feels that The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society will achieve the most for horticulture by reaching out to all affiliated societies and welcoming everyone interested in floriculture to active participation in all its exhibitions. The fact that one has but a small garden and does most of the work therein should not prevent one from specializing on some type of plant or flower and bringing it to the greatest perfection. It is to these small growers that the Exhibition Committee wishes to make a special appeal.

The President and the Secretary suggested to the Exhibition Committee that special appeal be made to the Philadelphia branch of the National Association of Gardeners to take greater interest in our Shows. The Chairman of the Exhibition Committee talked with a number of the gardeners with most gratifying results. Later a committee of three of the leading gardeners and superintendents met with the Exhibition Committee. The Fall Dahlia Show schedule was discussed and a new class of five exhibits for gardeners exclusively was planned and introduced in this new schedule. With the election of a member of the local chapter of the National Association of Gardeners, Mr. Alexander MacLeod, as a member of the Council, it is our earnest hope that true relations with this Association may become closer.

The Exhibition Committee is fully alive to the importance of local societies and local garden clubs in our section, and it is not our wish to in any way interfere with their exhibits and other activities. We do not wish to "steal their thunder," but rather it is our wish for them to continue along these lines of special effort which in many instances has been so ably carried out both by their officers and members. We would, however, like to have them associate themselves with us from time to time in giving an outstanding exhibition. We feel that these societies and smaller clubs, which are growing up with great rapidity on every hand, give an impetus to horticulture and should be, in every way, encouraged in their local competitions. We believe they will be benefited by the contact and experience of meeting at certain intervals in the shows of a larger society. It is our hope that we will have this co-operation to an increasing degree, with the result that we may establish an outstanding spring (June) and fall show, centrally situated in the near suburbs of Philadelphia, in the not-too-distant future.

Another innovation in our schedule during the past year which met with encouraging results was the introduction of a class for new seedlings, new sports or new importations of plants and flowers. This applied to new types not mentioned specially in the schedule and was introduced with the object of bringing out novelties and outstanding introductions. At the Trevese Show it was very gratifying indeed to have the judges call our attention to a display of seedling peonies which they considered the most unusual new seedlings ever exhibited in one class, and they were unanimous in insisting that a gold medal be awarded Mrs. Arthur H. Scott for this most praiseworthy exhibit. Also in this same class a new golden juniper was displayed, to which the judges unanimously awarded a silver medal as another outstanding introduction.

We feel that it should be the object of a horticultural society to bring out seedlings and new varieties and give the originators due credit where these prove to be of unusual merit. This we feel is even more important than the growing of the giant flowers which are already well known and classified. With this object in view, the Society has returned to the issuing of certificates of merit and blue ribbons as a reward in these classes and it is hoped that each year will see more work done along these lines. It is recommended that prizes or medals be given only where the exhibitions are of unusual merit.

Abroad the greatest interest is given to all types of new flowers and plants and we recommend that this practice be followed in our exhibitions and that The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society should stand for advancement of floriculture along all its lines in the broadest possible way.

A summary of the exhibitions held in 1931, arranged chronologically, follows:

March 16th-21st. The Philadelphia Flower Show. The Society participated in two ways—first, by making an exhibit, and second, by sponsoring certain classes. Its exhibit took the form of a "Courtyard in the French Manner," which was planned and staged by the ladies of the four Garden Clubs which have been closely identified with the Society's exhibitions for many years. In connection with this, the Society maintained headquarters where literature was displayed and new members enrolled. Altogether 135 members were secured on account of the Show. The section sponsored by the Society was composed of sixteen classes and there were 130 exhibitors and 215 entries. For the first time a special class was staged exclusively for member organizations of the Garden Club Federation of Pennsylvania. The Society was able, through the courtesy of the Philadelphia Flower Show, to give two tickets to each of its members. Admission to the general public was seventy-five cents. The attendance was 110,000—the largest in the history of the Show.

June 2nd-3rd. Peony and Spring Flower Show. At the invitation of the Trevoise Horticultural Society, our Peony and Spring Flower Show was held in conjunction with them at Trevoise, Pa., on June 2nd and 3rd. There were 480 entries by 140 exhibitors, one-third of which were from our Society. The Committee is grateful to those of our members who came such a distance to exhibit to help make the Show a success. The attendance at this Show was over 2,000.

September 25th-26th. Dahlia Show. The Annual Dahlia Show was held again this year in conjunction with the Bryn Mawr Horse Show on the Polo Grounds at Bryn Mawr. It was housed in a tent 228 feet long. There was a good attendance the first day of the exhibition, but very few the second, owing to continuous rain throughout the day. Sixty-four of our members exhibited, with 300 entries in the various classes. The new classification of the American Dahlia Society was explained in the schedule and the entries were made in accordance with this classification. Our members were admitted to the Polo Grounds upon presentation of their membership cards. The general admission was fifty cents.

October 28th-29th. Hardy Chrysanthemum Show. This exhibition was held on the sixth floor of the Insurance Company of North America Building, 1600 Arch Street, in rooms adjoining the Society's offices. In spite of the unusually late season, the display of flowers was profuse and the quality exceptionally good. An increasing number of seedling classes added interest to the Show, and a collection of berry-bearing shrubs, exhibited by Mrs. Horatio Gates Lloyd, attracted favorable attention. Admission was free, but the attendance was disappointingly small.

Respectfully submitted,
GEORGE L. FARNUM,
Chairman.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON GARDEN AWARDS FOR 1931

Upon the recommendation of the Committee, the following awards were made to gardens of members during 1931:

Gold Medal of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society:

A Gold Medal to Mr. and Mrs. Fitz Eugene Dixon, of "Ronacle Manor," Elkins Park, Pa., for a very beautiful estate of about 120 acres. Its rolling lawns and superb old trees, together with its beautiful landscaping, are deserving of both admiration and praise; in the spring millions of narcissus blooms adorn the fine stretches of woodland. In close proximity to the house, which is a replica of Compton Wynyates, the residence of the Marchioness of Northampton, in Warwickshire, England, are the gardens, both formal and informal, including borders, flower gardens, rock gardens, a picturesque and exquisitely planted pool, and a charming vista to a stone tower "ruin," forming a perfect whole. The greenhouses contain one of the finest collections of orchids in the country. Mr. and Mrs. Dixon take great interest in their estate and give it much personal supervision.

Silver Medals of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society:

A Silver Medal to Mr. William Caner Wiederseim, of "Aysgarth," Abington, Pa., for the magnificent display of old garden boxwood which dominates his large garden and which is in such perfect keeping with the spacious lawn, the stately trees and the picturesque two-hundred-year-old stone dwelling house. There are old prints showing the design of its original gardens; these have been reclaimed and replanted with consummate skill by Mr. Thomas Sears, and the romance and restfulness of other days has been conserved. The charm, which only old age can impart, is on this place, and, with faultless taste, the garden has been designed and developed so as to enhance this peculiar charm.

A Silver Medal to Mr. and Mrs. Grenville Dodge Montgomery, of "Carrington," Bryn Mawr, Pa., for a hillside garden of great charm, which is an outstanding achievement of both skill and knowledge. Built on a barren hillside—with a beautiful grove of fine trees at one end—less than two years ago, it is already a finished product, giving no sign of its extreme youth. Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery achieved this remarkable effect themselves with the aid of their architect and personally selected every tree and shrub. The plant material was all of mature age and choice specimens, and, having already established itself, looks as if it had been there always.

A Silver Medal to Mr. and Mrs. Wharton Sinkler, of "Thornbury," Elkins Park, Pa., for a small enclosed garden, in which the gardener's art reaches its acme of perfection. The splendid boxwood, symmetrically planted in an intricate pattern, imparts a sense of age; the exquisite coloring attests to a faultless taste; the plant material indicates a thorough knowledge; the maintenance is perfect. Intimacy and charm are the qualities which characterize this gem of a garden.

Bronze Medals of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society:

A Bronze Medal to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sewell, of "Ardnaree," Rydal, Pa., for the unique treatment of an arbor-covered terrace. This arbor, which extends the length of the house, is completely adorned and ceiled for one-half of its length with Bougainvillea and for the other half with Japanese wisteria, the suspended blossoms of which, with their great length, form an unusually beautiful effect which it is impossible to describe. Extended walks, skillfully planted, form each end of the terrace, and a sloping pasture meadow in front complete this unusual garden. It is one of the places you want to live with.

A Bronze Medal to Mr. and Mrs. J. Andrews Harris, Jr., of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, Pa., for an unpretentious garden set in front of the terrace of this beautiful replica of a famous dwelling house—Sulgrave Manor. The gray of low stone retaining walls and the blooms of soft colors which harmonize with it characterize this garden. No false note of color impairs its serene beauty. The plant material and coloring were carefully planned by the owners and are both exquisite and restful. This simple garden is surely a constant source of pleasure to its owners and their friends.

Garden Certificate of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society:

A Garden Certificate to Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rodman Page, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., in recognition of the skill and taste displayed in the creation of their new garden, which promises in a few years to become one of great beauty and charm.

Centenary Gold Medal:

A Special Award of the Centenary Gold Medal (awarded on only two occasions before) to Mr. and Mrs. Pierre S. duPont, of "Longwood," Kennett Square, Pa., in recognition of their unique service to the cause of horticulture. The great conservatory ballroom, equipped with stage and pipe organ and approached through a "garden" with blooming flowers and green grass maintained throughout the winter months, is original in design and in plant decoration. The greenhouses, covering many acres, contain a great variety of plants and fruits. The great formal green outdoor garden, with its changing fountains and mobile lighting effects in color, is in extent and variety believed to surpass anything of its kind. The perennial gardens, in charming succession, extend in terrace after terrace down a gentle hillside to a pair of mirror-like ponds nestled in an idyllic forest-enclosed valley. At the foot of this valley lies a strictly formal rectangular sunken garden with central pool, viewed from an elevated esplanade at one end. This sunken garden is elaborately planted and is so equipped with piping that, by means of a "keyboard," a great variety of water sprays and fountains, in countless ever-changing combinations, enchant the eye with their beauty.

Respectfully submitted,

WILLIAM J. SERRILL,

Chairman.

REPORT OF THE LECTURE COMMITTEE FOR 1931

Three regular lectures were given in 1931 in the following order:

Mrs. Edith Banghart, of Medina, Wash., January 20, 1931; subject, "Alpine Plants." (Attendance 210.)

Mr. Jay V. Hare, Trevoise Horticultural Society and The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, on "Impressions of Spain and Its Gardens," February 3, 1931. (Attendance 550.)

Dr. George M. Reed, Curator, Brooklyn Botanic Garden; subject, "An Iris Pilgrimage to Japan," on February 17, 1931. (Attendance 386.)

Instead of having a lecture in connection with the Annual Meeting on November 18th, it was decided to try an experiment in the form of a horticultural forum or question box. Although the attendance was only seventy, those who came enjoyed this type of meeting and were greatly pleased with the information they received. The question box was conducted by the Secretary, who referred the inquiries to the following authorities: Mr. George L. Farnum (dahlias), Mr. Harold G. Mattoon (trees, shrubs and injurious insects), Mr. W. H. Ritter (hardy chrysanthemums) and Mr. David Rust (general gardening questions).

Respectfully submitted,

ANNA ELLIOTT

(MRS. WILLIAM T. ELLIOTT),

Chairman.

REPORT OF THE LIBRARY COMMITTEE FOR 1931

The Library Committee is pleased to report that in addition to the books purchased through its regular appropriation for 1931, it received several unusually interesting gifts. The most important of these was a complete set of Curtis's Botanical Magazine (1787-1926)—a gift from Mr. George L. Farnum, surpassing in value any in the history of the Library. Another interesting accession was Professor Sargent's North America Silva, in fourteen volumes, which was presented by the Executive Council. The two supplementary volumes, Trees and Shrubs, were given by Mr. Jay V. Hare.

Seven hundred and thirty-three persons have used the Library during the year—a considerable increase over last year. The Committee has felt for some time that the space at the Library's disposal is totally inadequate for its needs and is glad to report that arrangements are now being made to house it in larger and more suitable quarters. The use of the Library is not confined to members, and all persons are cordially invited to use it for reference, and a Reading Room is at their disposal. The circulating privilege is, however, reserved for members.

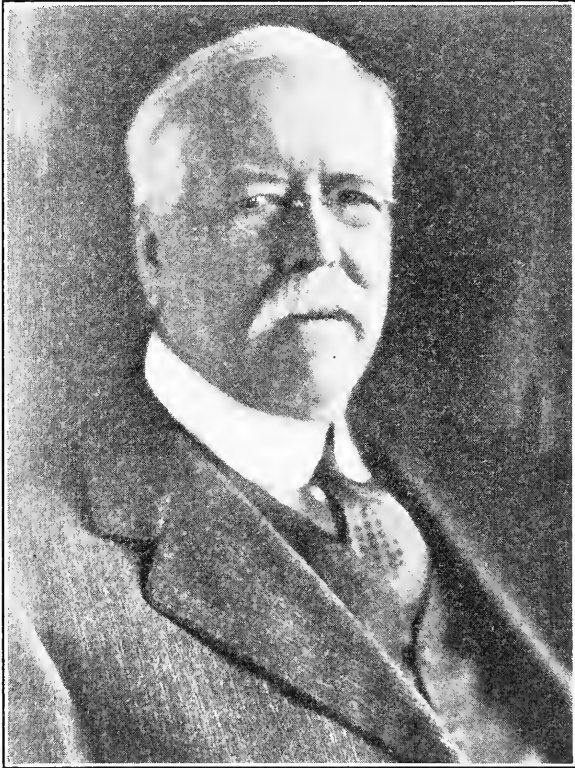

The Librarian is glad to be of assistance to visitors, and the Library is open on weekdays from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. and on Saturdays, 9 A. M. to 12 noon. For the benefit of members who are employed during the day and who would like to use the Library in the evening, appointments may be made with the Librarian to have the Library opened one evening a week.

The Committee published a complete catalog early last year which lists the 2,800 volumes then in the Library, and a copy of this catalog may be obtained upon application to the Librarian. This publication cost practically half of the Committee's entire appropriation for new books for the year, but it was thought a necessary expenditure, and the Committee brings to the attention of the members that by keeping the catalog and the accessions as published in the YEAR BOOK each year they may have a complete record of the books in the Library. At the end of 1931 the total number of volumes was over 3,000.

GARDEN DAYS

In 1931 members had the privilege of visiting on eleven Saturdays of the spring, early summer and autumn fifty-seven lovely and varied gardens in Philadelphia suburbs. The Garden Days were presented under the auspices of the School of Horticulture for Women at Ambler, Pa., with this Society a co-operating agency.

For several years both the School and the Society conducted separate series of Garden Days, but finally, in order to avoid duplication and for other good reasons, it was considered wise for the Society to give up the Days and to co-operate in those of the School. The School conducts the series in order to raise money for current expenses, and the Days are an important source of revenue, and the Society, therefore, contributes to the School for this privilege.

CONSULTANT IN HORTICULTURE

Mr. David Rust held office hours each Monday last January and February and was available for consultation on others days by appointment. During the year he visited ninety-two gardens of members and has listed the subjects about which he was most often consulted as follows, arranging them according to the frequency of the inquiries:

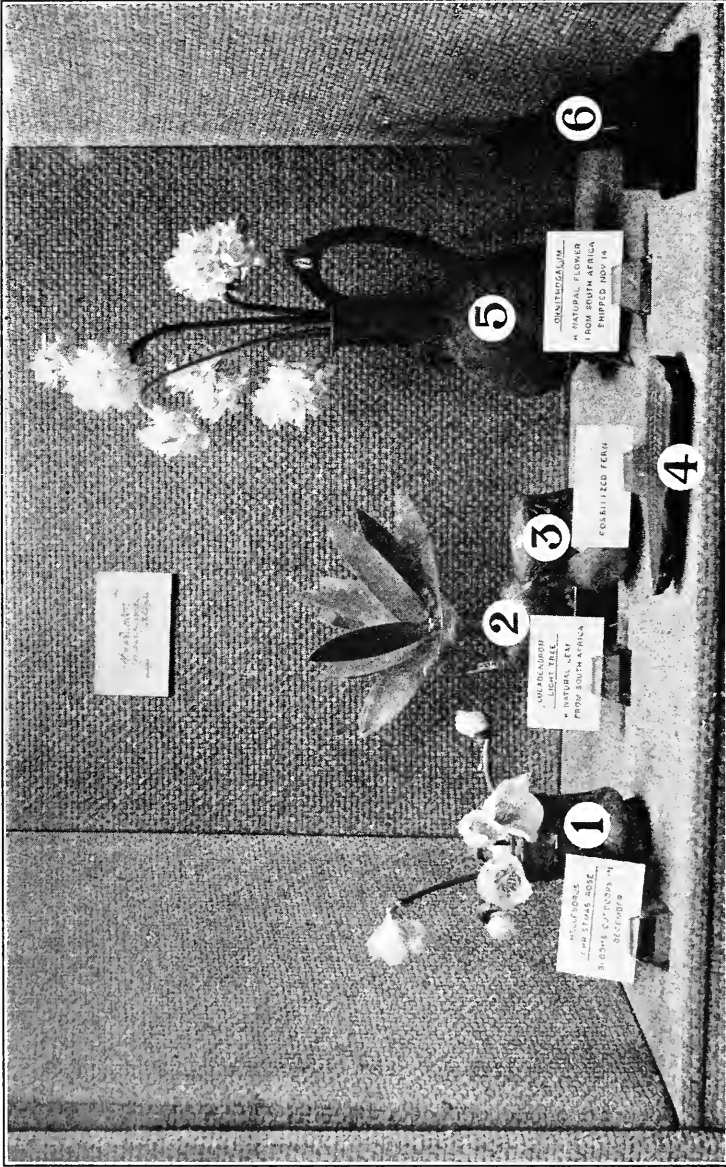

Group One	Group Two
Treatment of Lawns	Moving of Trees
Planting of Perennials	Location and Planting:
Treatment of Outdoor Roses	Rock Gardens
Spraying	Vegetable Gardens
Planting of Evergreens	Treatment of Orchards
Pruning	Stepping Stone Walks
Treatment of Rhododendrons	Wall Gardens
Plants for Shady Places	Bulb Gardens
Japanese Beetle	Asparagus Beds
Judging Shows	Pools
Talks Before Garden Clubs	Planting on old places
Treatment of Box

In addition to visiting gardens and holding office consultations, Mr. Rust has given eleven talks to garden organizations and has judged at sixteen flower shows.

(Mr. Rust is at the service of all members and is glad to visit gardens in order to advise about garden problems or to be consulted at the office. The only charge is for his actual traveling expenses when he goes to gardens.)

EDITOR'S NOTES

Mrs. Bernard T. Converse describes her woodland garden as follows: "Last summer we decided to make a woodland park out of a bare and neglected patch of ground adjoining a neighboring woods. Native rhododendrons, azalea and laurel, large rocks hauled from a farm and old logs have entirely transformed the spot; but the most successful part of the planting was the ground cover we selected, which consisted of Galax aphylla, with very ornamental bronze and green leaves; Gaultheria procumbens, wintergreen, which keeps its red berries all winter; Shortia galacifolia, with evergreen leaves, and fine for shade spots; Asarum shuttleworth, mottled wild ginger, with large heart-shaped green leaves. It was a fascinating undertaking, not expensive, and the birds have taken it as a sanctuary."

INTERESTING DISPLAY IN SPECIAL "LITTLE WINDOW" OF H. H. BATTLES

One of our Life Members, Mr. Henry H. Battles, has very kindly allowed us to publish the picture on the opposite page. It is a privilege for the public to see these rare flowers displayed with the interesting antique objects shown in the photograph. The numbers on the photograph represent the following:

1. Antique Roman drinking cup. Second century B. C.
2. Leucadendron leaves from South Africa in Roman glass pitcher, found near Nazareth.
3. Antique glass urn, found near Nazareth. Third century B. C.
4. Fossilized fern embedded in rock.
5. Chincerichee flowers in antique jug from Cyprus. Middle Bronze Age, 2000 to 1500 B. C.
6. Egyptian bronze sacred cat, found near Assuan. 1500 B. C.

The Chincerichee flowers were grown in Africa and shipped to this country on November 14, 1931, via London. They still were in good condition on January 15th. This wonderful keeping quality has few if any parallels.

Ornithogalum lacteum (the Chincerichee) is a famous South African plant related to the well-known Star of Bethlehem. Dr. David Griffiths, of the United States Department of Agriculture, is making an effort to establish it in the United States.

All the available material is from imported seed. The seed germinates readily if sown in the spring, and the plants will develop during summer, but cannot endure a hard frost. The Chincerichee has bloomed profusely the second year in unheated greenhouses in California and at Washington, D. C. Full flowering occurs the third year.

The plants are easily forced in a greenhouse. Potted in November they will flower by Easter. At the Arlington Farm, Rosslyn, Va., they began blooming in March and continued until the middle of May. The plants mature about the middle of June, when the bulbs may be tried off and stored until October, when they may be potted up again. Dr. Griffiths is endeavoring to reverse the season of the plants so they will flower in beds and borders in the garden.

Under conditions which are adverse to the welfare of the plants, such as maturity in wet weather, bulblet formation may occur from any portion of the plant that may be kept moist and poorly aerated. The inside of the leaf sheet or the blade of the leaf itself may be covered with bulblets or they may appear on the flower scapes or in the axils of the floral pedicels.

It is hoped the Chincerichees may become established in this country. They may become inured to the Northern Hemisphere seasons so we may have them in bloom in summer and autumn in the East.

Miss Mary Evans recommends a neat iron garden stake and embossed plant label which does not rust or twist. These are made by Mr. Hunter Filbert, of Holmes, Pa., and may be seen with other stakes at the office of the Society.

Mrs. Charles A. Fife writes us: "I have had great success with trillium in my city garden and have had some plants for seven years. I seem to have just the spot they like—by the porch, very protected, and where the sun scarcely touches them at all. I planted these in wood soil, and since I have been using about one-half inch of peat moss they have flourished more than ever. I dig this in about twice a year. I did try a little fertilizer called Sacco, but very little, and I do not know really whether that was safe or not, but the trilliums were unusually large last year under it. Lime must never go near them. Trilliums are queer, temperamental things, I find. I had some by the porch and planted among ferns that always did well. I had some not ten feet from them by a high fence, where the sun came a little more, and they grew smaller and smaller and were pining away when I moved them back to the porch garden bed and they immediately improved."

Mrs. John H. Halford writes of her success with the following, which she grows in her woods near Norristown, Pa.: "Erythronium—Dog Tooth Violet. New introduction from the Rocky Mountain region—easy culture, perfectly hardy in East. Flowers larger than native eastern species. A variety of colors. Shade-loving plants, light gritty soil preferred."

Mrs. J. Norman Henry spent last summer plant collecting in the "Blind Spot" of Canada. Much of the nine hundred miles with pack horses was through unmapped, unexplored country. Mrs. Henry made a herbarium collection for the Royal Botanic Garden, Edinburgh, and also for the Academy of Natural Sciences, Philadelphia. She gave the Royal Botanic Garden a collection of native seeds and brought home a number of interesting plants for her experimental garden in Gladwyne.

Mrs. G. E. Landt, of Norristown, contributes the following interesting information: "The dwarf Mertensias—Alpine Bluebells—two to six inches in height, with flower clusters of intense azure blue, are among our beautiful native alpiners. Together with the Alpine Polemonium, they furnish the dazzling blues of the Alpine turf. They are not difficult in cultivation; their roots may be moved when dormant or they may be grown from seed. We have had the glories of Polemonium confertum and viscosum presented in photograph and prose by our alpine enthusiasts. The Mertensias equal these in loveliness and charm."

Mrs. Paul Lewis, an enthusiast in the botanical world, writes of the beautiful Gentian found in the woods on the farm of Mrs. Powell, also one of the members of the Society. "The most beautiful member of the Gentian family, the Fringed Blue Gentian (Gentiana crinata), has been discovered by Mrs. Humbert Borton Powell on her farm, Willowdale Farm, near Devon. Mrs. Powell found it blooming near her swimming pool. It is a biennial plant and had not been seen on the farm since the Powells moved there about three years ago. Whether the plant came from seeds scattered by a well-wisher or whether it was native, Mrs. Powell does not know; but anyway she has the lovely Blue Gentian, with nearby Ladies Tresses (Spiranthes gracilis) and Bottle Gentian (Gentiana andrewsii).”

Miss Frances Edge McIlvaine, author of garden books, and a worker in her own lovely garden in Downingtown, suggests the following shrubs for winter bloom: “For those who like fragrance from their gardens, even in winter, plant Lonicera fragrantissima and Meratia præcox, the ‘winter sweet.’ The Lonicera is a shrub-like honeysuckle, and neither plant is especially ornamental, nor do they need shelter. A sunny place will bring out their blossoms quite as well as against a wall, which should be saved for some more tender thing.”

Miss Florence D. Sallade recommends the following, which she has proved to be successful in her Norristown garden. “Baptisia will form a shrub-like plant and flower profusely in a damp, sunny location, but resents being transplanted frequently. I found a flour measure spoon with a short wooden handle at the ten-cent store, and it is wonderful to use in potting seedlings with fine soil. I just could not resist writing about it.”

Mrs. C. C. Zantzinger, Chairman, reports the completion of the plans to plant red oak trees on City Line between the Schuylkill River Bridge and Monument Avenue, Philadelphia. The planting is being done as part of the George Washington Bicentennial Tree-Planting Program of the Garden Club Federation of Pennsylvania. The Garden Club of Philadelphia, the Gardeners, the Four Counties Garden Club, the Weeders and the Girl Scouts of Philadelphia are taking a prominent part in this fine piece of work undertaken by the Federation.

NOTE.—The Society is greatly interested in the Washington Bicentennial Celebration plans, and particularly in the movement to mark the anniversary by planting trees. Although as an organization it is not sponsoring any particular program, many members are doing valuable work on special committees that are engaged in the planting of shade, roadside and other memorial trees, forest planting, town forests and Arbor Day exercises.

Miss Mary Evans, who edited the 1931 YEAR BOOK, has also edited the current publication. She will be glad to receive gardening items of interest from members, and they may be sent to her at any time in care of the Society.

DAFFODILS AT "RONAELE MANOR"
Estate of MR. AND MRS. FITZ EUGENE DIXON
Elkins Park, Pa.
Awarded Gold Medal in 1931

IN APPRECIATION

In addition to the valuable and interesting books which are noted in the report of the Library Committee and the prizes for flower shows which are mentioned under Exhibition Awards, we are happy to announce the following gifts to the Society during 1931—Cash contribution to the Library Endowment Fund by Mrs. Mary C. Pugh, of Bryn Mawr, Pa. Framed plan of the original planting of Washington Square, Philadelphia, Pa. (at least 100 years old), presented by Mrs. W. Moylan Lansdale and Miss Julia Binney, St. Davids, Pa. Nursery list of Bernard McMahon (framed), Philadelphia, Pa., published about 1800, presented by Mr. E. C. Vick, of Newark, N. J.

Flowers for the Board Room and offices given by Mr. W. Atlee Burpee, Jr., Mr. Fitz Eugene Dixon, Mr. George L. Farnum, Mrs. John W. Hutchinson, Mrs. Horatio Gates Lloyd, Mrs. Thomas Newhall, Mrs. C. J. Orth, Mr. S. S. Pennock, Mr. W. H. Ritter, the School of Horticulture, Mrs. Arthur H. Scott, Mr. C. F. C. Stout, Mrs. Edgar T. Wherry, Mr. John C. Wister.

The Society is particularly grateful to Mrs. Alice Cope Rehfuss, one of our members and a granddaughter of Caleb Cope, President from 1842 to 1851, for the cover design of the current YEAR BOOK and for the designs which head the monthly Gardening Calendars in the book.

The Society expresses its appreciation to the Public Ledger for its interest in our work and to the Garden Editor, Dr. Jane Leslie Kift, for her helpful co-operation.

THE JOHN BARTRAM CELEBRATION

(Reprinted through the courtesy of the editor of the Bulletin of The Garden Club of America)

“The Two Hundredth Anniversary of the Founding of the First Botanic Garden in the American Colonies by John Bartram” —to quote from the invitation, was celebrated in Philadelphia on June 5 and 6, 1931, by The John Bartram Association, of which Mrs. Bayard Henry is President. Acting as hosts with the Bartram Association were the Academy of Natural Sciences, the Philosophical Society and The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, three of the oldest societies in the city. Invitations had been sent to important societies and individuals here and abroad with botanical interests, and many representatives attended.

The first meeting was held at the Academy of Natural Sciences and was presided over by Mr. Effingham Morris and Mr. C. Frederick C. Stout. Dr. Rodney True, Professor of Botany in the University of Pennsylvania, who has made a great study of the life of the first important botanists of America, gave a distinguished address on “John Bartram’s Life and Botanical Explorations.” Dr. Witmer Stone, Vice-President of the Academy, was to have spoken on the “Work of William, Son of John Bartram,” but, unfortunately, illness prevented and his paper was read by Dr. Francis Harper, of the staff of Biological Abstracts. Dr. John Hendley Barnhart, Bibliographer of the New York Botanical Garden, spoke on the “Significance of John Bartram’s Work to Botanical and Horticultural Knowledge,” linking the work of the past with the developments of today.

In the hall of the Academy, where the meeting was held, Mrs. Edward M. Cheston had arranged some cases filled with most interesting papers, books and articles pertaining to John Bartram, his work and his contemporaries. There were also drawings and manuscripts of his son, William, who was a botanical artist and writer of more than usual talent. The collecting of this material had taken much research and the exercise of a certain amount of persuasion and tact to convince the various societies, descendants and collectors that they wanted to lend their treasures. The co-operation of the British Museum had been most helpful, and through Dr. Ramsbottom and Mr. A. W. Exell, Keeper and Under-keeper of Botany there, nine photographs of John Bartram’s Herbarium specimens, with his memorandum that had been originally sent to Peter Colinson, were sent to Mrs. Cheston. Reproductions of William Bartram’s drawings in the Museum and copies of his paintings were also sent and permission given to print two of seven unpublished letters of Dr. John Fothergill in the Catalogue of the Exhibit—most delightful reading they are.

John Bartram’s Bible, much worn, a fork he carried on his expeditions, a bell he used to tie on his horse when it grazed, a teacup and spoon from a set given Mrs. Ann Bartram by Mrs. Franklin, and a vaccination box he used to aid his neighbors were among the more personal articles. A small portrait by Charles Wilson Peale, a manuscript Journal of 1765, and copies of letters he sent to Collinson, Peter Miller, and Sir Hans Sloane were placed with books presented to the American student by the English friends who were interested in the flora of the new country. The Herbal of John Parkinson, the Garden Dictionary of Philip Miller, Bartram's two books, were included. The silver cup, presented by Sir Hans Sloane in 1742 in token of his appreciation of Bartram's services to the gardens of England, a gold medal, sent him by a group of gentlemen at Edinborough—1772, gave evidence of honors. Quite the most touching of all was the magnifying glass used at his work when his eyesight failed.

Refreshments were served in the library of the Academy and later a dinner was given at the historic Belmont Mansion in Fairmount Park. This was presided over by Mr. John C. Wister, Vice-President of the Bartram Association. A few informal speeches were made by representatives of other societies, telegrams of greeting were read and Mrs. Henry outlined some of the purposes of the Bartram Association.

On Saturday morning the visitors were scattered—some went to educational institutions, some visited gardens outside the city and others were taken to see some of the historic houses that form a chain through Fairmount Park. They all assembled at Strawberry Mansion for an informal luncheon, given by Miss Sophy Cadwallader and Mrs. J. Willis Martin. This was followed by a visit to Horticultural Hall, the largest greenhouse in this country, built for the Centennial and containing much fine botanical material—Washington's Palm being part of it. From the Hall the buses went to John Bartram's old farm, where he established his botanical garden and where his family lived for so many years. The quaint old gray house that Bartram built has been carefully restored by the Bartram Association, who rescued it from a sad state of neglect. With the co-operation of the City Park Association, much has been done to restore the grounds and to replace such trees and shrubs as have died by the same species. Many very fine old trees still exist, and the grounds stretching down to the Schuylkill are still very beautiful, and on this lovely June afternoon gave a most suggestive picture of its past. Tea was served outside, and members of the Association were present to show the strangers the house and grounds.

GARDENS—A COMMUNITY ASSET

(Abstract of an Illustrated Lecture presented before the Society on February 6, 1932)

By JOHN C. WISTER, Secretary

Interest in gardens and love of plants are both very ancient. References to them may be found in the oldest of writings. Indeed, it may have been the first chapter of Genesis that inspired Bacon to say, "God Almighty first planted a garden."

Most of us will agree with Bacon that a garden is the purest of human pleasures. We know that it is an excellent hobby for the individual, that it encourages outdoor life, aids health and brings a greater reverence for beauty and for the miracles of nature. A few of us may even be heretical enough to think that in these respects it is superior to golf!

And just as we believe gardening benefits the individual, so do most of us agree that the interest in gardens makes the home and its surroundings more attractive. Those who love gardens plant fine trees, which not only add beauty to the house, but also bring grateful shade in hot weather and protection from cold north winds in winter.

It is not, however, my intention to dwell on these well-known matters. I am taking for granted the benefits to the individual and the beauty and utility of the individual flower, vegetable and fruit garden. It is my purpose to emphasize instead what gardens have done in the past, are doing now, and can do in the future to make our countryside, our villages, our towns and our cities better places to live in. I wish to show what an enormous asset gardens have been to our communities and how, through the increased present-day interest in gardens, the entire future development of our country may be influenced.

First, let us see what planting by individuals has done for the community. Can you visualize what America would be like without gardens? Can you picture villages, towns, cities of bleak barren houses without trees, shrubs, flowers and grass around them? Think of the old main street of a frontier mining town. Do you want to live in it?

We in the older settled sections of the country find it difficult to picture these things because we have always been accustomed to trees, shrubs, flowers and grass. The growth in civic consciousness, in civic pride and in public spirit that has come with the growth in gardening, and largely because of the growth in gardening, we have taken for granted, too. There were enough Philadelphians interested in plants to warrant the organization of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society in 1827. The Society brought together persons interested in various types of plants. Fruit culture held the center of the stage at first, and later came interest in hard-wooded greenhouse plants like camellias and azaleas. During the past half century interest in these has dwindled. Greenhouses have become less popular with amateurs and now hardy plants are the most important.

The last ten or twenty years has seen a great change in American gardening. A wave of enthusiasm has spread over the country, brought about chiefly by gardeners who have preached the use of hardy flowers. Hardy flowering shrubs and herbaceous plants can be grown in the smallest backyard with little care, and they are inexpensive to purchase, easy to plant and give a long season of bloom. It was the interest in hardy plants that brought about the organization of the modern garden clubs. These at first confined themselves entirely to instructing their own members in practical gardening. But as the clubs progressed they speedily took on certain civic aspects. New members, who had been helped by the knowledge and enthusiasm of the founders, became missionaries, telling their neighbors of the joys of gardens and neglecting as much as possible to mention the troubles that went with the joys! Wherever one person has started a good garden, the neighbors have become ashamed that their places look shabby and have fixed them up also. It has happened often that entire city blocks have been changed by the starting of a garden in one backyard and having this garden spread from yard to yard and block to block. Furthermore, the good gardener soon begins to cast a very critical eye upon the condition of the parks or in some cases upon the lack of parks. Having enjoyed his plants on a small piece of ground, he is anxious to see other plants which can be grown only in bigger places. He wishes to beautify his city so that he can enjoy it more.

In my lecture trips across the country I have visited many small cities where new parks have been started under the inspiration of garden clubs or where existing parks have been greatly improved. I have visited many places where garden clubs have established plantings of irises, peonies, roses, tulips, lilacs or other plants in the public parks. I know many gardeners who regularly give their surplus of rare plants to the park commission to plant where all may enjoy them.

So many persons have done this that this statement also seems a commonplace. But think for a minute of the spirit of gardeners a few centuries ago and note the contrast. When the tuberose, a Mexican plant, was first taken to Europe, it was kept in a church garden, and the priests did not part with a single bulb for sixty-four years. Later, when a double tuberose was raised in Holland, its owner, equally selfish, desired to be the only possessor of what he considered the finest plant in the world. Therefore, after he had propagated all the bulbs he needed for his own garden, he annually caused every surplus bulb to be cut in pieces and destroyed, so that no one else might enjoy it. A certain new dahlia was kept in a French monastery garden for nearly forty years in the same way. A Belgian amateur in 1836 developed from seed a very beautiful double tree peony, which, in a burst of patriotic pride, he called Gloria Belgarum. But his curious brand of patriotism seemed to require that he would not show it to any but his most intimate friends. He would not allow anyone to have seeds or cuttings from it. For over thirty years he kept the original plants in his garden, guarded by huge dogs, so that no one could get in to get a piece of these plants. His interest was the totally selfish miserly interest of possession. Today people enjoy giving pleasure to others. It is the characteristic habit of American gardeners to give cuttings and seeds of their choicest plants to their friends. They make every effort to have propagated worthy plants that may have originated in their gardens. They invite people into their gardens to enjoy the flowers of the different seasons. Think, for instance, of Mr. Pierre S. duPont, who has opened his magnificent greenhouses to the public so that all may enjoy his rare plants.

An interest in orderly arrangement comes soon from gardening. No sensible gardener plants a rose bush in a position where he knows that tomorrow he is going to put in a pine tree, but we all build our cities without plans and allow the regions around the city to grow up helter-skelter with factories and slums on areas that should be kept for beautiful parks or private grounds. Architects and engineers have for years urged the need of city and community planning, but today they are being backed up by thousands of ordinary citizens whose interest in civic welfare has grown from their interest in their own gardens.

Let me now take up the second part of my subject and show you how public gardens are a community asset. Public parks and gardens can benefit the community in a number of different ways. By making the city more attractive they bring a desirable type of citizens. European cities like Paris, Berlin, Vienna, Rome and Madrid have long spent time and effort to attract both citizens and visitors by their attractive parks and boulevards in addition to their existing historical and architectural monuments. Our most beautiful city, Washington, in addition to its interest as a Government center, attracts hundreds of thousands of visitors each spring to see its cherry blossoms. Philadelphia, in celebrating the Centennial in 1876, built in addition to its temporary buildings our great Horticultural Hall, which was the wonder of its time and still attracts thousands of visitors yearly.

I wish to mention briefly a few of the more important parks where fine plants are grown. The oldest and best known plant collection in America is the Arnold Arboretum near Boston, founded in 1873; on its 265 acres are today growing over 6,500 species of plants in over 300 genera. It was the wish of the founder that every tree and shrub capable of enduring the New England climate should be planted there, and this ideal has been very nearly realized. It seems almost impossible to believe that one of its explorers, the late Ernest H. Wilson, brought to New England more new kinds of hardy trees and shrubs than were growing there naturally. The list of plants which the Arboretum has introduced from foreign countries is long and includes such well-known favorites as the Japanese barberry and the white Japanese clematis. There is a constant succession of bloom of trees and shrubs from early April into midsummer, and from then there come the beautiful colors of autumn foliage and fruit. Even when the snow is on the ground one can see flowers, for the Japanese witch hazel blooms in February with the thermometer near the zero mark. Many plants which New England gardeners fifty years ago considered too tender to use are today flourishing in the most exposed situations, swept by the coldest winter winds. If a few garden-loving people made possible the Arnold Arboretum, it is also true to state that today the Arnold Arboretum, through the work of its great director, the late Professor Charles S. Sargent, has made possible thousands of garden-loving citizens within a great radius around Boston. The Arboretum is visited by about a million people a year, and Professor Sargent's influence and the influence of Frederick Law Olmsted, Sr., and Charles Eliot, who designed the Arboretum, and the Boston Metropolitan Park system can be noticed by any motorist as he nears Boston. The gardens are better planned and better kept. There is a greater variety of trees and shrubs and flowering plants to be seen within thirty or forty miles of Boston than in any other American community that I have ever visited, and this in spite of the fact that the new England climate is severe and prevents the growth of many plants which are available to us who live further south.

There are many newer public plantings in various parts of New England. On the reservation of the Society for the Protection of New Hampshire Forests at Lost River, N. H., a lovely wild garden has been made by cutting out overhanging trees to give the existing wild flowers a chance to increase. Plants from other parts of the State have been brought in from time to time and planted on the natural rock slope going down to the stream—all plants being carefully labeled. The Lost River Reservation is visited by about 50,000 people a year, and many of them have visited this wild flower garden and made notes of the names of the various flowers.

In Springfield, Mass., the superintendent of Forest Park has put in magnificent plantings of rhododendrons and iris, so that many visitors are attracted in the spring months. A still newer planting of a one-hundred-acre wild garden and arboretum has been recently undertaken on the grounds of the Connecticut College, at New London. The Marsh Botanical Garden at Yale University, New Haven, recently established a display garden of irises, sponsored by the American Iris Society, and these flowers attract many persons who would not ordinarily visit a botanic garden.

The parks and public gardens of Providence, R. I., and Hartford, Conn., have long been famous. The Rose Garden in Elizabeth Park, Hartford, is particularly popular and many thousands of people go there daily during rose season. A few years ago an interested official took the trouble to copy the license numbers of the cars that were parked outside the garden on Sunday. On looking up the residences of owners of these automobiles he found that they represented citizens of every single town and village within a radius of more than one hundred miles of Hartford. Those who go to the Arnold Arboretum have often commented on the fact that it is very rare to enter any of the Arboretum gates without finding parked outside an automobile bearing the license plates of some distant state. I have myself noticed there on various occasions cars from all the other New England States, from New York, Washington, D. C., Ohio, Missouri and Quebec.

Central Park, New York, was one of the first of the great parks of American cities. Its location and the tremendous population that uses it both tend against much display of flowers, but New York has two other splendid public gardens. The New York Botanical Garden in Bronx Park was founded in 1895 and covers about four hundred acres. It is visited by over a million and a half people yearly. The Dutch Bulb Growers' Association has for a number of years believed it good business to give to it annually something like 80,000 tulip bulbs so that tremendous displays of flowers may be seen in the spring. The hard-headed Dutch business man is not going to give bulbs away unless he believes that the persons seeing these flowers will go home more conscious of the beauty of the tulip, so that next year they will want to buy a few bulbs, if only to force in the window of an apartment. At the New York Botanical Garden, also, are to be seen tremendous masses of daffodils naturalized in the grass and in the woods. There is also a great iris garden, a great rose garden, a great lilac garden and great plantings of peonies and other hardy plants and two large greenhouse ranges.

The Brooklyn Botanic Garden was founded in 1910 and has about fifty acres. In its great collections of plants are growing about six thousand species and about fifteen hundred different genera. It has a staff of over fifty people, and over a million people a year visit its great collections of flowering plants, among which irises, water lilies and alpine plants are features.

Each year in March a series of great gardens is built at Grand Central Palace, New York City. Over 100,000 people from all over the country pay admission to see these gardens. If you think flowers do not attract as many visitors as automobile shows or conventions do, try to get a room at a New York hotel that week! The great Philadelphia Show, held at the Commercial Museum, attracts similar crowds here.

Highland Park in Rochester, N. Y., has become so famous that the railroads run special excursions on Sundays so that people in outlying districts may see the lilacs when they are in bloom. Rochester prides itself on being The Flower City, and has long been the home of many nurserymen, florists and seedsmen. Among the most prominent of these a generation or two ago were Elwanger and Barry, who built up one of America's finest nurseries. They were ever public-spirited citizens, and it was their land that the city took to make Highland Park. Here, under the direction of the late John Dunbar, were established great plantings of lilacs, crabapples, hawthornes, peonies and other plants which do so well in that climate. Mr. Dunbar did not stop with plants that flourish in Western New York, but added a great collection of rhododendrons and azaleas, which ordinarily cannot be grown in that section on account of the lime in the soil. He was one of the first who took the trouble to take out the natural soil and replace it with acid soil from the woods in order to grow these beautiful plants. The fame of Rochester and its parks is nation wide, and certainly every cent that has been spent on Highland Park and the other parks might be regarded as good advertising, in the fame that it brings to its city.

Several cities have followed Philadelphia's lead and built great greenhouses. The one in Garfield Park, Chicago, is particularly fine. But it is in St. Louis that the greatest combination of indoor and outdoor gardening is to be found. What is now the Missouri Botanical Garden was for many years the private estate of Mr. Henry Shaw and at his death was left to trustees to be managed for the benefit of the public. The increasing interest that the public feels for the garden is shown from the attendance statistics, which in the last ten years have increased from a comparatively few thousand to four hundred thousand yearly. In addition to Mr. Shaw's garden, which is now in the city limits of St. Louis, a tract of over twelve hundred acres has recently been purchased about forty miles from the city, and the planting has been begun there that will undoubtedly be the largest of its kind in the world. This new tract of land has, of course, not yet been developed, and any planting on it is small and immature and will not be of great interest to the public for another generation, but the garden in St. Louis has become important in the life of the city, and even the ordinary sightseeing buses stop there as they drive their visitors through the various points of interest. In the great greenhouses many tropical plants are arranged in natural surroundings and are most effective. The center of one large house is given up to a continuous flower show, the exhibits varying with the different seasons of the year. I was interested particularly in two typical "backyards" about thirty feet square. One of these, labeled "Before," is a place where tin cans grow in ashes and waste. It is surrounded by a dilapidated fence, against which lean bits of old lumber and stovepipes and the whole place is a mass of weeds. Next to it is another plot of the same size, labeled "After." It is surrounded by a neatly painted fence with a little lawn in the center and a border of a few inexpensive and generally known flowers, such as zinnias or petunias. The difference between this "before" and "after" treatment is astounding. I have no doubt that those St. Louis people who have seen this have gone home and changed their backyards so that they look like "after" and not "before." The interest at the Missouri Botanical Garden in proper planting of a small space is so great that certain sections are given over to demonstrations of various hedge plants and various flowering shrubs that can be had very cheaply and which grow well in that climate.

Like St. Louis, Kansas City has fine boulevards and parks, but its greatest and finest park area is private, not public, and is controlled by a real estate firm, the J. C. Nichols Company. For over twenty-five years this company has planned a great region of several thousand acres in such a way that the roads and houses seem to blend into one great big park, with fine trees and shrubs and lawns and gardens. Planned long in advance, carefully zoned and restricted, this area is not only one where the individual may live without fear of encroachment of the city, but is a great and permanent asset to its city.

To show that parks and gardens are not confined to warm, mild climates, it is well to call attention to the public park system of one of our coldest cities—Duluth. The park extends for miles along the lake front, which reminds the easterner of parts of the Maine coast. In that climate toboggan slides are one of the most popular park features! The spring is so late that the annual peony show is held about the Fourth of July!

During the administration of President Taft the city of Tokio presented to the city of Washington a large quantity of Japanese flowering cherries. Today there are few parts of the country that have not heard of the beauty of Washington in cherry blossom time. Great railroads run special excursions to Washington and advertise in the papers of distant cities the fact that the cherry blossoms are open. Often these advertisements are accompanied by pictures showing the blossoms. Great railroads are not in business for the enjoyment of beauty, but they see in these flowers a chance to increase their business by encouraging people to travel to Washington at that season. A year or two ago one of the great steamship companies evidently noticed that people were beginning to be interested in flowers as well as automobile shows and moving pictures, and boldly advertised special excursions from New York to Charleston at the time when azaleas were in bloom. This certainly could not have happened ten or twenty years ago. The three great azalea gardens in Charleston are private, but are opened to the public upon payment of a small admission fee. I understand that the money received from these admissions is sufficient to pay for the upkeep of the gardens, which otherwise might have been abandoned by their owners.

Magnolia Gardens, the best known of the three, is a wooded estate with many winding walks bordered with azaleas of great size. The gray moss hanging from the trees is reflected in the black waters of the many small lagoons. At Middleton Place the plantings are more open and formal and there are fine stretches of lawn, with views down the river. The azaleas here, for the most part, are not as large as those at Magnolia Gardens, but, being more in the open, are often more compact and more covered with bloom. The color range also is much greater. The Cypress Gardens have only recently been opened to the public. A fresh water lake on a former rice plantation was here abandoned to nature more than a century ago and a great water forest of cypress trees has grown up. Paths and small canals have been constructed and along these azaleas and other flowers have been planted in great quantities, making a wilderness of bloom in the spring months.

Golden Gate Park in San Francisco is one of the most beautiful American parks. It was made by a brave man who dared to plant trees on what was practically desert. He was laughed at for years for thinking that anything would grow in such an exposed situation, but today trees fifty or more feet high and beautiful flowering shrubs of all kinds show that he has had the last laugh on the people who said it could not be done. California is a land of wonderful gardens, and in most cases these gardens have been developed on pieces of ground that were desert before water was brought in. In the case of Golden Gate Park, the situation was made still more difficult by strong winds coming in from the Pacific, which made the growth of trees difficult.

A beautiful park was created by the city of San Diego as a setting for its famous Panama-Pacific Exposition in 1915. This exposition was different from any ever held before, in that most of the buildings were planned to be permanent and are now used as museums. To create quickly a great park from practically desert land was a most expensive undertaking which many people must have regretted. The exposition was an artistic triumph, but certainly not a financial one; only fifteen years later did the city begin to realize the great permanent asset it had in its great park.

A New York millionaire, the late Col. William Boyce Thompson, who endowed The Boyce Thompson Institute at Yonkers, evidently noted the few plants grown near his winter home in Superior, Ariz. In 1924 he founded an arboretum containing two thousand acres of wild land, ranging from river valley to a mountain peak. About six thousand species of plants have already been planted here, which seems an amazing number when the lack of rainfall is remembered. Part of the valley planting has, of course, been put under irrigation, but most of the land is in its natural dry condition, and only species of plants that can live and flourish with the minimum of water are used. It is reported that even in this out-of-the-way place, and with the planting so new, about five thousand visitors come there every year. This arboretum has had only a few years to test plants, but already people are coming out from Phoenix, sixty miles away, to see the directors and find out what plants are recommended for backyard planting.

The region around Philadelphia has been one long favored by luxurious growth of native trees and shrubs. It was the home over two hundred years ago of the first botanic garden of America—the John Bartram Garden on the banks of the Schuylkill. Bartram's example was followed by many people, and among old arboreta which are famous for their fine trees are the Pierce Arboretum, now the property of Mr. Pierre S. duPont; the Evans Arboretum, now the property of Mr. W. Hinckle Smith, and the Marshall Arboretum near West Chester. An old arboretum, now long neglected, was that planted by the Painter brothers near Lima, Pa., about a hundred years ago. They were botanists and planted a great number of fine trees, many of which have survived the fifty years of neglect which have passed since the two Painter brothers died. Notable here are such fine trees as the redwood and giant Sequoia and a magnificent specimen of cedar of Lebanon, which is ten feet six inches in circumference. Recent events lead to the belief that this arboretum will be preserved for the public. The great collection of plants, brought together by Mr. John T. Morris at Compton, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, has not been open to the public, although many interested persons have from time to time been given permission to visit it. By the will of Miss Lydia T. Morris, who died recently, this estate of 170 acres will be preserved under the supervision of the Botanical Department of the University of Pennsylvania. Thus Philadelphia gardeners are again fortunate in receiving another public garden where they may study plants. The beauty of Fairmount Park has always been a matter of pride to them; but it has been a regret to many that the fine collection of tropical plants in Horticultural Hall has not a more practical counterpart in a carefully labeled collection of hardy plants, which all might visit either for enjoyment or scientific study. I have been one of many Philadelphia gardeners who have felt forced to visit Washington, Rochester, Boston, Hartford and New York to study cherries, lilacs, azaleas, rhododendrons, crabapples, hawthornes, roses, daffodils, tulips, irises, peonies and other hardy flowers.

The late Arthur Hoyt Scott, of Media, who for a time served both the American Peony Society and the American Iris Society in the capacity of treasurer, was a most enthusiastic grower of lilacs, peonies, irises, daffodils, chrysanthemums and other hardy flowers. He had long felt the need of a public garden near Philadelphia where persons who could not visit distant cities might study hardy plants suitable for small gardens. A Swarthmore graduate, he wished to beautify its campus by establishing such a garden there. His early and tragic death prevented this, but in his memory The Arthur Hoyt Scott Horticultural Foundation has now been established at Swarthmore. It has been my privilege to act as Director of this Foundation for the past two years and to work with the college authorities in planting a series of demonstration collections of plants that Mr. Scott loved. We hope to plant on the Swarthmore campus not so much rare botanical specimens as representative groups of trees, shrubs and flowers which can be recommended for planting in small gardens in the vicinity of Philadelphia. Such flowering trees as magnolias, dogwoods, Japanese cherries, flowering peaches, flowering plums, flowering crabapples and hawthornes will have prominent places. Among the flowering shrubs planted will be the finer varieties of lilacs, azaleas, rhododendrons, mock-oranges, bush honeysuckles and other well-known but worthy plants for ordinary planting. Herbaceous plants will be grown only in small quantities, but they will include named collections of early spring bulbs, followed by daffodils, tulips, irises, peonies and ending with chrysanthemums. It is hoped that this planting will do for the beginner and the amateur gardener what the Arnold Arboretum and Missouri Botanical Garden have done for the more advanced gardener, and that it will be a constant demonstration to the people of the neighborhood of the possibility of beautifying their grounds by the use of plant material which is not expensive and which is not difficult to grow. In addition, the college woods, extending down the steep hillsides to Crum Creek, will be brought into better condition. Paths will be opened, dead and decayed trees removed and naturalistic underplanting made to show Pennsylvania gardeners how very lovely our native woods can be made with proper treatment.

A good beginning has already been made on this project, which must feel its way slowly for lack of large resources. From Mr. Scott's garden have come twenty-five varieties of lilacs, which are planted along the walk up to the Meeting House. One friend of Mrs. Scott has given a collection of Japanese cherries and another friend a collection of azaleas. The Arboretum of the Westtown School has given some rare conifers, and a nearby garden club three Franklinia trees. Members of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society will be interested to know that the famous collection of peonies and iris of our late President, Mr. James Boyd, has been given by his children to the Scott Foundation. It has been my privilege to give from my garden several rare trees and shrubs that I had raised from seed, given me years ago by Professor Sargent. The Arnold Arboretum has already sent us many kinds of seeds, and Dr. Moore, of the Missouri Botanical Garden, is sending some trees this spring. Next fall we expect to have in bloom a large collection of outdoor chrysanthemums, the gift of the New York Botanical Garden. Two nurseryman interested in the college have sent plants literally by the truckload. I mention a few of these gifts to show how prompt and generous has been the response of gardeners to a new public garden which wishes to serve its community. May I ask all Philadelphia gardeners to come out now and see the small beginning, so that in years to come they may enjoy watching it grow like a great oak from a small acorn. And if you have some rare plant of which you are proud and can spare a layer, a division, some seeds or cuttings, remember that we shall welcome such gifts joyfully, and that we shall try to be worthy of such generosity by growing the plants well and letting all interested persons enjoy them from year to year. I hope our citizens will feel that not only this new garden but all the other fine gardens open to the public around Philadelphia are a great asset to our community and that in addition to giving pleasure to individuals they will in the future prove a business asset in attracting to us far greater numbers of visitors, and perhaps even more desirable ones, than those we missed when Chicago outbid us for the National Convention of the Republican Party!

DEVELOPMENT OF THE DAHLIA IN RECENT YEARS

The first dahlia grown in Europe was grown from seed sent from Mexico to the Abbe Cavanilles, priest and botanist, and curator of the Botanical Gardens in Madrid, and named by him after his friend and fellow-botanist, Andreas Dahl, of Sweden, dahlia pinnata (winged leaved), in 1789. This was a small single flower of a brick red color, of about two inches in diameter, borne on a frail stem and plant, faintly similar to a cosmos in appearance, which, in fact, is a near cousin. The color appears not to have been fixed, and plants grown from seed immediately began to show a considerable variance in color, which gave rise to many disputes during its early existence. If we compare this little two-inch flower with Margaret E. Broomall, a giant white decorative shown at the Atlantic City Flower and Garden Pageant in September, 1930, which measured fifteen inches in diameter and was more than six inches in depth, we at once get a picture which would seem almost verging on the impossible.

This development is of outstanding interest and we know of no other flower in existence today that has shown such progress in size and perfection of both plant and flower, not to mention the really marvelous range of color in so many different shades and tones too wonderful to even attempt to describe, and all this, mind you, in the very short space of time, as science rates time, has occurred in just 141 years.

First, little dahlia pinnata soon gave of itself to help the hybridist, and very shortly double forms appeared. These were developed soon both in England and Holland until the most perfect ball type came into being, and in 1850 to 1855 interest seemed to wane, as the round could get no rounder and a more perfect formal arrangement of petals could not be accomplished. Then in 1870 appeared a tiny ball-shaped blossom, originated by Sieckmann, of Kostritz, which he called pompon. This was undoubtedly developed with much patience and selection, as it remains a true dwarf type today. I shall have occasion to refer to this type later.

In 1872 a collection of plants and roots was sent from Mexico to M. J. T. Van der Berg, of Holland. Among them a rather poor-looking root was planted and when it came to bloom it proved to be a dahlia of new form and type and was named Juarezii, after the then President of Mexico. Nothing like it had ever been seen before and its origin is still a mystery. It bore red flowers of a semi-double form, the petals were pointed and incurved in a most unusual way. This was soon developed into a fully double flower and after further refinement a cactus dahlia was produced and given that name. This is the direct grandparent of the true incurved cactus of today.

Dahlia pinnata possibly developed along lines of evolution and selection to form a perfect ball type. But when the ball dahlia was crossed with this newly developed Juarezii, or its descendants, it was quite a different story, for neither the gradual evolution of Darwin nor the principles of Mendel seemed in any way to apply, and the more recent accepted theory of mutations, or breaks, must be accepted. For from this point on the dahlia seemed to have a new lease on life, one break after another appearing with great persistency, and we have hybrid cactus, semi-cactus, peony flowered and finally the decorative type, all occurring in rapid succession.

These new hybrids soon found their way to California and there, under most favorable conditions of both soil and climate, first the giant California peony dahlias were produced and then soon followed the giant decorative dahlia of today, and in but a short time eastern growers were developing new varieties from this California strain, until now the east and the west are running a close race to see which can produce the greatest number of outstanding dahlias each year. This, however, is not true only in America; England, Holland, in fact, all Europe as well, are producing quite wonderful large flowered varieties. More recently the hill country of India, East Africa, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand have been raising the standard new dahlias, and in many new parts of the Temperate Zone, both north and south, seedlings are being raised and new varieties produced. This is especially true of Australia, where lately most creditable new dahlias have been produced. These have already found their way to England and Holland and have proved most worthy.

Along this road of progress of the modern dahlias certain varieties stand out in our minds like milestones. First came Countess of Lonsdale (English, 1896), straight cactus, the first cactus to have stamina of both plant and flower and still good today. Then F. W. Fellows (Stredwick, 1913), incurved cactus, the first really perfect, fine petaled cactus with flower and stem of equally good substance. Stredwick has done more to develop the true English cactus than any man in its recent development and perfection.

Then appeared from Holland Insulinde (Kriest, 1914), an informal decorative, with flower right on top of the stem, to show what stem really should be. And shortly thereafter appeared Mrs. I. de Ver Warner (Marean, 1920), formal decorative. This, in the minds of most experts, marks a new period in the development of the decorative dahlia, as it had size, form and substance to a degree not seen until then, and it is the parent or grandparent of many outstanding varieties of today. Ambassador (Broomall, 1920), straight cactus, creamy yellow suffused pink, fine type of American cactus, is the outstanding straight cactus and typifies that type. It is the forerunner of many lovely California cactus, a consistent winner at all shows and unexcelled to date.

Then follows Jersey's Beauty (Waite, 1923), formal decorative of a spinal pink color and supremely lovely, not so large as Warner, but of a color and form so perfect that it remains today the leading dahlia in the cut flower market, both in America and Europe. Finally Jane Cowl (Downs, 1927), informal decorative, of a pleasing bronze, buff and gold combination of color. This plant, for sheer consistency of form, stem and plant; for general ruggedness and insect-resisting qualities, has never been equaled, and is the outstanding dahlia of proven worth.

RECENT LARGE FLOWERED DAHLIAS

Having briefly outlined the progress of the dahlia, it is but fitting that a list of the most outstanding varieties of recent date be given, yet we undertake this naming of our favorite dahlias with a degree of hesitancy, knowing that but few could be sufficiently familiar with all the noteworthy introductions to discuss them authoritatively. Mr. Derrill W. Hart, in his "Roll of Honor," published annually in the December issue of the American Home, has listed twenty-six dahlias for 1930 and thirty-four for 1931. Dahlias will not do equally well in different soils and under varying treatment, and the following list must be considered as a very limited selection, and apologies are made for many varieties of possibly equal worth that have been omitted.

RECENT VARIETIES

Kathleen Norris (Fisher and Masson), Monmouth Champion (Kemp), Jane Cowl (Downs), Eliza London Shepherd (Peacock), Bagdad (Redfern), F. W. Butler (Bessie Boston), The World (Dahliadel), American Triumph (American Dahlia Farms), Omar Khayyam (Stout), Jean Trimbee (Trimbee-Waite), Thomas A. Edison (Dahliadel), Treasure Island (Dahliadel).

1930 VARIETIES

Frau O. Bracht (Berger), Dwight W. Morrow (Dahliadel), Andrea Ericson (Fisher and Masson), Eagle Rock Fantasy (Broomall-Success).

1931 VARIETIES

Myra Howard (Glutzbeck-Dahliadel), informal decorative, ochraceous orange, winner of the American Home Achievement Medal at New York Show, September, 1931. American Legion (American Dahlia Farms), informal decorative, pale primrose yellow, achievement medal this year at Atlantic City and medal at Baltimore. Girl of Hillcrest (Scott-Kemp), informal decorative, apricot buff, medal at Baltimore. We saw this growing at Storrs and predict a bright future for it. Originated in West Virginia. Murphy's Masterpiece (Murphy-Success), informal decorative, red shaded towards garnet. Highly recommended by its introducer, Mr. Reed, and also Mr. Hart. Satan (Ballay), semi-cactus, flaming red. An outstanding western variety. Maryland's Glory (Maryland Dahlia Gardens), formal decorative, deep American beauty red. Winner at Atlantic City. A very pleasing color. Maryland Orange (Maryland Dahlia Gardens), semi-cactus, orange tones. We saw this win at Camden. It is one of the most pleasing we saw this year. Mary Ellen (Lord Baltimore Gardens), informal decorative. Margaret E. Broomall (Broomall-Success), formal decorative, white. This seemed to all who have seen it growing in the field to be the superlative dahlia to date; imagine a rugged, yet not ungraceful plant of a little over six feet in height, bearing huge, massive flowers on strong, woody stems, held free and well above the foliage, the flowers quite graceful for such a massive bloom, measuring thirteen, fourteen and even a few have been fifteen inches in diameter and well over six inches in depth. All experts who have seen this dahlia are unanimous in agreeing that it is supreme in the dahlia world. We saw it growing at Storrs under natural conditions, not fed or forced, or even disbudded, and measured one bloom that was over thirteen inches in diameter and a good six inches in depth. It would be unwise to state that in Margaret E. Broomall we have the largest dahlia that can be produced, but we cannot but feel that this dahlia has reached the ultimate as far as beauty or usefulness is concerned, and that anything larger would lose in charm and grace where further size might be attained.

We feel that this attainment of size and form is worthy of great praise as a horticultural accomplishment, showing what a marvelous development has been attained in America, and the propagators who are responsible for this steady advance in recent years should be highly commended for these successful accomplishments, but we cannot but feel that many lovely dahlias have come into being and been discarded in this wild rush for everything that suggested grandeur. Little regard has been paid for very lovely and worthwhile varieties that would have been very suitable and highly appreciated as a garden flower.

Abroad, where they work possibly along simpler but well-established lines, they have been less prone to consider size as the only object to be obtained, and they have developed and are growing today most extensively very lovely decorative, semi-cactus varieties. They range from five to seven inches in diameter and are considered by them as a cut flower, or, as they are usually termed, a garden variety of dahlia. Our attention was continually being called to the free-blooming quality of these dahlias on the other side. They are very pronounced in their opinions that a dahlia should be useful and bring a return to the grower, either as an ornamental plant in the garden, border or as a free-blooming variety for the commercial grower, who helped his overhead by selling these blooms for the florist trade; and it would seem that by their appreciation of all that is lovely and practical in the dahlia, they have derived more pleasure out of their dahlias than we have. This does not mean that they do not try to raise the giant types; they do, and are just as pleased as we are when they develop a new large flowered type. But they do not neglect the smaller flowered types. You will see in the average dahlia gardens of the growers abroad all types of dahlias being given equal space and consideration, which makes a visit to these commercial growers both a matter of interest and pleasure.

And now to the last phase in the development of the dahlia, namely:

MINIATURE DAHLIAS

The pompon, developed in 1870, and already referred to, is the first in point of time of the miniatures to be developed. Next came the mignon, and a short description would seem fitting at this conjuncture. Mr. Joseph Cheal has described this most graphically in the 1930 Year Book of the National Dahlia Society. He states that he was attempting to dwarf the single dahlia and met with considerable success and was about to introduce several varieties when he received a letter from Mr. T. W. Girdlestone, then Secretary of the National Society, inviting him to come and see a new type of dahlia that he, Mr. Girdlestone, had developed. Imagine his surprise to find that they had both been working along the same lines and had both achieved the same results at the same time. These were combined and put out by Mr. Cheal two years later under the name of Tom Thumb dahlias, and this new type of dahlia was accredited to Messrs. Girdlestone and Cheal in the Gardener's Magazine of August, 1891. Later this family was given the name of Mignon, which was considered more suitable, and they are still known by that name today.

These two types, the pompon and the mignon, had both been developed with great care over a period of years until a true type was formed, and most of the miniatures of today are directly due to one or the other of these small varieties. They both breed true where isolated, at least 80 per cent of their seedlings coming true to form. To be sure, the pompon will not all be double and a majority will show a small eye or have open centers, but in form it remains a pompon, showing that this dwarfing has developed or been fixed into a true type. The same can be said to even a greater degree of the mignon. They also breed true to form to a great degree and retain their low growth of about eighteen to twenty inches, and their branching form with plants carrying many flowers in quick succession.

Of the charm and star dahlias, which are nothing more than miniature peonies, the former rather favors the cactus type, while the latter resembles the decorative varieties. These are undoubtedly crossed flowers developed on the smaller varieties, or else among the garden type of dahlia where the pollen has been carried from either the mignon or pompon.

Mr. Harry Stredwick, writing in this season's Year Book of the National Dahlia Society, says, "What has happened in late years is, first one grower and then another has broken away from old traditions and is naming and introducing a mongrel type that thirty years ago would have been considered useless." Nevertheless, these little dahlias, which have occurred from time to time as seedlings, have been saved and developed and the seed now is being taken from these small types and a lovely family of small, free-blooming dahlias have come into being, and possibly the most lovely of them all and the one most worthy of consideration and development is the miniature decorative. This lovely little flower of less than four inches in diameter, fully double and resembling the larger types of dahlias, has come into great popularity abroad. Its parentage is also more or less a chance, but one can readily see by its form of growth a similarity to the pompon; in fact, we have developed among our seedlings in the last few years quite a few miniature decoratives which were found among pompon seedlings that were nothing more than the pompons attempting to go back to an earlier form and throw slightly larger flowers of a decorative type. These come in lovely pastel shades, are very floriferous and have the branching characteristics so noticeable in the pompon and mignon types. The miniatures were classified by the National Dahlia Society in the small pamphlet entitled Classification and Description of Dahlias With Illustrations, published in 1924, and were limited to four inches in diameter. The first to be grown in this country was Little Jewel. This little dahlia was developed in Holland under the name of Juweeltje and was produced by Older, of Holland, in 1921. The next is Rhoda (Burrell, 1921), a miniature peony; then Garden Love (Carlee, 1924), Rapallo (Severin, 1924). This last decorative may be at times a little over four inches, nevertheless, it is of such an interesting type that it must be included with the miniatures. Many more have been produced since then, notable, Irene, salmon pink; Corone, white; Pink Pearl, rose pink, and Nesthakchen, lovely peach tones.

These miniatures have met with great popularity abroad, and I was surprised to note in the report of the Trial Grounds at Wisley it was stated that visitors to the Royal Horticultural Society's Gardens, both this year and last, paid more attention to the miniature dahlias than they did to the larger types. These lovely little dahlias have met with instant approval where flower lovers have become familiar with them in America during the last two or three years, and probably their reception and cultivation is the most outstanding feature of the last year. They were shown and classified in practically all of the eastern shows this fall, and we predict a growing popularity for these smaller types of dahlias that lend themselves so readily to flower arrangements. They are most useful for the lunch table and where a small vase of flowers is wanted. The tendency of recent years has been against the large and formal flower arrangements of other times, so these newer types have had a pleasant reception, especially among the ladies of the garden clubs, and we hope that America will soon follow Europe in giving due recognition to these miniatures as well as to the garden type of dahlias, which give an abundance of bloom and are of a very useful size, and will amply repay one for the effort involved.

A well-balanced collection of dahlias should include all types. I do not advocate discarding the larger flowering dahlias; they most emphatically should be kept as leaders, and any worthwhile collection would suffer by their omission. Many of these smaller types lend themselves most admirably to border planting, the smaller dahlias fronting the larger types, and it is to be regretted that they have not been used in this way more in America. It is our earnest hope that these miniatures will find their proper place in our gardens, and by this addition we feel that their popularity will be enhanced and greater pleasure derived in the growing of the dahlia.

GEORGE L. FARNUM.

The above engraving was made for the Society in 1836 and was the work of a London artist by the name of Cozzens. It was originally designed for the Society's Diploma and served that purpose until a few years ago, when the Diploma was discontinued and the design adopted for the book plate of the Society.

*But who can paint
 Like Nature? Can Imagination boast
 Amid its gay creation, hues like hers?
 Or can it mix them with that matchless skill,
 And lose them in each other as appears
 In every bud that blows?*

THOMPSON.

*For the convenience of members, the following Calendar of Garden
 Work has been reprinted, through the courtesy of the editor, from the 1931 file of "HORTICULTURE."*

Almost all evergreens may be propagated by tip cuttings taken during the winter months. Certain varieties of thujas and biotas root more easily, of course, than others. But they all require a moderate amount of bottom heat under the cutting bench and some shade overhead. Never should the cuttings dry out.

Poinsettias usually drop their leaves when the flowers begin to fade, which is usually a few weeks after Christmas. This indicates that the plant is going into its natural resting period. Therefore, put it away in a cool place with only enough moisture in the soil to keep the stems from withering. Repot the plant in fresh soil next spring and grow it outdoors until fall.

Seeds of torenia, Begonia semperflorens, abutilons, Vinca rosea and heliotrope should be sown late this month.

Hydrangeas intended for Easter should be started into growth at 50 degrees in the conservatory at once. It is wise to get them under way early. Bougainvilleas, genistas and azaleas should not have over 45 degrees of heat for the rest of the month.

Single early tulips may be brought into flower now, although the doubles will not flower well until later. Miniature hyacinths and narcissi, such as Golden Spur and double Von Sion, may also be forced.

Take root cuttings of hardy phlox, making them one inch long. They may either be planted in pots or flats, and usually every piece will make a plant. Cover the cuttings with one-half inch of light soil or sand and keep them in a cool place. Phlox Miss Lingard must be propagated by divisions or tip cuttings; root cuttings will not grow.

Good-sized aquilegia plants grown from seed sown this month will be ready to set out in May. The long-spurred hybrids are best, and there are several promising new ones being introduced this year.

All old seeds should be tested before plans are made for this year's garden. The blotter test is easy to make. Place sheets of blotter in a dish of water. On these lay the seeds after they have been carefully counted out and labeled. Cover the dish with a piece of glass.

Send for seed and nursery catalogues early this year. The smallest catalogue occasionally lists the rarest plants.

*"Glowing bright
Beneath the various foliage
Wildly spreads
The arbutus, and rears his scarlet fruit
Luxuriant mantling o'er
The craggy steeps."*

Bulbs will force easier from now on. This is particularly true of the double tulips. Hyacinth blooms may be drawn up from the foliage by placing a paper cone over the plant. Unless this is done the flower stems are frequently very short. Other bulbs may bloom with very short stems as a result of giving them too much heat at first after bringing the pots up from the cellar.

Dahlia tubers that were stored away in sawdust, oak leaves, peat moss or wrapped in paper should be unpacked now and carefully looked over to discover if any are rotting. All soft parts of the tubers should be cut off and the exposed surfaces dusted with sulphur. Dampness and very low temperatures are the chief causes for decay. Store the tubers where the temperature ranges from forty to fifty degrees.

Viola Jersey Gem can be propagated by cuttings if a few plants are brought indoors now and are cut back hard to encourage new shoots. Root the cuttings in sand and when they have started, plant them singly in pots or in boxes. All the cornuta varieties can be propagated this way, but the variety Apricot is best started each year from seed.

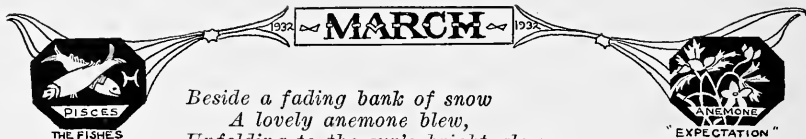

Persons with conservatories may begin to take cuttings from now on of fuchsia, heliotrope, stevia, salvia, geraniums and other bedding plants. These cuttings should be taken from young wood only.

Cover the hotbeds, which are to be used for early vegetables, with sash now, so that they will warm. Spread mats over the sash on cloudy days and at night.

Fruit trees may be pruned any time from now on when the temperature is above freezing and the wood is not frozen. Dormant sprays may be applied to fruit trees and ornamental plants, too.

Seeds of belladonna and bellamosum delphiniums may be sown now in pots or seed boxes. The seeds of choice hybrids lose their vitality quickly and, therefore, the sooner they are sown the better. Delphinium seeds start quickly and will produce plants large enough to set out in spring. Many of these will flower the first year and thus lengthen the season of bloom.

The verbenas Mayflower and Beauty of Oxford can be reproduced only by cuttings, which may be taken now or later. Frequently the verbenas sold as Mayflower are nothing more than the variety Miss Wilmott. The cuttings will root easily in sand, but before taking them be sure they are not infested with mite. Verbena seeds do not need to be planted until later.

*Beside a fading bank of snow
A lovely anemone blew,
Unfolding to the sun's bright glow
Its leaves of Heaven's sereneest hue.
"PERCIVAL."*

Although some persons find it more convenient to increase their dahlias by dividing the clumps of tubers, just as satisfactory results may be obtained from cuttings. Plant the tubers in peat moss and as soon as the sprouts have made several inches of growth cut them off and place them in sharp sand. If one or two pairs of eyes are left on the original shoot, these will start into growth, and still more cuttings may be made later. If tubers of Coltness Gem dahlias were saved from last season these may be increased by cuttings in the same manner.

Palms and similar house plants are best repotted at this season, so that they will be ready to make their annual growth next summer. Use a pot one size larger and a compost having one-third manure. Ram the soil around the edges very tightly with a stick—so tight, in fact, that the pot will not drop away when the palm is lifted by its leaves.

The first sowing of hardy vegetables, such as cabbage, cauliflower and lettuce, may be made in the conservatory or window garden. Use a light compost without fertilizer and see to it that there is drainage in the flats or seed pans. Be careful not to wash away the fine seeds when watering them.

Clean up the garden and burn all refuse left from last year. By doing this early the chances of loss from plant diseases will be decreased and great numbers of hibernating insects will be destroyed. Do not forget the corners; usually more insects will be found there than elsewhere.

Although early flowering bulbs may be uncovered gradually now, most perennial borders and rose beds should be left covered until the turn of the month. When uncovering the beds, do the work preferably on a dull, cloudy day.

Prune rose bushes according to their uses: those pruned hard will give the largest blooms on long cutting stems; roses pruned lightly bloom more freely. In general, cut away two-thirds the length of each cane with hybrid teas and hybrid perpetuals. All dead wood, of course, must be cut out at the bottom.

Most large tubed plants do not need to be repotted each year if they are given a stimulant. Scrape away the top layer of spent soil and replace it with a rich compost.

Sow sweet peas as soon as the ground can be worked. If the trench was not prepared last fall, dig deeply now, working in well-rotted manure in the lower depths.

Toward the end of the month spray fruit trees and ornamentals with one of the oil mixtures before the buds begin to swell for the control of San Jose scale.

"I gaze upon her violet beds,
Laburnum's golden tress'd,
Her flower-spiked almonds; breath perfume
From lilac and syringa bloom,
And cry, 'I love spring best!'"

When flowering heads of single hydrangeas purchased at Easter time begin to fade, cut the branches out at the bottom to encourage new shoots. Later in the spring plunge the pots outdoors in a sunny place. Stimulate the plants occasionally with a weak liquid manure and never let them go dry until the approach of fall.

Tuberous rooted begonias are excellent for the shady garden. If the tubers have not been started, plant them at once in boxes of peat or sand in a warm cellar. Cover the tubers lightly and be sure they are right side up. Keep them moist, and as soon as the plants are two or three inches high pot them singly in small pots. They will be ready for planting in rich, well-drained soil after the middle of May.

Trees best transplanted in the spring include beeches, magnolias, tulip trees, sweet gums, Japanese maples and large flowering dogwoods. Shrubs to move now are althæas, flowering almonds, fire thorns and ornamental cherries and peaches. In preparing shrubbery borders, dig deeply and put well-rotted compost deep in the soil.

The first sowings of hardy vegetables, such as peas, radishes, lettuce, parsnips and beets, may be made in the open ground as soon as the soil is dry enough to cultivate; that is, when it will crumble in the hand if squeezed.

Many perennials are divided easily early in the spring. They include aconitums, fall asters, hardy chrysanthemums, which invariably grow better from young plants; platycodons, gaillardias, phloxes, veronicas and Lysimachia clethroides.

Seeds of regal lilies grow very well when sown in a frame early. The best soil is made by adding leafmold, old manure and sand. Broadcast the seeds and water them thoroughly before covering them lightly with a sand and peat mixture. Water them again and cover the frame for one month with a shaded sash.

A number of kinds of lily bulbs may still be set in the border, especially the regal lily, the speciosums and the tiger lily.

Potatoes bear the best crops if planted early.

When sowing pole bean seed, set out the poles at the same time.

Work in the mulch between the strawberry rows, but leave a light covering to prevent soil from spattering on the berries.

Get the bird houses in place at once.

Japanese spurge, botanically Pachysandra terminalis, is one of the few evergreen ground covers that will grow under trees where it is impossible to get grass to live.

"Thou art the 'Iris'
 Who, armed with Golden Rod,
 And winged with celestial, azure, bearest
 The message of some god."

Following the general rule that shrubs should be pruned just after they have flowered, prune the flowering almonds and forsythias now, the former lightly, the latter heavily, if the plants are getting out of bounds.

Hollyhock leaves are often covered on the under side with little brown spots, which are a rust. Delphiniums are often bothered both with blight and mildew, the latter attacking phlox as well. It is much easier to prevent these diseases than to attempt to control them after they have started. Therefore, begin spraying with Bordeaux mixture or any of the proprietary remedies recommended for these diseases.

The first plantings of gladiolus bulbs can be made now. Pansies and hardy bedding plants can be set out, but not tender things like coleus. Dahlias should go in later.

From Massachusetts south all kinds of annuals can be sown in the open ground during the early part of the month. The first plantings of perennial seeds can go in, too.

Do not delay the planting of hardy materials such as perennials, shrubs, trees, evergreens, rhododendrons and rock plants. In many sections of the country the ground is already drying out and each newly set out plant will need watering.

Aphids begin their work early, especially on roses. Use a nicotine solution with a little soap added as a spreader or any of well-known plant sprays.

Begin to mow the lawn before the grass gets too long, except where crocuses are naturalized. The foliage of all bulbs must be allowed to ripen or the bulbs will run out.

Summer flowering bulbs to plant are the montbretias, Hyacinthus candicans, the kniphofias, Ismene calathina, Zephyranthes candida, the tigridias, Lycoris squamigera, the Elephants-ear (Caladium esculentum) and numerous lilies.

Religiously spray all the fruits this year. Early spraying is important, and if you are not sure when this should be done, send to your state college for a spray schedule.

Make sowings of string beans, lima beans, pole beans, corn, squash, cucumbers, melons, okra and spinach. Soak the corn seed in a repellent solution to keep the crows and blackbirds from eating it.

Tubbed plants, such as Agapanthus umbellatus, Clivia miniata, Caladium esculentum and hydrangeas can be moved outdoors now. Tubbed bay trees and boxwoods can be set on the terrace or in the garden, too.

"The cowslip startles in meadows green,
 The buttercup catches the sun in its chalice,
 And there's never a leaf nor a blade too mean
 To be some happy creature's palace."

Garden slugs can be controlled with a dust, either of hydrated lime or tobacco, sprinkled about in moist and out-of-the-way places, along walks and corners where leaves have collected.

Cut worms as well as slugs may be killed with a poisonous bran bait, made by mixing together five pounds of bran and one-half ounce of either Paris green or arsenate of lead, to which is mixed pint of molasses dissolved in one gallon of water. Spread this bait in the garden every evening. There are proprietary mixtures as well.

From now on applications of insecticides on currant bushes to control the small green currant worms should consist of fresh hellebore, mixed with flour to make it stick to the foliage. This dust loses its strength quickly and, therefore, does not leave a poisonous coating on the fruit.

Ants in the lawn can be eliminated by making a few holes around each ant hill to a depth of eight to twelve inches. In each of these holes pour a tablespoonful of carbon bi-sulphide. Plug the holes with wads of wet earth. Carbon bi-sulphide is highly inflammable, but two excellent commercial sprays, that have pyrethrum as a base, are also very efficient in controlling ants.

The best way to keep beetles from cucumbers, melons, pumpkins and squashes is to cover the plants with netting, supported by wooden frames. Make these frames about two or three feet across and put on the netting as soon as the plants show through the ground. Keep the vines covered as long as possible.

It is advisable to stop cutting asparagus early in June. As the tops grow, keep them well sprayed with arsenate of lead.

The diseases mildew, black spot and anthracnose on grapes are best controlled with Bordeaux mixture. The first spraying should be done just before the blossoms open; the second one shortly after the blossoming period.

Clumps of Phlox divaricata should be divided and reset now so that strong, healthy plants will have formed by next fall.

Evergreens that are turning rusty, especially junipers and spruces, are no doubt infested with red spiders. This mite spins a web at the base of the needles and the dead needles hang in wads. Red spider can be checked by spraying the branches with a swift stream of water from the hose, but spraying with an oil solution or other proprietary sprays, recommended by reliable dealers, will be more effective. Inspect the lilacs to see if young oyster shell scales are hatching. To eliminate this pest spray with kerosene emulsion or any of the proprietary solutions recommended for this purpose. Direct the spray on the branches.

*"When the heat like a mist-veil floats,
And poppies flame in the rye,
And the silver note in the streamlet's throat
Has softened almost to a sigh,
It is July."*

It is important to keep the soil well cultivated, especially after rains, both in the flower and vegetable gardens. The soil should not be stirred deeper than an inch or two, because the fine, feeding roots of most plants are near the surface.

Hydrangeas are heavy feeders. Their blooms will be much larger this fall if the plants have been well fertilized, preferably with manure.

Like all other annuals, sweet peas will stop flowering if seed pods are allowed to form. Other requirements of sweet peas are plenty of water, protection against mildew and aphids, a mulch of straw or other material and weak liquid fertilizer every two or three weeks. Damp weather may cause the buds to drop off, but this condition will aright itself when the weather clears.

Mildew on perennials such as phlox and delphiniums, on roses, especially kinds like Frau Karl Druschki and Dorothy Perkins, and sweet peas, can be controlled by dusting with any of the specially prepared sulphur dusts.

Plant lice are now to be found in masses on all sorts of garden subjects, even shrubs, at the very top of climbing roses and often in trees. A nicotine or popular proprietary spray solution will kill them.

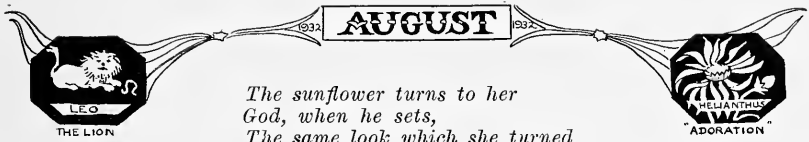

One rose expert recommends the following fertilizer for late July application at the rate of one trowelful to each average size rose bush and two trowelfuls to very large bushes and climbers: one part pulverized sheep manure, one part bone meal, one part wood ashes and one-half part slacked lime. Dig the fertilizer into the soil thoroughly.

Mulch the rose beds now with peat moss to keep the soil moist and cool. Continue to water the plants, however. Roses lose their foliage later in the summer if the plants get dry.

Prune rambler roses of the Dorothy Perkins type now, removing to the ground all old bushy canes. Train the new canes as they grow. Climbing roses like Dr. W. Van Fleet flower better from old canes, but the flowering stems can be shortened to a few inches now, unless the hips or seed pods are wanted for fall color.

Perennial seeds will germinate better if the seed beds are covered with burlap or cloth to keep the soil moist. Any watering should be done with a fine spray. Young perennial seedlings need protection from the sun. Use a lath or light cloth screen.

After delphiniums have flowered, the stalks should be cut back. If the plants are to be replaced by fresh ones next season, cut the stalks to the ground so that another crop of blooms may be had.

*The sunflower turns to her
God, when he sets,
The same look which she turned

“MORE.”

Crab grass, worst of all lawn pests, will be seeding soon. Therefore, rake the lawn before mowing to bring up all seed stalks so that they may be cut off. Sweep off all lawn clippings where crab grass is present to prevent their taking root. Crab grass is sometimes brought into the lawn in manure. Moral: Use peat moss and a chemical fertilizer instead. Lime encourages crab grass particularly.

Wisterias that did not flower, and those that did, too, should have their long, lanky growths shortened considerably in order that side spurs may develop, which, alone, will bear flowers next spring.

Finish any rose pruning of climbers that may be left, unless the hips are wanted for their winter beauty. Cultivate the rose beds lightly, just enough to keep the weeds down. Pick up and burn all fallen, diseased foliage. Apply the dust gun regularly.

Destroy any chestnut-brown pupæ found among irises, when dividing the clumps, for these undoubtedly are borers ready to hatch into moths that will soon be laying eggs.

August is the month for planting pansy seeds. Excellent plants and blooms can be had only from high-quality seeds. Sow also, for the spring garden, forget-me-nots and English daisies.

Columbines often die after two or three years and therefore should be treated as biennials for the best results. Seeds are best sown now. Aquilegias hybridize freely, so that choice kinds will come among the seedlings only if the finest strains in the garden are allowed to cross pollinize.

Peonies may be planted at any time in the next month.

Orders should be placed at once for daffodils, so that they may be set out in September.

Dahlias to be used for house decorations should be cut early in the morning while the stems are full of sap. If they are to be exhibited it is best to keep them in a cool, dark cellar for twelve hours or more.

Bleeding hearts are easily propagated at this season by digging up the plant, cutting off the roots to one inch or two of the crowns, cutting these roots into sections three inches long and planting them two inches deep in a bed of good, soft earth. The old plants may be replanted also.

There is still time for setting out potted strawberry plants.

Madonna lily bulbs should be planted as soon as they arrive. They deteriorate rapidly when exposed to the air. Three or four inches is deep enough to set them.

Japaneses irises need to be divided every three or four years, and this work can be done to advantage now.

*"It is the Autumn breeze
That lightly floating on,
Just stirs the weedy leas,
Just stirs the glowing trees,
And is gone."*

Fuchsias which have been kept dry through the summer may be started into growth this month. They should be repotted and the plants cut back hard, leaving only one or two inches of the previous season's growth.

Nearly all the early flowering perennials may be set out now. Perennials started from seed early in the season may be set in rows in the open ground and given their permanent locations in the spring.

Roses for fall planting should be ordered at once.

There should be no delay in getting evergreens into the ground. It is much better to plant them early in the month than later.

This is the ideal month for dividing and transplanting peonies. It is well to have at least three eyes to a division, and the crown should be planted from two to three inches under the ground. Deeper planting may keep the plants from flowering.

Plant narcissus bulbs as soon as they are available. Other bulbs, such as tulips, crocuses, hyacinths and similar bulbs will be available from the seed stores by the end of the month.

Gladiolus bulbs should be dug as soon as the leaves start to turn yellow, before any danger of hard frost. Cut the tops back to three inches from the soil and dig the bulbs carefully. Dry the bulbs thoroughly in a frostproof place before storing.

Save the flower and vegetable garden from early frost by spraying the plants with the hose very early in the morning before sunlight strikes the plants. This will defrost them.

Late September is an ideal time to make new lawns or repair old ones.

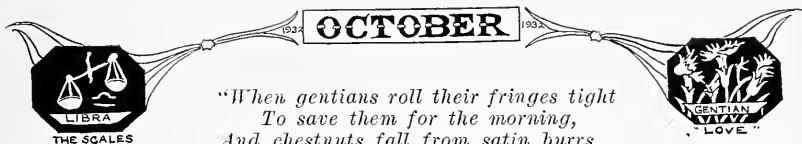

Plant bulbous irises in groups either in the rock garden or in protected spots in the mixed border. These irises are admirable for frame culture in the north, where many kinds are not reliably hardy.

Prune trees, especially those that bleed in the spring. They may be more easily shaped while the foliage is still on.

Replant bulbs that have become so crowded that they do not flower well. In this class are narcissi, grape hyacinths, crocuses and scillas. Fertilize with bone meal.

Most of the sedums, thymes, pinks, oenotheras, polemoniums and saxifrages may be divided this month.

This is an excellent time to make a compost heap, using garden refuse. If Adeo is added, an excellent grade of manure will be provided for use next spring.

*"When gentians roll their fringes tight
To save them for the morning,
And chestnuts fall from satin burrs
Without a word of warning."*

Trees may be set out in the fall, except such subjects as red and sugar maples, flowering dogwoods, tuliptree, magnolias and the sweetgum (Liquidambar styraciflua).

In the Middle Atlantic States hardy annual seeds may be planted in carefully prepared beds. Some in the list are sweet peas (to be trenched), candytuft, sweet alyssum, snapdragons and cornflowers.

Hasten with the planting of narcissi. Tulips can be planted until mid-November. Leave room for the lilies and plant the bulbs promptly upon arrival.

Set in a store of potted bulbs for forcing in winter. To a five-inch pot plant one hyacinth bulb or two narcissus bulbs or three tulips. An eight-inch pot or pan will hold three hyacinths (not the smaller Romans), six narcissi and eight tulips.

Excellent Darwin tulips to force are Rose Luisante, Prince of Austria, Fred Moore, Yellow Prince, Belle Alliance, La Reine, Flamingo and De Wet.

Geranium cuttings taken now in those sections of the country that have not yet had a frost will root better than those taken earlier. The wood will be firmer and there will be less danger of the cuttings rotting.

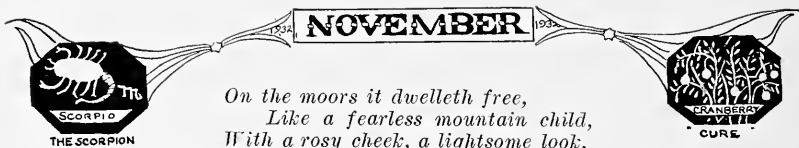

Dig tender plants, such as cannas, caladiums and tuberoses before frost can damage the roots. Cannas are best stored with soil left on the roots. Varieties like Mrs. Pierre S. duPont will not winter over unless kept growing inside all winter long.

Lilacs transplant best during October, doing better by far than those moved in the spring. The new hybrids excel the old sorts in every way, and they have the added advantage of flowering at an early age.

Dig beets, carrots, winter radishes and other root crops for storing in the cellar or vegetable pit. Pumpkins and squashes, of course, have to be kept in a warm, dry place, as, for instance, a closed attic.

Celery dug and planted upright, roots and all, in a deep frame will last in fine condition, in spite of frost, until Thanksgiving and later. When hard frost is expected, cover the sash with matting. Ventilate thoroughly on warm days. Do not dig the celery until nearly time for freezing weather. Trenching is also satisfactory.

One of the most effective ways of controlling insects and diseases in the garden is to clean up all refuse and to destroy all the weeds in fall. This does not mean that leaves should be gathered from around the shrubs. On the contrary, the shrubs will be better off for this protection during the winter.

*On the moors it dwelleth free,
Like a fearless mountain child,
With a rosy cheek, a lightsome look,
And a spirit strong and wild.*

TWAMLEY.

When planting roses, set them so that the "knuckle" is just below the surface of the ground. Prune back the long tap roots, as this will encourage many fibrous roots to form quickly.

This is the ideal time to plant tulips. Cover them five inches deep; space the bulbs six inches apart. Do not locate beds of bulbs under eaves or where water will collect during the winter months.

Straw and heavy manure mulches should not be applied to the garden or around fruit trees until the ground has become permanently frozen.

Fall planting of apples is more advisable the farther south one goes. Select several varieties, because many kinds, such as McIntosh, Delicious, Gravenstein and Cortland, will set but little fruit to their own pollen. However, when interplanted, a good crop of apples may be expected.

Hardy chrysanthemums intended for propagation of new plants next year should be moved to the cold frame for winter protection if the varieties are of questionable hardiness. Plant conservatory chrysanthemums in boxes of soil and keep them in a cool, well-aired place.

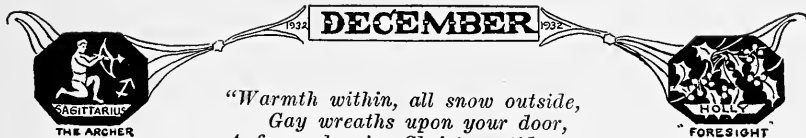

Windbreaks, to be placed around rhododendron beds, exposed evergreens and along seaside gardens, should be put in place before the ground freezes. Painted wooden barricades or burlap stretched over wooden frames are desirable. Cornstalks make a good windbreak, but are not as neat looking.

Continue to plant beds of tulips, which can be safely set out until early December. Try some of the tulip species in the rock garden.

Hardy lilies, such as L. regale, L. henryi and L. tenuifolium, are now available, and the Japanese lilies will arrive from Japan shortly. Be sure to get these lilies into the ground quickly, and wherever freezing weather is expected, mulch the ground heavily to keep it open.

Give all evergreens, including rhododendrons, a last good watering before the ground freezes. This will be especially necessary with plants recently set out. Warning to do this work would not be repeated so often if watering at this time were not so important.

Bone meal is a good garden fertilizer, but it takes so long to decompose that it should be applied to the garden in the fall. It sweetens the soil and is good for most perennials, shrubs, roses, etc. Never use it around ericaceous plants such as rhododendrons and mountain laurel.

*"Warmth within, all snow outside,
Gay wreaths upon your door,
A finer, cheerier Christmas-tide
Than you have known before."*

When the ground has become stiffened with frost, give all evergreens, especially those transplanted late this fall, a heavy mulch of straw or well-rotted manure. This applies to woody ornamentals, too. When mulching boxwood do not get the mulch directly against the plants.

Windbreaks for rhododendrons and similar plants should, of course, be in place. This work is bothersome, however, and it would be wise to consider planting hardy evergreens as a natural windbreak next season. Pines may be used or even deciduous trees and tall shrubs.

Apply the winter mulch for the perennial border during dry weather when the plants are dry and the ground is frozen. Oak leaves are good, although salt hay is neater and more easily applied. Hold the mulch in place with branches or clods of soil.

Poinsettias should be watered daily and kept at a room temperature of not over seventy degrees. Cut poinsettia blooms as well as those of Euphorbia jacquinesflora will not keep well unless the ends of the stems are seared over a flame or dipped quickly into hot water.

Jerusalem cherries and Christmas peppers will lose their foliage and fruit if there is the slightest trace of coal or illuminating gas in the air. Dry air is also injurious, but this may be counteracted by sprinkling the plants with an atomizer.

Primroses do well in a cool place. Cyclamen, too, prefer a cool position, but they require sunlight for several hours during the day.

The large flowering begonias are difficult to keep for a long time in the house. Give the plants plenty of water and be sure that they do not become chilled. Morning sun is best. Avoid getting water on the leaves of rex begonias.

Christmas will be a happy day for the birds if they find the feeding stations well supplied with food, especially if the ground is covered with glistening snow. Chickadees, nuthatches and woodpeckers like suet particularly.

All bird foods should be placed out of the reach of cats. Hang suet from the branches of trees or tall shrubs. The special wire feeding baskets are very satisfactory. Many birds enjoy doughnuts; the grease keeps them warm in cold weather.

Sunflower seeds, finely ground chicken feed, pork rinds, rolled oats, pumpkin or squash seeds and the especially mixed bird foods are recommended.

Birds need grit during the winter. Keep a dish of sand or coal ashes handy. Even fine poultry grit will do. The special bird foods contain the proper amount of coarse material.

1931 REPORT OF GARDEN DIVISION OF STATE FEDERATION OF PENNSYLVANIA WOMEN

The State Federation of Pennsylvania Women has fifty thousand members, many of whom are interested in growing plants. The Garden Division of the Federation aims to stimulate interest in plant growth and in the importance of plants from the point of view of health and beauty.

The State Chairman of Gardens has shared her enthusiasm by giving talks to various clubs and through personal correspondence by answering questions in regard to community plantings, programs, flower shows and cultivation of various plants.

The Garden Division appreciates most keenly the cordiality of Dr. S. W. Fletcher, head of the Department of Horticulture of the Pennsylvania State College, and his able assistants who, with the heads of the Botanic Department, made Horticultural Week at State College a most valuable and enjoyable one.

During the past year a State-wide contest was held for the best garden dining room. This was judged entirely by photographs, and awards were made at the Annual Federation Convention in York in October.

The Chairman of the Garden Division of the State Federation believes that Pennsylvania, with her natural beauty, her various soils, temperature and altitudes, can become "The State of Beautiful Gardens," and her women made healthy of mind and body by an increased understanding of the place this interest may hold in their lives and the lives of the members of their families.

State Federation of Pennsylvania Women.*

THE GARDEN CLUB FEDERATION OF PENNSYLVANIA, 1931

The first Annual Meeting of the Garden Club Federation of Pennsylvania was held in Philadelphia on March 17-18, 1931. Representatives from thirty-eight organizations answered the roll call at the opening session at Strawberry Mansion in Fairmount Park on the afternoon of the 17th. Following the election of officers and presentation of reports by committee chairmen and delegates, the Gold Medal of Achievement, given by Mrs. George L. Harrison, was awarded to the Lawrence County Garden Club for the most outstanding work in the Federation for the year 1930. As a tribute to their splendid efforts, six other clubs were given Honorable Mention; the Carrie T. Watson Garden Club (Erie), the Garden Club of the Conservation Society of York County, the Kittanning Garden Club, the Norristown Garden Club, the Carlisle

Garden Club and the Westmoreland Garden Club. At the close of the meeting the delegates visited the charming old houses in Fairmount Park, returning to Strawberry Mansion for a buffet supper as the guests of Mrs. Thomas Newhall, President of the Federation. A lecture followed the supper. The second day of the meeting was devoted to the Philadelphia Flower Show Annual Luncheon, with speakers and inter-club conferences.

The Semi-Annual Meeting of the Federation was held in Harrisburg on October 7-8, 1931. This was the second semi-annual meeting, the first having been held in Sewickley, Allegheny County, the previous autumn. It is at present the policy of the Federation to hold these semi-annual meetings alternately in the Western and Central Divisions. Twenty-three clubs were represented at the Harrisburg meeting. A visit to the garden of Mr. J. Horace McFarland and a dinner with speakers were pleasant features of the first day of the session; a Question Box Meeting, a luncheon with speakers, and tea at the Executive Mansion as the guests of Mrs. Pinchot occupied the second day.

The Executive Committee of the Federation has held regular monthly meetings, and the several Standing Committees—Admission, Conservation, Publicity, Legislation, Activities and Garden Club Organization—have all been zealous in their efforts.

The progress of the movement is shown by the fact that, starting in March, 1930, with thirty-nine organizations as Charter Members, the Federation now includes sixty clubs and societies. Much enthusiasm has been displayed by these member units and the interest shown is very marked. Those who have guided the Federation in its infancy can but feel certain that the way is open for a tremendous advance throughout the State in conservation, in civic pride, in the furthering of horticultural knowledge among children and adults and in the application of such knowledge to the benefit of the cities, towns and rural communities in Pennsylvania.

The second Annual Meeting of the Federation will be held in Philadelphia on March 9-10, 1932.

(MRS. GEORGE L. HARRISON),

BY-LAWS OF THE PENNSYLVANIA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

Rewritten and Adopted March 20, 1929

I OFFICERS

The officers of the Society shall be a President, two Vice-Presidents, a Secretary and a Treasurer.

II PRESIDENT

1. The President, or in his absence one of the Vice-Presidents, shall preside at the meetings of the Society and the Executive Council. The President, ex officio, shall be a member of all committees. He shall have general direction of all the activities of the Society and shall in every way seek to promote the interests and extend the usefulness of the Society.

2. He shall submit to the Executive Council at the January meeting a general report of the affairs of the Society.

III VICE-PRESIDENTS

In the absence of the President, his duties shall be performed by the Vice-Presidents in the order of their seniority.

IV TREASURER

The Treasurer shall collect all dues and other income and shall keep the accounts of the Society, disburse its money, and report thereon at the regular meeting of the Executive Council in January. He shall deposit the funds of the Society in such Bank or Trust Company as the Executive Council shall designate. All payments shall be made by check. He shall pay bills only upon the approval of the Chairman of the Committee authorizing the purchase or contract. He shall, with the approval of the President or one of the Vice-Presidents, have authority to borrow money in order to provide funds for the legitimate expenses of the Society or when in his judgment it is for the best interests of the Society so to do. He shall furnish a bond in such amount as the Executive Council may determine, the premium for which shall be paid by the Society, and the Bond shall at all times be in the custody of the President.

V SECRETARY

1. The Secretary shall give notice of all meetings of the Society and of the Executive Council and shall keep minutes of such meetings. He shall conduct the correspondence and keep the records of the Society. He shall be the keeper of the seal of the Society. He shall notify persons elected to membership of their election. He shall send by mail to each member of the Executive Council at least seven days' notice of each stated meeting. He shall perform such other duties as may from time to time be assigned to him by the Executive Council.

2. The Secretary may, if the Executive Council so directs, act as Assistant Treasurer, performing such duties as the Treasurer may delegate to him, with the approval of the Executive Council. As Assistant Treasurer, he shall furnish a bond in such amount as the Executive Council may determine, the premium for which shall be paid by the Society, and the Bond shall at all times be in the custody of the President.

3. The Secretary may be paid a monthly salary, to be determined by the Executive Council. This salary may be increased or decreased by the Executive Council at any regular meeting.

4. In the absence of the Secretary at any meeting the President or presiding officer shall appoint a Secretary pro tempore.

VI EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

1. The Executive Council shall consist of twenty-one members. It shall have general charge of the affairs, funds and property of the Society, and shall have authority to designate the person or persons who may make contracts or purchases for the Society. It shall have full power, and it shall be the duty of its members to carry out the purposes of the Society according to its Charter and By-Laws.

2. The Executive Council shall, as soon as may be, after each Annual Meeting elect from its own body a President, two Vice-Presidents, a Secretary and a Treasurer, who shall hold office for one year from the first day of the succeeding January, or until their successors are elected.

3. The Executive Council shall meet once a month, except during the months of June, July and August, and Special Meetings may be called by order of the President. Seven members shall constitute a quorum of the Executive Council.

4. The Executive Council shall have power to elect annual members, life members and honorary members.

5. The Executive Council may fill any vacancy in its body by election of a member of the Society to hold office until the next Annual Election.

6. Any member of the Executive Council or of any Standing Committee who shall be absent from three consecutive meetings shall cease to be a member of the Council or the Standing Committee, unless a satisfactory reason be offered to the Council or the Committee for such absence.

VII MEETINGS

1. There shall be an Annual Meeting of the Society on the third Wednesday of November in each year. Special meetings of the Society may be called by the Secretary upon order of the President, or of any five members of the Executive Council or upon request of fifteen members of the Society. At each Annual Meeting there shall be elected seven members of the Executive Council to serve for three years, and at such Annual Meeting any vacancy in the Executive Council shall be filled by the election of a member to serve the unexpired term.

2. Officers and members of the Executive Council shall hold office during the term for which they are elected and until their successors are chosen.

3. Ten members shall constitute a quorum at any meeting of the Society.

VIII NOMINATIONS AND ELECTIONS

1. As soon as may be after the September meeting of the Executive Council in each year a Nomination Committee, consisting, ex officio, of the members of the Executive Council who have more than one year but less than two years to serve as such members, shall nominate candidates for all the offices which are to be filled by election for the coming year. The Committee shall file its nominations with the Secretary before the first day of October, and the Secretary shall, on receiving them, cause the nominations to be published in Horticulture at least thirty days previous to the Annual Meeting.

Additional nominations may be made in writing by fifteen or more members of the Society. They shall be addressed to the Secretary and mailed prior to the first day of November.

2. If no nominations are made in addition to those submitted by the Nominating Committee an election by ballot will not be necessary, and the Executive Council shall, by motion, elect the candidates nominated by the Committee.

If additional nominations are received, the Secretary shall cause ballots to be printed containing the names of all the candidates, and shall mail them to every member of the Society as soon after November 1st as possible.

3. Members shall vote by placing an "X" opposite the names selected. To secure secrecy in the election, the ballots shall be provided with inner and outer envelopes. The member, after marking his ballot, shall enclose and seal it in the inner envelope. The latter should then be enclosed and sealed in the outer envelope, on which the member shall sign his name, after which it should be mailed to the Election Committee. If the member's signature is omitted on the outer envelope, or if more names are marked than required, the vote shall be disqualified.

4. The President or presiding officer shall appoint an Election Committee of three to receive, assort and count the ballots cast, and to report the result to the Secretary. A plurality shall elect, and the President or presiding officer shall declare who are elected. Voting by proxy shall not be allowed at any meeting.

IX

HONORARY OFFICERS AND MEMBERS

1. Honorary Vice-Presidents may be elected by the Executive Council at any regular meeting. This honor is reserved for persons who have served the Society as officers or members of its Executive Council.

2. Honorary Members may be elected by the Executive Council at any regular meeting. This honor is reserved for persons of pre-eminence in horticulture and kindred sciences, and signifies the high regard in which they are held. No dues are required from Honorary Members. They shall not be permitted to vote or hold office.

X

RESIGNATIONS

1. Resignations of membership shall be made to the Secretary in writing.
2. Resignations shall not be accepted until all indebtedness to the Society of the member resigning shall have been discharged.

XI

DUES

1. The dues of all Annual Members shall be three dollars, payable in advance. If such dues are not paid within four months of the date of the bill, such persons shall cease to be members of the Society.

2. Candidates elected, on payment of the dues for the current year, shall become members of the Society, and the election of any candidate shall be void if he fails to make such payment within thirty days after notice of his election is made, addressed to him at the place given as his residence in his application for membership.

3. Any person may be elected a Patron upon the payment of ten thousand dollars. Any person may be elected a Benefactor upon the payment of five thousand dollars. Any person may be elected a Sustaining Member upon the payment of one thousand dollars. Any person may be elected a Life Member upon the payment of one hundred dollars. (Life Membership fee will remain fifty dollars until May 1, 1932.)

4. All moneys received from Patron, Benefactor, Sustaining or Life Membership dues shall be treated as trust funds in perpetuity. The income only from these funds shall be used by the Society.

XII SUSPENSIONS OR EXPULSION

Any member may be suspended or expelled for cause by vote of three-fifths of all the members of the Executive Council, fifteen days' previous notice in writing having been given to the member of the charges preferred against him. Any action under this Article may be revoked or modified by subsequent vote of the Executive Council.

XIII STANDING COMMITTEES

1. There shall be six Standing Committees, to be known as the Executive Committee, the Finance Committee, the Library Committee, the Lecture Committee, the Garden Committee and the Exhibition Committee.

2. The President, as soon as may be after the first of the year, shall appoint the members of all Standing Committees, with the approval of the Executive Council. The Chairman of each Committee must be a member of the Council, but other members may be drawn from the Society. They shall hold office for one year from appointment and until their successors are appointed. All vacancies in such Committees shall be filled by the President and Executive Council, or during its recess by the Executive Committee. Each Committee shall have power to fix its own quorum.

3. The Executive Committee shall consist of not more than five members. It shall be its duty, subject to the control of the Executive Council, to order purchases, to regulate salaries and wages (except the Secretary's salary), to receive complaints, to redress grievances, to appoint and dismiss employees, to manage the Society's Rooms and to perform such other similar duties as may from time to time be assigned to it by the Executive Council. During the recess of the Executive Council the Executive Committee shall be vested with all the powers of the Executive Council so far as the same can be legally delegated, but it shall be its duty to exercise such powers only whenever immediate action is required.

4. The Finance Committee shall consist of three or more members, of which the Treasurer shall be one. It shall be its duty, subject to the control of the Executive Council, to supervise the finances and investments of the Society, to annually make a budget setting forth the estimated receipts and expenses of the Society for the ensuing year, commencing on the first day of January, and to present such budget to the Executive Council for consideration at its January meeting. It shall be its duty to engage a Certified Public Accountant or Accountants annually to audit the Society's accounts. It shall report to the Executive Council the accounts audited and allowed since its previous report, and perform such other similar duties as may from time to time be assigned to it by the Executive Council.

5. The Library Committee shall consist of five or more members. It shall be its duty, subject to the control of the Executive Council, to regulate the use of the Library, the Reading Room, and of all the books, periodicals, newspapers, etc., to purchase books and periodicals, and to perform such other similar duties as may from time to time be assigned to it by the Executive Council.

6. The Lecture Committee shall consist of not more than three members. It shall be its duty, subject to the control of the Executive Council, to prepare a list of lectures to be delivered during the year, to make arrangements with the lecturers, to supervise the arrangements for the delivery of the lectures, and to perform such other similar duties as may from time to time be assigned to it by the Executive Council.

7. The Garden Committee shall consist of not more than five members. It shall be the duty of this Committee to consider plans for the development and promotion of the horticultural purposes of the Society and, subject to and with the approval of the Executive Council, to carry out such plans and to perform such other similar duties as may from time to time be assigned to it by the Executive Council.

8. The Exhibition Committee shall consist of five or more members. It shall be its duty, subject to the control of the Executive Council, to organize and supervise all of the Society's Exhibitions. It shall determine dates of Exhibitions and places where they shall be held, which, however, shall be subject to the approval of the Executive Council. It may contract for printing and advertising in connection with the Shows, the cost of which shall not exceed an amount appropriated for such purpose by the Executive Council. It shall appoint all Judges, arrange for their reception and entertainment, and perform such other similar duties as may from time to time be assigned to it by the Executive Council.

XIV

RULES AND AMENDMENTS

1. The rules contained in "Robert's Rules of Order Revised" shall govern the Society in all cases to which they are applicable and in which they are not inconsistent with these By-Laws.

2. These By-Laws may be amended by the Executive Council at any regular or special meeting by the affirmative vote of a majority of the entire membership of the Executive Council, provided a notice of the proposed amendments has been sent to the members of the Executive Council with the notice for the meeting; or they may be amended if proposed at an annual or special meeting of the Society and recommended by a majority vote of those present, when submitted by letter ballot to the members, a two-thirds favorable vote of the ballots cast being required.

The above engraving was made for the Society in 1836 and was the work of John Cousen (1804-1880), a famous English engraver of landscapes and bookplates. It was originally designed for the Society's Diploma and served that purpose until a few years ago, when the Diploma was discontinued and the design adopted for the book plate and Certificate of Merit of the Society.

OBJECT AND PRIVILEGES OF THE SOCIETY

The Society's object is to promote and encourage Horticulture and to create a love for, and interest in, Plants and Flowers. It desires to increase its membership in order that its work and influence may be extended.

PRIVILEGES OF MEMBERSHIP INCLUDE

1. Subscription to Horticulture, a magazine published semi-monthly in Boston for the Horticultural Societies of Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania.
2. Services of Consultant in Horticulture—the only charge is for actual traveling expenses when members' gardens are visited. The Consultant may be seen at the rooms of the Society by appointment.
3. Illustrated lectures by prominent horticulturists during the winter season.
4. Admission to the Society's Exhibitions of Plants, Flowers, Fruits and Vegetables.
5. One admission to the Philadelphia Flower Show.
6. Use of the Library, including circulating privilege. The Library contains over 3000 volumes, in addition to current horticultural magazines. The best of the new publications are systematically added to the Library.
7. Garden Days.—In co-operation with the School of Horticulture for Women.
8. YEAR BOOK, including reports, list of members, etc.

CLASSES OF MEMBERSHIP

Patrons: Who contribute the sum of $10,000.

Benefactors: Who contribute the sum of $5,000.

Sustaining Members: Who contribute the sum of $1,000.

Life Members: Who contribute the sum of $100.

THE REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT

For those members who may not be familiar with the history of the Society before the present régime, I present a brief review of the trend of events during the past thirty or forty years, in the hope it will provide proper background to the present picture and explain how the organization which is now functioning came into being.

To provide the proper background, it is logical that the time to start such a review is the early "nineties," as the period from then to Mr. Boyd's administration, which began in 1919, is a very well defined one with strongly marked characteristics. The membership in 1886 had reached the high mark of 989, largely due to the Chrysanthemum craze. In the late nineties and early nineteen hundreds membership dropped to below three hundred, but as no membership records appear in the minutes, it is impossible to give exact figures for each year. In 1904 the annual dues were advanced from $3.00 to $5.00 (except that professional gardeners were allowed to retain membership at $3.00), but the membership continued to decline until 1913, when there were only 150 members.

The Chrysanthemum was at its height throughout this period, and the Annual Show of the Society in November cost the Society from $5,000 to $7,000 or more. Leading members of the Society, including the presidents and other officers, donated hundreds of dollars for the shows from 1890 to 1917. In addition, contributions were made by leading seedmen and the secretary solicited prize money from tradesmen. Spring exhibitions were held in March and in these, as in the Chrysanthemum Shows, commercial growers and large private estates were the leading exhibitors.

These shows were the principal active duty of the Society. The Library received scant attention and we find no reference to accessions in the minutes. The books were kept in locked cases. Although formal lectures were rare, horticultural authorities and various professors of special subjects who were associated with the Society often addressed the members at monthly meetings. There were no other activities of which we have any record, although the idea of the Society owning a garden came up from time to time at meetings. The inside organization seemed to have been the Council with its President, Treasurer and Secretary.

Digressing a little, we find during this period, several special flower societies were organized at different places in the East. The best known among them are the American Dahlia Society in 1895, the American Rose Society in 1899, the American Peony Society in 1903 and the American Gladiolus Society in 1910.

It would seem from the time of Mr. George W. Childs' presidency, in 1890, until the administration of Mr. Boyd, the duties of the president were in large part monopolized in the major financing operations of the Society, those arising out of the destruction, rebuilding and occupancy of Horticultural Hall and in raising money for what appears to be the only horticultural activity that remained—the giving of several flower shows a year. Mr. Samuel M. Rhodes made a great effort to revive the Society (1899-1902), but seems to have given up the undertaking in despair.

Mr. C. Hartman Kuhn, 1915-1919, also tried to improve the condition of the Society, but the World War made this impossible. The Society, however, was fortunate in having so able a man as Mr. Kuhn to conserve its assets and direct its finances during that period. Mr. Sydney W. Keith was treasurer from 1900 to 1923 and the Society owes a great deal to him also. It would seem from the history, a great deal of the Secretary's time was apportioned for administrative affairs but he was, to some extent, directed by the members who chose to attend the regular monthly meetings. These were generally commercial and professional members and amateurs took but little or no part in the Society's activities.

The financial situation of the Society was serious during this period, because of the destruction by fire in 1893 of Horticultural Hall on South Broad Street. In 1896 the Hall was rebuilt and cost $250,000, $225,000 being provided by issuing income certificates, subscribed to by members and others, and $25,000 through insurance money. The idea was, that the new Hall should be used for social affairs and a sinking fund established through rentals that would retire the certificates in thirty years. For five years the building earned enough to pay interest on the income certificates. After that the receipts fell off considerably and barely enough was earned to pay taxes and the cost of heating.

Mr. Rust had become Secretary in 1895 and his time was much occupied in securing lessors of Horticultural Hall and in other ways attending to the operation of the building, especially after the first ten years or so when no regular agent was employed.

The financial condition of the new Horticultural Hall was growing steadily worse. With the growing use of hotels and country clubs for private entertaining, the patronage of the building diminished. In 1909 the Society received an offer for the Hall, but considerable litigation was necessary before a clear title to the property could be established and the sale was not consummated until 1917. The price obtained was $550,000, and after deducting $200,000 to reimburse the certificate holders, and paying commissions for the expense of sale, the net proceeds amounted to about $350,000, which constituted the Elizabeth Schaffer Trust Fund, which the Girard Trust Company administers for us today, and which provides about two-thirds of the present income of the Society. After Horticultural Hall was sold in 1917 the Society rented a room in the Finance Building for its office and Library.

During Mr. Kuhn's presidency he presided at all of the meetings of the Executive Council and at some of the Society's meetings. Unfortunately, however, according to the by-laws the Executive Council, which was supposed to be the governing body, was obliged to have its actions reviewed by the Society's monthly meetings, which were attended only by a few, and, under these circumstances, very little could be accomplished. The Secretary still continued to be an active officer and, between instructions from the Executive Council and from the Society's monthly meeting, his position was decidedly difficult if not impossible. In 1919 Mr. Kuhn was succeeded by Mr. James Boyd.

It was in the period from 1904 to 1919 that Mrs. J. Mauran Rhodes started the Main Line Flower Show Association, which was composed of persons who had gardens on the Main Line. It was successful from the start and its shows, which were given at the Merion Cricket Club, were always of high quality and beautifully arranged and well attended. It was a local organization, but had an active membership of 125 flower lovers and always operated on a balanced budget. I was elected Treasurer, and after Mrs. Rhodes moved to California I became President.

So, it was to me that Mr. Boyd came with his problems of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society. The weaknesses that had caused the decline of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society were frankly rehearsed. The outstanding fault we both saw lay in the by-laws, because there was no directing force that was authoritatively centralized. Mr. Boyd told me he had accepted the Presidency with the determination to change conditions.

At the first meeting of his administration he made a number of suggestions, among them being the revision of the by-laws, the creation of an active Executive Council, and the establishment of a garden. The first year of his office, with the co-operation of other officers and members, he effected through me a consolidation with the Main Line Flower Show Association. This brought in 125 members and increased the membership to about 300.

The number of Vice-Presidents was reduced from four to two, and I was elected to be one of them in 1920. The number of Council members was increased from fourteen to eighteen, six of whom were elected annually for three years. At this time three women, Mrs. William T. Elliott, Mrs. Horatio Gates Lloyd and Miss Elizabeth Leighton Lee, were elected members of the Council, the first women who had ever been chosen to serve. The Executive Council met monthly, but the Society met only twice a year, and this has since been changed to once a year. Members of the Council were elected at the annual meeting in November. The dues were made uniform at $3.00 and the membership began to increase. With these changes in the by-laws, the sale of Horticultural Hall and the closing of the World War, the Society began to regain prosperity.

In 1923 the Society moved from the Finance Building to the building at Sixteenth and Walnut Streets. The Library was catalogued and arrangements made to accommodate readers. The Council Room was large and attractive, and the quarters much more adequate than in the Finance Building. The President became the real executive and was in daily attendance. These rooms were occupied for four years, and then the Society moved to 1600 Arch Street, its present quarters, because of the uncertainty of the continuance of the lease.

I had become chairman of the Finance Committee, and there were still weaknesses presenting themselves in the best use and administration of our income. The question of establishing a budget system and of establishing a garden were many times before the Council. After spending some money for plans of a garden and going into the matter very thoroughly, it was finally decided it was impractical for the Horticultural Society to have a garden, unless it could be endowed by some additional source of income. The Society did, however, vote to establish a budget system and it was out of this administrative feature came the formation of the standing committees of the Council that have done so much to properly proportion our expenditures in various channels, predicated upon their relative values to the Society and its members and, at the same time, giving our members the greatest benefit from each dollar we spend.

It enabled the Council to extend a helping hand to the Sargent Memorial Endowment of Arnold Arboretum, Bartram's Garden and the School of Horticulture for Women, all worthy horticultural activities. It also contributed toward the erection of a memorial to Victor Lemoine at Nancy, France. The Society joined with the Horticultural Society of New York in co-operating with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in the publication of "Horticulture," and every member of all three Societies became a subscriber when joining his Society.

Free use of the Council Rooms was extended to all clubs and societies connected with horticulture having an officer who was a member of this Society. In 1924 Garden Visiting Days were inaugurated and a little later a special committee for garden awards was established within the Council.

Beginning in 1920, exhibitions were held at armories at Broad and Callowhill Streets and Thirty-second Street and Lancaster Avenue and later, in 1924, in Memorial Hall in Fairmount Park. Shows were held there from 1924 to 1927 and, so far as popularity was concerned, they were most successful. The orchid show held May 7, 8, 9, 1926, recorded an attendance of 110,000. Unfortunately, Memorial Hall was city property and we were compelled to find another hall upon the request of the trustees, who were using it for other purposes. The Society co-operated with the Florists' Club and others in establishing the Philadelphia Flower Show. The first exhibition was held in the Commercial Museum in March, 1925. This show, as you know, has grown to rival the New York Show, which is held about the same time. The Society was fortunate in securing the co-operation of many of the garden clubs of Philadelphia and they exhibited as individuals and as clubs at our shows, and to the clubs that held local shows the Society was glad to donate silver cups and medals.

I have had a chart prepared which shows at a glance how our membership is grouped, how the central authority is centered in the Council, and how the Council is broken up into standing committees. Special committees are formed from time to time as needed.

Upon Mr. Boyd's death, which occurred December 2, 1929, I was elected President. As Vice-President and Chairman of the Finance Committee during the years of Mr. Boyd's Presidency, I was in close contact with the Society's affairs and because he was compelled to go away for several winters on account of his health, I presided at many Council meetings at a time of year when the Society's activities were at their peak.

I assisted Mr. Boyd in working out a further revision of the by-laws, which took effect January, 1924, whereby practically all the executive powers were delegated to the President and the Executive Council. The Council elected the Society's officers and new members. The Society met annually in November and elected six members to the Executive Council for a term of three years. In 1929, the number of Council members was changed and there were seven elected each year for a three-year term.

When I assumed office there were things under way that had only partially been accomplished and there were others that still needed ironing out. Important among these was the fulfillment of the movement to establish the Garden Club Federation of Pennsylvania, which, as you know, has become an established fact and is now in a healthy growing condition. There were difficulties to be overcome arising in large part from misunderstandings on the part of the professional gardeners, and also with our relationship with the Philadelphia Flower Show Association. We owe a great deal to Mr. George L. Farnum, chairman of the Exhibition Committee, and to our Secretary, Mr. John C. Wister, in bringing about the friendly and co-operative condition which exists today.

I have tried to continue all the activities started in Mr. Boyd's tenure of office and I have enlarged upon them. Mr. Rust's department of garden consultation was started shortly before Mr. Boyd's death. I realized the importance of this work, especially to our younger members, and it has been strengthened by placing on this committee some of the scientific members of our Society.

The question box at the last two annual meetings has also been a move to give our members the benefit of scientific information from our professional members.

The Library is now settled in its new and enlarged quarters. It has been built up and administered through the untiring efforts of Mrs. Horatio Gates Lloyd and her committee.

The Lecture Committee has enlarged the number of lectures and has begun to hold some of them in the evening for the benefit of those who cannot attend in the afternoon. The splendid response that our lectures have had is evidence of a most successful administration of this activity by Mrs. William T. Elliott and her committee.

The Exhibition Committee, headed by Mr. Farnum, is worthy of praise from all of us. Its accomplishments have been meritorious in all that it has undertaken. Its work, so far as contracts and scope are concerned, is probably the greatest and most difficult of any of our committees.

Our other committees have worked equally well—the Executive Committee, the Finance Committee and the Garden Awards Committee. Above all, I have striven for harmony in all departments of the Society's affairs and have given such time and effort as I could in ironing out difficulties that have arisen from time to time, and our present healthy condition and success is due entirely to the wholehearted interest and co-operation that the Council, with its various committees, has shown in the Society.

As a means of conveying the knowledge of our activities and our work to our members, I have recognized the advantages of a more comprehensive Year Book and have endeavored to give encouragement and helpful suggestions to this activity. In addition, I feel that the Society should print from time to time valuable horticultural information.

Before closing, let me say that since I have been connected with the Society, I have been opposed to having it tie its money up in real estate for a home, or place any of its capital outside of its own control in the hands of other organizations, to the end that our finances may always be controlled in their entirety by ourselves, and that our income should be dispensed so that it becomes a real service of increasing value in the interest of horticulture. We are fortunate in having the Schaffer endowment and I am quite sure by this means we are carrying out the spirit of the endowment, as well as the spirit for which this Society was organized.

It would undoubtedly be a very fine thing for the Society to have a hall of its own such as it had in days gone by, and it would likewise be a fine thing for the Society to have a garden of its own. Within our organization of membership we have all of the horticultural knowledge and ability to plan, develop and care for such a garden. However, unless endowments are given to us for these purposes, it would be financially unwise for us to attempt them. The Society is looking for increased memberships in annual, life, sustaining, benefactor and patron classes, and the latter memberships would be of particular value in providing funds to endow these objects.

In submitting this annual message, I must pay my respects to our Secretary, Mr. John C. Wister, whose wide knowledge of horticulture and outstanding position in the horticultural world have been of immeasurable assistance to me and of help to the Society and members at large.

C. FREDERICK C. STOUT,
President.

ANNUAL MEETING

NOVEMBER 16, 1932

The Annual Meeting of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society was held on November 16, 1932, in the auditorium of the Insurance Company of North America Building, 1600 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

The President, Mr. C. Frederick C. Stout, was in the Chair and called the meeting to order.

The Secretary, Mr. John C. Wister, announced the re-election of the following members to the Executive Council to serve during 1933, 1934 and 1935: Mr. Morris R. Bockius, Mr. W. Atlee Burpee, Jr., Mrs. J. Norman Henry, Mrs. Horatio Gates Lloyd, Mr. J. Franklin McFadden, Mr. W. Hinckle Smith and Mr. John C. Wister.

The President made a brief report for the year, covering the following points: Membership, finances, the new Library, the Philadelphia Flower Show, the Society's relations with other organizations, its contributions to horticultural causes and the losses the Society has suffered through death.

The Secretary reported in greater detail upon the activities of the past year. (See Secretary's report.)

The Secretary's report was followed by the Question Box, the special feature of the meeting, and written questions submitted by members were referred to and answered by the following authorities: Mr. James Bush-Brown, Landscape Architecture; Mr. George L. Farnum, Dahlias; Mr. Charles K. Hallowell, Lawns; Mr. Wendell F. Oliver, Trees and Shrubs; Dr. J. Horace McFarland, Roses; Mr. H. G. Mattoon, Insects and Plant Disease; Dr. Rodney H. True and Dr. H. H. York, Botany; Mr. David Rust, general gardening questions, and Mr. Stout, the President, questions about the Society.

So many questions were presented that it was only possible in the hour reserved for this part of the program to answer half of them, and members were told that if they would send duplicate questions, attaching their signatures, to the office, answers to their inquiries would be mailed to them.

Special tables had been reserved for plants and flowers brought to the meeting by members and these proved very interesting. Among the exhibits were two unusual collections of berry-bearing shrubs, displays of Chrysanthemums, a plant of Grevillea thelemanniana in bloom and Osmanthus aquifolium in flower.

More than a hundred attended the meeting.

SECRETARY'S REPORT FOR 1932

Because finances occupy such an important place in all our minds this year, I shall start my report with a brief reference to the Society's financial condition. For the benefit of our new members, I wish to explain that the Society receives its income from two sources—an endowment fund, which provides about two-thirds of its annual income, and the income from Annual and Life Memberships, which makes up the remaining third. The endowment fund was made possible through the generosity of William L. Schaffer, who served as President of the Society from 1867 to 1884, and his sister, Miss Elizabeth Schaffer. It is in the form of a Trust Fund, of which the Girard Trust Company is the trustee. It has been handled excellently and during this past year, when the economic situation has been so acute, the Society has lost comparatively little income. Most of the fund is invested in mortgages on which some interest payments have been reduced, some have been delayed and only one is in actual default. Both the Massachusetts and the New York Societies have much larger incomes than we have.

In regard to the income from membership dues, I am happy to report that this is larger in 1932 than it has ever been in the history of the Society—due to a net gain of 150 Annual Members, and to the increasing interest from the Life Membership fund. Life Membership fees, of course, are invested and only the income is used. We hope in time to build up a really worth-while fund from these fees. At present, our income from this source is not quite $2,000.00, while our Annual Membership fees remain at the nominal sum of $3.00 in spite of many suggestions that they be raised on account of the many privileges we give. We hope that more of our Annual Members may each year desire to become Life Members, and thus show their interest in our work by helping us build up a larger endowment fund.

The total membership for the year 1932 is 3682—not much larger than the 3500 figure of last year, but a most encouraging gain under present difficult conditions.

It seems proper to tell new members and to remind old members that no salaries are paid to the President, the Vice-Presidents, the Secretary, the Treasurer, or to any member of the Executive Council or of our various committees. All of these officials serve, and give much time to our work, without any compensation whatsoever, because they believe they can further the cause of horticulture through the work of the Society. As all of them are busy people and give their time to the Society at the sacrifice of other personal affairs, it is proper that the members should not only know this and appreciate what they do, but should also understand why it is impossible for them to give more time or their full time to the work of the Society. They cannot be expected to keep regular office hours like persons on a paid staff. The regular paid staff numbers four persons, but at times of exhibitions and meetings it is occasionally necessary to hire extra help.

We are proud of the new quarters for the Library and hope that all our members will use and enjoy the more pleasant surroundings and the many new books and periodicals. In addition to purchases through our regular appropriations, we have had several valuable gifts of books, the most recent gift being a set of six volumes on English gardens, presented by Mr. Alexander MacLeod, a member of the Executive Council.

I should like to call attention to one of the problems that continues to worry us. We have no good central exhibition hall where our shows can be held. Last spring we had a particularly beautiful exhibition at the Merion Cricket Club. The exhibitors went to great pains to bring and stage their choicest flowers, but the attendance was very small. So many good local flower shows have come into existence during recent years that after people have seen the one in their own locality they may not wish to go to a distance to see another. Co-operation with different local organizations may prove the best solution, but many of these societies do not have large enough halls to accommodate a joint show, so that the overflow would have to occupy a tent, which is not a satisfactory arrangement if we happen to strike a hot June day. Next spring a show will be held in co-operation with the Rutledge Horticultural Society.

While on the subject of exhibitions, I wish to report that the Philadelphia Flower Show Association will give us, in 1933, one ticket for each of our members instead of two, as they have so generously done in the past. We are sorry that this change has been necessary, but think that in view of our fast-growing membership it is perfectly justified. In consideration of the many privileges which our members receive for their $3.00 dues, they will, I believe, agree that they ought not to expect more than one ticket. If they do feel aggrieved, may I remind them that the dues in the New York Society are $10.00.

"Horticulture" has continued an outstanding privilege, being a source of almost universal interest and value to members. In addition to the magazine which serves the interests of the three largest Horticultural Societies of the East—Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania—other contacts of these three groups have been harmonious and helpful. We have exchanged Gold Medals with both Massachusetts and New York as in other years, and we have also established an exchange of Medals with the American Dahlia Society. We have offered our medals, vases and plaquettes to twenty-six other organizations in an effort to stimulate interest in their Flower Shows. We have been glad to receive again this year the Iris Cup offered by Mrs. Horatio Gates Lloyd, and the Mrs. J. Willis Martin Cup offered by Mrs. E. Florens Rivinus, for award at our shows. We hope other members will wish to establish individual trophies, as they promote interest among the exhibitors.

The Department of Garden Consultation, headed by Mr. David Rust, has flourished and he has been of service to a large number of our members. I hope our new members will feel no hesitancy in calling upon him for advice—either at the Society's office or in their own gardens. May I repeat for the benefit of new members that there is absolutely no charge for Mr. Rust's services, except his actual traveling expenses when he visits members' gardens. Furthermore, there should be no hesitancy in calling upon him. You are entitled by your membership to use this service and he is paid by the Society for doing it. We particularly want our members with small places to avail themselves of this privilege.

Members have been very liberal in supplying flowers for our offices and Board room, and I wish to assure them that we appreciate their thoughtfulness very much indeed. We have had some very interesting and rare flowers that are worthy of a special exhibition. We hope that more and more persons will want to bring us flowers next year. Among the members who have brought us flowers, plants or shrubs this year are Mr. W. Atlee Burpee, Jr., Mr. F. E. Dixon, Mr. George L. Farnum, Mr. Fairman R. Furness, Mr. and Mrs. Jay V. Hare, Mrs. J. Norman Henry, Mrs. John W. Hutchinson, Mrs. Horatio Gates Lloyd, Mr. Alexander MacLeod, Mr. S. S. Pennock, Mrs. Alan Reed, Mr. W. H. Ritter, Mr. H. Arnold Todd, Miss Anne Wertsner, Mrs. Edgar T. Wherry and Mrs. Lillian T. Wright.

I know of no new developments in the status of the Painter Arboretum, in whose final disposition many members are interested. In regard to the estate of Mr. John T. Morris and Miss Lydia Morris, I presume that most members know from the papers that this was left to the University of Pennsylvania to be administered under a Board of Trustees as an arboretum and botanical garden, and that it will be formally opened in 1933.

In closing, I wish to remind members that the usefulness of the Society depends upon the interest and support of its members. If any lasting benefits to horticulture are to be accomplished, they must have their origin in the efforts of individuals. I hope that all members will feel free to come to the office with suggestions, or criticisms, or with any questions about our work.

JOHN C. WISTER,
Secretary.

GEORGE L. FARNUM
Chairman, Exhibition Committee

REPORT OF EXHIBITION COMMITTEE FOR 1932

The Exhibition Committee is glad to report that there has been no decrease in the interest shown or in the quality of flowers displayed at the various exhibitions directed by this committee, which is indeed worthy of comment when we consider the difficulties under which many have been working. This is particularly true of the gardeners who, in spite of reduced forces and curtailed allowances for new varieties and plant material, staged most interesting and beautiful exhibits, which were highly commended by the judges.

The June Show was marked by a refinement of line with much thought to detail and color, which is deserving of favorable comment; and this refinement was ably carried out by the various Garden Club classes. Great improvement was noted in all displays and arrangements, giving a general effect which was altogether pleasing. The Dahlia Show was a decided improvement on former years, both in quality of bloom and in the general variety of artistic displays. This was also true of the Hardy Chrysanthemum Show.

A chronological arrangement of the exhibitions is as follows:

March 7-12. Garden Club and Amateur Classes in the Philadelphia Flower Show, Commercial Museum, Philadelphia. Total attendance, about 86,000.

June 3-4. Peony and Spring Flower Show, Merion Cricket Club, Haverford, Pa. Attendance very small.

September 30 and October 1. Dahlia Show, Bryn Mawr Horse Show, Bryn Mawr, Pa. Large attendance.

November 2 and 3. Hardy Chrysanthemum Show, 1600 Arch Street, Philadelphia. Attendance 324.

Respectfully submitted,

GEORGE L. FARNUM,
Chairman.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON GARDEN AWARDS FOR 1932

The following awards were made to gardens of members during 1932 upon the recommendation of the Committee on Garden Awards:

A Silver Medal to Mrs. Andrew Wheeler, "le Chatelet," Ardmore, for her beautiful and thoroughly consistent French Garden. Laid out after the garden of Petit Trianon at Versailles, it is perfectly executed in every detail. The tapis vert, herb bordered on each side, is lined with allees of pleached European elms, the only ones we know of in this country. The charming garden house and rose garden show the intense interest of its owner, who personally superintends the garden, both in its conception and maintenance.

A Silver Medal to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Graham Thomson, "Brookmead Farm," Devon, for their attractive and interesting farm. The wall garden by the house, overlooking the meadows, is of real beauty, and the collection of unusual shrubs is not only most interesting but demonstrates the keen interest and knowledge of Mrs. Thomson. An upper garden and woodland development are in the making and give still greater promise.

A Bronze Medal to Mr. and Mrs. John H. Packard, 3rd, Chestnut Hill for their intimate garden. This garden, being an integral part of the house, is charmingly planned and beautifully executed; full of color and interest, it can be enjoyed from the terrace which overlooks it.

A Bronze Medal to Mr. and Mrs. John C. Gilpin, "Sugar Loaf Orchard," Chestnut Hill. Their garden, while very different in type, is equally delightful, utilizing the beauty of its location on the side of a hill, with an extensive view, and the natural advantages of orchard and trees to make a charming whole. The color sense of the owner is emphasized by her use of flowers and bulbs as they blend first with the blossoms and later with the climbing roses which trail along the low stone wall.

Respectfully submitted,

WILLIAM J. SERRILL,

Chairman.

REPORT OF THE LECTURE COMMITTEE FOR 1932

Four lectures were presented in 1932, as follows:

January 19, 3 P. M. "Rare and Unusual Plants," by Mr. B. Y. Morrison, of Washington, D. C.

February 2, 3 P. M. "Gardens, a Community Asset," by Mr. John C. Wister, of Philadelphia (Secretary of the Society).

February 16, 3 P. M. "Small Fruits for the Home Garden," by Dr. S. W. Fletcher, of State College, Pa.

November 29, 8. P. M. "A Glimpse of the World in Kodacolor Movies," by Mrs. Caspar W. Hacker, Bryn Mawr, Pa.

The lectures were unusually interesting and were ably presented. The attendance varied from 125 to 300. Mrs. Hacker's colored pictures, which she had taken herself on an around the world cruise, were very beautiful, and her descriptive remarks which accompanied the moving pictures helped make the evening an enjoyable one. Dr. Fletcher had given his lecture on "Small Fruits for the Home Garden" before the Society several years ago, and so many members wished it repeated, the Lecture Committee was delighted to include it in the 1932 series.

Mr. B. Y. Morrison spoke enthusiastically about the joy to be derived in obtaining and growing "Rare and Unusual Plants," and his talk stimulated many of his hearers to become interested in the rarer things that are being introduced into commerce and to ask for them from the seedsmen instead of being satisfied with the old familiar favorites which we can all grow. There were so many requests for a list of the plants which he showed on the screen that we are pleased to include it in this report for the benefit of all the members.

Reading Room in the Library of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society

Book Stacks in the Library of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society

REPORT OF THE LIBRARY COMMITTEE FOR 1932

The Library Committee takes pleasure in reporting that early in 1932 the Library was moved into larger and more adequate quarters. The former Council Room was made into a commodious Reading Room, with large tables upon which reference books can be spread. Low leather chairs, small tables and good standard lamps add to the comfort of the readers. Extra racks for the display of periodicals and catalogs and a case for recent accessions were also added. A large room opening from the Reading Room has many additional stacks that give much needed space for the growing Library.

The Librarian's desk was moved to the Reading Room from the crowded office and the Garden Consultant's desk was placed in the well-lighted stack room. The Committee hopes that many more of the members will avail themselves of the library privilege and that those who are not members will feel free to use the Library for reading and reference. The circulation privilege is reserved for members. It is gratifying to record that nine hundred and sixty-nine persons used the Library in 1932 as compared with seven hundred and thirty-three in 1931.

The Library is open on weekdays from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. and on Saturdays from 9 A. M. to 12 noon, and the Librarian is glad to be of assistance to visitors. For the benefit of members who are employed during the day and who would like to use the Library in the evening, appointments may be made with the Librarian to have the Library open one evening a week.

A catalog was published two years ago of the 2800 books then in the Library and is available upon application. With the list of accessions printed in the year books of 1932 and 1933, it forms a complete record of the books in the Library—3450 at the end of 1932. The Society subscribes to periodicals, among which are the best English horticultural magazines and one French and one German representative publication.

The Committee wishes to acknowledge with thanks the many interesting and valuable books that have been given to the Library through the generosity of the following members:

Mr. E. I. Farrington	Mrs. Lorin Witmer
Miss Ernestine A. Goodman	Mrs. John C. Gilpin
Mrs. George B. Junkin	Mrs. J. Norman Henry
Mrs. J. Franklin McFadden	Mr. Alexander MacLeod
Mr. B. Y. Morrison	Mrs. Edward Sayres

An outstanding gift to the Library was "Gardens of Colony and State," by Alice G. B. Lockwood (Mrs. Luke Vincent Lockwood), published by the Garden Club of America and presented by The Gardeners.

Respectfully submitted,
MARY HELEN WINGATE LLOYD,
(Mrs. Horatio Gates Lloyd),
Chairman, Library Committee.

GARDEN DAYS

In 1932 The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society again held its Garden Days in co-operation with the School of Horticulture for Women. As the "Days" are an important source of revenue to the School, the Society made a financial contribution to the School, as it has done for the last few years. In return, the School arranged the Garden Day program and members of the Society were allowed the privilege of visiting all the gardens listed.

The program included fifty-seven gardens, the majority of them being opened on Saturday afternoons in May, June and October. A group of ten beautiful places in the vicinity of Morristown, N. J., however, was opened on a Tuesday (May 24th).

On account of the celebration of the anniversaries of William Penn and George Washington, a special feature was made of historical gardens and houses and visits to these places added much interest to the 1932 program.

The Society wishes to express its appreciation to the persons who so generously opened their places for the joint Garden Days, and assures them that this privilege, which has a definite educational value, was greatly enjoyed by the members.

DAVID RUST

Consultant in Horticulture and Manager of Exhibitions

CONSULTANT IN HORTICULTURE

Mr. David Rust visited eighty-three gardens of members during 1932. The list of subjects about which he was most frequently consulted follows, and is arranged according to the frequency of the inquiries:

Group One	Group Two
Pruning	Location and Planting
Planting Perennials	Moving of Trees
Treatment of Lawns	Vegetable Gardens
Spraying	Planting on Old Places
Treatment of Outdoor Roses	Treatment of Orchids
Planting Evergreens	Wall Gardens
Treatment of Evergreens	Bulb Gardens
Japanese Beetle	Enclosed Porches
Judging Shows	Pools
Talks before Garden Clubs	Rock Gardens
Flowering Shrubs	Stepping Stone Walks
Treatment of Box

In addition to visiting gardens, Mr. Rust has had many office consultations, has given much advice by telephone and letters, has given fourteen talks before horticultural organizations and acted as judge at seventeen flower shows. The work is extending to larger territory each year. This past year one trip was made to Warren County, Pa., one trip to Maryland and four trips to Southern New Jersey.

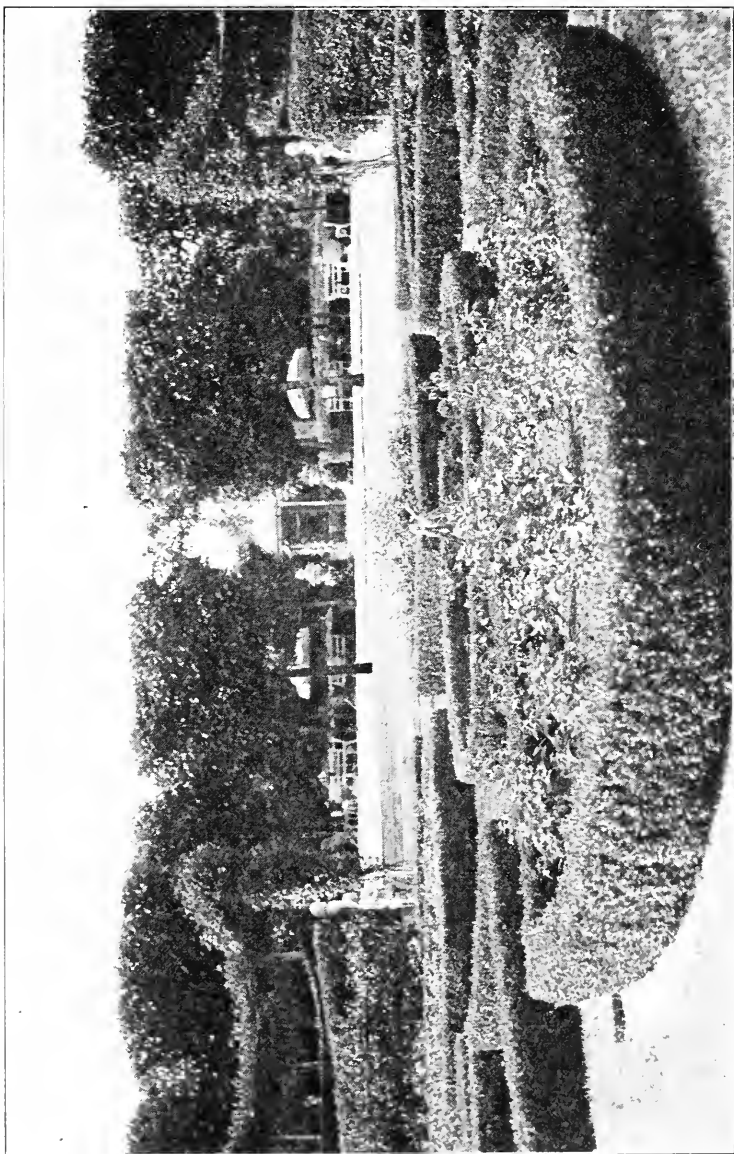

Members are advised that they should make more use of this service during the winter months, as at that time many insect pests can be eradicated. Also members going away during the summer months would do well to consult Mr. Rust before they go as to the care of their gardens while away. This year a large number of Azaleas, Rhododendrons and evergreens were very badly injured by the dry weather.

Mr. Rust is at the service of all members. He will visit members' gardens to give advice, the only charge being for traveling expenses. He is also available for consultation at the office, preferably by appointment.

THE GARDEN CLUB FEDERATION OF PENNSYLVANIA, 1932

A glance through the minutes of the Garden Club Federation of Pennsylvania for the past year must give all the officers and members of the Federation a certain feeling of gratification and courage to go forward.

In January, 1932, a new activity was introduced—a Judging Course. This was held in co-operation with the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, in the auditorium at 1600 Arch Street. The course was most successful and there were 113 enrollments. The schedule was as follows:

January 11, Monday. Judging in Straight Garden Classes, with demonstration. Mr. Leonard Barron.

January 12, Tuesday. Schedule for Flower Show, duties of Chairmen and Judges. Mrs. Wheeler H. Peckham.

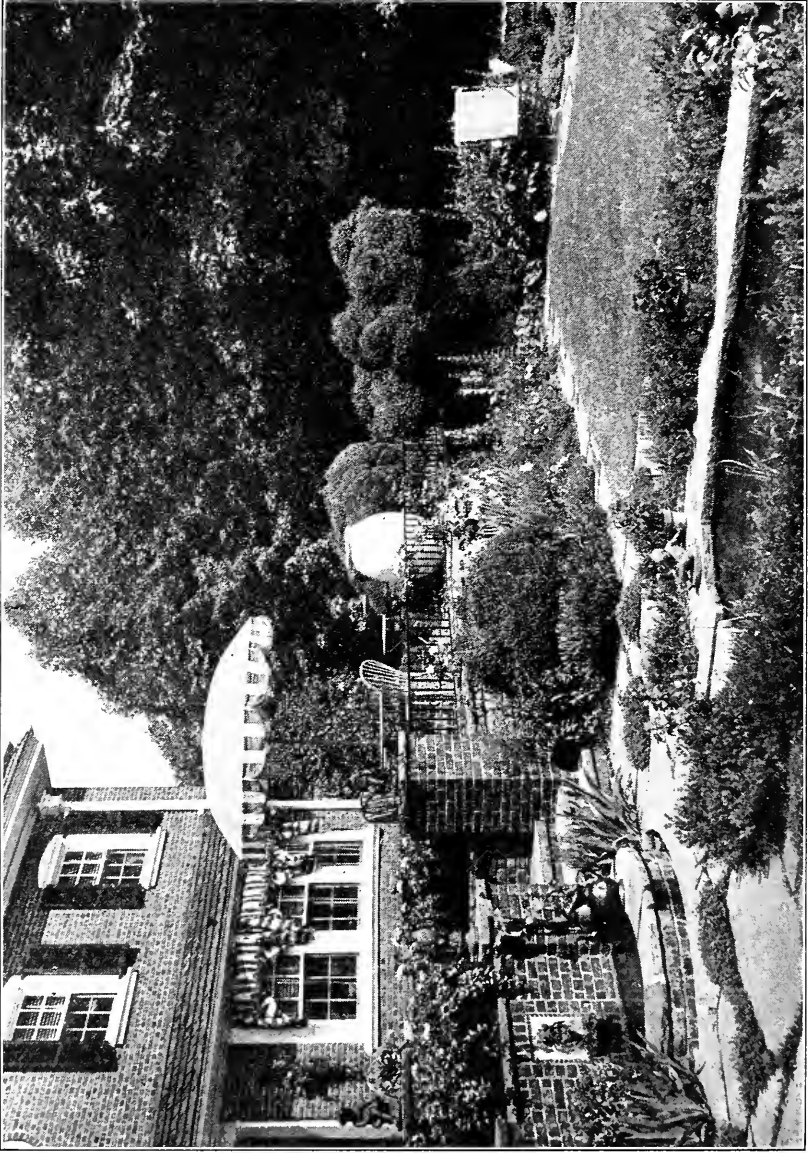

January 13, Wednesday. Japanese Flower Arrangements, Miss Mary Louise Butcher; Modernistic Arrangements, Mr. Eugene Schoen.

January 14, Thursday. Judging for Artistic Arrangement. Mr. Richardson Wright.

The Second Annual Meeting was held at Strawberry Mansion on March 9, 1932, with 36 of the 62 member clubs represented. Following the election of officers and presentation of the inspiring reports by the committee chairmen and delegates of work accomplished during the year, it was a privilege and honor to unanimously elect Mrs. J. Willis Martin Honorary President, which office she very graciously accepted. No report would be complete without a word of loving tribute to such a gallant leader who has left us. After a buffet supper, Mrs. Duncan Brent told of the Maryland Federation. Mrs. Norman Henry gave an account of plant hunting in British Columbia, and Mr. John C. Wister talked on plant material. Mr. Wister prefaced his remarks with the assurance that we, in Pennsylvania, can grow a greater variety of things than most of the other states in the Union.

The 1932 Gold Medal of Achievement given by Mrs. George L. Harrison was awarded to the Kittanning Garden Club, "for the abundance and variety of their well-planned and well-executed original and educational work for the furtherance of the knowledge and love of horticulture among adults and children." First Honorable Mention was awarded to the Carrie T. Watson Garden Club, "for the continued beautification of their town, for their formation of new garden clubs among school children, and for their planting of nearly 9000 shade trees." Second Honorable Mention awarded to the Westmoreland Garden Club, "for their planting of trees and shrubs on the highway, their planting survey of the town, for their making an oasis of the village jail grounds, and for their lawn and garden contest for non-members." Third Honorable Mention awarded to the Lawrence County Garden Club, "for their State highway planting of shrubs and flowers, for their enrollment of Junior Club Members, and for their care of old forest trees in the park" Fourth Honorable Mention awarded to the Village Garden Club of Sewickley, "for their conservation of wild flowers, for their surveyance of trucks deporting rhododendrons and laurel from the mountains, and for their civic gardens enterprise.

The semi-annual meeting was held at Erie, October 11 and 12, 1932, with the Carrie T. Watson Garden Club as hostess. The Federation wishes to again express its grateful appreciation of the splendid program, which included drives on the Peninsula and through beautiful estates, and of the efficient handling of the meetings.

1932 REPORT OF GARDEN DIVISION OF STATE FEDERATION OF PENNSYLVANIA WOMEN

The aim of the Garden Division is:

The stimulation of garden interest in all clubs in the State Federation.

The organization of garden interest under the leadership of chairmen and executive committees.

The expression of garden interest through programs for meetings and activities.

Growth of interest is indicated by the increased requests for program suggestions and calls for accurate information on many garden topics.

Growth in organization is shown by the fact that over one hundred and fifty groups in the clubs are planning for the increase of gardens. These groups are being developed in many clubs organized primarily to serve other interests. At the annual convention of the State Federation in Philadelphia in October, 1932, the attendance at the garden breakfast, the garden conference and the garden exhibit showed the interest of delegates from all parts of the State. County and district meetings show this same lively interest.

Growth in the expression of garden interest is shown in better personal gardens; more community plantings; increase in number of garden centers; plant exchanges and other methods of sharing garden beauty and plant material. Garden book libraries are being established in clubs and garden-book weeks are being sponsored in many of the public libraries in the State.

There is a very apparent trend toward better layout, the desire being to have gardens which may be lived in and enjoyed intimately. Yard and garden contests are a great factor in this.

Better plant culture and the use of better varieties are resulting from our many flower shows.

Courses of study as well as one-day garden schools are growing more numerous.

In short, gardening for women has passed the fad stage and is becoming a serious interest.

Respectfully submitted,

ALICE PECK KAISER,

(Mrs. Frank A. Kaiser),

Chairman, Garden Division of State Federation of Pennsylvania Women.

ARTHUR HOYT SCOTT HORTICULTURAL FOUNDATION

Swarthmore College, Swarthmore, Pa.

By JOHN C. WISTER, Director

Arthur Hoyt Scott was one of many thousands of persons whose interest in gardening began in the early years of the present century. He had first a small city garden in West Philadelphia, then a suburban garden of an acre or more in Oak Lane, and finally a large farm in Media, and in all three of these places he grew many beautiful flowers to unusual perfection. When I first knew him in Oak Lane, about twenty years ago, his favorite flowers were peonies, irises and lilacs. One of the first things he told me was that he had had great trouble in learning about the different kinds of peonies, and that before making his selection of varieties he had gone to the American Peony Society Test Garden at Cornell to study varieties. Later he had heard there were fine lilacs to see in Rochester and had gone there to study and select the kinds he wished for his own garden. Even then he was deploring the lack of a public garden near Philadelphia where Philadelphians could see the many kinds of flowers which they could grow in small city or suburban gardens. He held this to be more important than the privilege of seeing tropical plants in Horticultural Hall, Fairmount Park, which only those persons with large greenhouses and trained gardeners could grow.

When Mr. Scott moved to Media and planted a larger garden and had room for many large shrubs and flowering cherries, apples and other flowering trees, he found this same difficulty—that he could not within easy radius of Philadelphia see mature specimens in bloom. It is true that he did see many plants before he planted them, for being a member of The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, he was able to visit many private gardens which were not ordinarily opened to the public. He also visited many nurseries, such as Krewson's, in Cheltenham, Moon's, in Morrisville, DeKalb, in Norristown, Andorra, in Chestnut Hill, Wohlert's in Narberth, Hoopes Brothers and Thomas', in West Chester, etc., and from what he had learned in these places and what he read about in books and garden magazines, he brought together a wonderful collection of plants.

But still, in the back of his mind there remained a resentment that he had not been able, as a beginner, to see these plants in some nearby public garden, and gradually he developed the desire to help make possible such a public garden. Being a graduate of Swarthmore College, it was natural that his mind should turn to its campus in this connection, and for a number of years he talked to the College authorities, particularly Prof. Samuel A. Palmer, of the Department of Botany, trying to work out some kind of a scheme by which an Arboretum—not so much of scientific character but of practical value—might be established there.

His long illness and untimely death prevented his bringing these plans into any definite shape, but Mrs. Scott had not forgotten his desire and in 1929 made possible by a generous endowment a memorial in the form of the Arthur Hoyt Scott Horticultural Foundation.

In 1930 I was asked to become the Director of this Foundation. I was not given any specific directions as to what should or should not be done, but I knew from long acquaintance with Mr. Scott pretty well what he had in mind, and therefore I suggested to Mrs. Scott and to the Swarthmore authorities that the type of planting which would have pleased him most would have been one which emphasized the many smaller flowering trees, the flowering shrubs and the most important of the flowering herbaceous plants which are hardy without expert care in the region around Philadelphia. I was authorized to proceed with plans, giving the most prominent positions to such plants, but to include as many other hardy trees, shrubs and flowering garden plants as the space and funds available would permit.

Swarthmore College owns about 237 acres of land in the borough of Swarthmore and also the Crum-Martin Woods along Crum Creek, about a mile north of the campus. The main campus of the College is just north of the Pennsylvania Railroad along the Chester Road. It is fairly level, with a gentle slope to the south. Like most of the American colleges, the buildings have been placed from time to time without any comprehensive scheme in mind and the planting has been done in the same manner. The present campus is beautiful on account of many large trees, some of them dating back long before the beginning of the College, and with great sweeps of lawn the summer aspect of the grounds is most pleasing. In general, however, the variety of trees was not before 1930 very great, covering only about 70 species in about 30 genera, and after the founders of the College had begun well by planting fine oaks, hemlocks and lindens, later generations unfortunately put in many Norway maples and Norway spruce, which are now present in much greater quantity than is desirable. The lack of evergreens is most noticeable, particularly in a college campus which is used mostly in winter and which, therefore, is quite bare during most of the college year, and no attempt has ever been made to plant many flowering trees or flowering shrubs.

The problem of replanting such a college campus with limited expenditures is not an easy one. The beauty of the existing fine trees must, of course, be kept and yet new planting must be fitted into them, not only to make an attractive whole but to conform in some way to an educational scheme for students and visitors. It is not possible in a property of this kind to cut down many trees because of the sentimental association that many persons connected with the College have for certain specimens. After long study it seemed wise to rearrange the planting of the campus in a great botanical scheme, running through from the lowest order of plants, the ginkgo, yews and pines, on through the deciduous trees, until the composite family, the most complex form of plant life, was reached. This scheme has had to be superimposed upon the haphazard planting of the past. While theoretically the new scheme and the old cannot exist together, yet in practice it has been found that the results are pleasing and are sufficiently scientific for the use of the students.

In order that some impression can be had by the reader of the scope of the planting, I should like to briefly review some of the trees and shrubs which are being used in this circle-like planting. We have at the beginning, in the southwest corner of the campus, the ginkgos, of which there are a number of fine large specimens. Following them comes the yew family, of which we have planted not only the common dwarf Japanese yew but the various types of upright Japanese yew and the English yew. Then comes the great pine family, which includes the junipers, arborvitae, spruces, firs, hemlocks, pines, and many others. These are planted in a great screen along the Pennsylvania Railroad lines on the southerly edge of the campus. This planting will give to Philadelphians an outline of the large number of evergreen trees which will thrive in our climate and which are ordinarily procurable in American nurseries. The plants are now only from two to five feet high, but it will not be many years before they begin to take their characteristic forms and repay study.

Following the pine group, space is reserved for a few members of the lily and grass families, of which the yucca and bamboo may be mentioned. Next come willows and poplars, and then along Chester Road there is space for a few specimen beeches, oaks, elms, etc.

The important display of spring flowering trees and shrubs, in which Mr. Scott was so much interested, begins near the library with a collection of magnolias. We have already planted here magnolia conspicua, magnolia soulangeana, magnolia soulangeana alba superba, magnolia soulangeana alexandrina, and magnolia soulangeana speciosa. It is hoped to add half a dozen more varieties of these wonderful spring blooming magnolias, of which only the type is known to Philadelphia gardeners. Other spring flowering species of magnolias, such as kobus and salicifolia, will, of course, be represented here also.

Near this early April group of flowers follow the saxifrage family, with its deutzias, mockoranges and hydrangeas. These shrubs will be represented in a score of varieties near the College library.

The botanical arrangement then brings us to the most important of all spring flowering plant families—the rose family—which includes not only roses, but such shrubs as spiraea, aronia, photinia, cydonia and cotoneaster, and such trees as the flowering apples, cherries, peaches, plums and hawthorns. The shrubs of this family are planted near Chester Road and Cedar Lane, in the vicinity of Worth and Bond Halls, while the flowering trees occupy the hillside above this, first with a collection of over twenty kinds of flowering apples and then a little further north a collection of thirty-four kinds of Japanese flowering cherries—these being the gift of Mrs. Allan K. White, of Atlantic City. As flowering cherries and other spring flowers are much more effective with evergreen background, a number of pines, spruces and hemlocks have been used in this border, some of them being the gift of the Arboretum of the Westtown School. In this connection, along Cedar Lane we have taken temporary advantage of the fact that the cherries will not at present occupy the entire area of land which has been well prepared, and have here concentrated our planting of herbaceous plants.

First we put in the iris and peony collection of the late President of this Society, Mr. James Boyd, the plants being given to Swarthmore College by Mr. Boyd's children, in memory of their mother, who was a Swarthmore graduate. There are about 100 varieties of each of these flowers, and to them have been added about 100 varieties of daffodils and over 200 varieties of hardy, outdoor flowering chrysanthemums. It was from these plants that the Scott Foundation staged its first exhibit at The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society's Chrysanthemum Show last November. They were put in, not for competition, but to show to the Philadelphia public how many different kinds of chrysanthemums could be grown here and let them know that in Swarthmore this collection was open to the public. It was, of course, a satisfaction but also rather an embarrassment to the exhibitors, that the judges thought the exhibit was so good that they gave it a Silver Medal, for the exhibit had purposely been entered not for competition.

Leaving this part of the campus, we pass rapidly through a number of plant families, such as the pea family, which is represented by the locust, the laburnum and other trees, the maple and horse chestnut families, and finally come to the dogwood family near the meeting house, and from it to the great heath family, which is, of course, one of the most important of all American plant families. The bit of woods by the meeting house gives an ideal place for the planting of species of rhododendron, azalea, andromeda, leucothoe, mountain laurel, and many other members of this great family, while just to the north of these woods a small garden about eighty feet square has been set aside for more than fifty named varieties of azaleas, such as the ghent and mollis hybrids, kurumes, ledifolias, etc. This garden was made possible through the gifts of the Four Counties Garden Club.

In front of the meeting house, in one of the most prominent positions in the campus, we have planted a lilac walk of forty plants in twenty-five varieties. The first two plants in this walk are of the variety "Madame F. Morel," which is one of the most magnificent varieties of lilacs. It was one of Mr. Scott's favorites and the plants were brought from his garden. There is room here for the planting of nearly fifty more species and varieties of lilacs, which will be put in in the near future.

We are now nearing the end of the great botanical order, and after passing through a number of plant families with only one or two representatives that are of gardening importance, we come, near the Engineering building, to the honeysuckle family, which includes not only the climbing and bush honeysuckle but the viburnum and symphoricarpos and other shrubs. Near them there is space for the few shrubs of the composite family.

This botanical arrangement that I have outlined will be of interest, we believe, to all students of botany and lovers of plants, but the thought that was in Mr. Scott's mind will be most effectively carried out by the planting of the spring flowering trees, shrubs and garden plants, such as the magnolias, cherries and early flowering shrubs and the daffodils in April; the apples, lilacs, hawthorn, azaleas and irises in May; the rhododendron, laurel and peonies in June, and chrysanthemums in October and November. The present funds from the endowment do not permit of a larger program for herbaceous plants, so that additions will have to be left for the future.

The College campus, however, is but a part of the great College property, and to many persons the wild, steep, wooded hillsides of Crum Creek are more interesting than any campus or garden planting. These hillsides have been owned by the College for generations but no funds have ever been available for their care, so that when I became Director of the Scott Foundation I found the woods in a deplorable condition. They were filled with standing and fallen dead trees, were a great fire hazard and were not accessible for those who wished to enjoy them, except for a few trails worn by visitors and one or two hastily constructed paths built only for the purpose of taking out cut wood. Although the Scott Foundation had no money in sight for the proper development of these woods, plans were drawn up to show what might be done in the future, and during the last two winters, owing to the serious unemployment situation, many of these plans have been carried out. The Borough Committee on Unemployment joined with the College and with the Scott Foundation in raising a special fund, and during the past two winters from a dozen to twenty men have been given work in the College woods from December to April. As a result, all the dead timber has been cut and taken away and most of the fire menace thus removed. Undesirable undergrowth, particularly of the nature of poison ivy, cat briar and honeysuckle, has been removed and a series of paths have been built, making the entire area accessible to all those who love nature. It is now possible to walk for miles along the creek or in the upper levels of the woods on paths which are built on easy grades. That these paths are appreciated is shown by the great number of persons who are now using these beautiful woods as a park.

It is planned to use the woods north of the railroad as a great demonstration of American trees, shrubs and wild flowers. The upper half is to be devoted entirely to plants native to Swarthmore and adjacent Delaware County. Here only such plants will be planted as are believed by botanists to have been native in this vicinity but which have been removed or destroyed by man. A census of the species of trees, shrubs and wild flowers show that the species growing there now are but a fraction of what probably flourished before man came to pillage and to burn.

A small center section will have not only the native plants of Delaware County but also any which are native to other sections of Pennsylvania but not native here. Rhododendron maximum is one of the plants which is being added here. In the southern quarter of the property is an all-American tract, where species of trees from other parts of the country will be had and where we have already planted Carolina hemlock, Carolina rhododendron and flame azalea.

South of the railroad the woods extend for nearly a mile and here will be added species of plants from all parts of the world in botanical arrangement such as has been described for the campus but with the difference that here plants suited to wild forest conditions rather than horticultural specimens will be used.

The planting on the campus and in these woods will make it possible for all persons interested in gardens or in plants of any description to come to Swarthmore any day in the year and see with their own eyes plants which are suitable for planting in their own gardens. The plants will be properly labeled and when funds permit there will be attendants to answer questions and to help the visitors with their problems. The entire planting, however, is a matter which will take many years. Too much should not be expected in the beginning, for unlike the Morris Arboretum, which is just now much in the public eye, the endowment is not large and the work has to go along slowly. For those who are impatient for quick results it may be of some comfort to know that the Arnold Arboretum, which was started in 1873, had at the beginning only a comparatively small endowment. The land was not as well suited for the purpose as the Swarthmore property, and no plants were set in their permanent location until about 1885, the first twelve years being devoted entirely to the making of plans and the propagation of plant material in nurseries for future use. The work at Swarthmore is new, the oldest plants, those of the lilac walk, having been set in the spring of 1931. Yet in two years plants have made a remarkable growth and next year we may anticipate a good blossoming of herbaceous plants and a scattering of bloom of trees and shrubs. There were less than four hundred kinds of plants on the property in 1930, and we now have over twelve hundred species and varieties of trees and shrubs and over six hundred species and varieties of herbaceous garden plants and wild flowers.

It was Mr. Scott's dream that such a garden should be established to help the gardening public. Through the generosity of Mrs. Scott and of Mrs. Owen Moon, Mr. Scott's sister, the work has been begun. The relationship of this work to The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society is an intimate one, as Mr. Scott was a member and Mrs. Scott is at present serving on the Executive Council. We all hope that the members of the Society will be interested in watching Mr. Scott's dream develop and that they will visit Swarthmore from time to time.

HARDY CHRYSANTHEMUMS AT SWARTHMORE

By JOHN C. WISTER, Director

When the Arthur Hoyt Scott Horticultural Foundation of Swarthmore College exhibited at The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society's Chrysanthemum Show in November, 1932, the largest number of outdoor grown varieties of chrysanthemums that had ever been publicly shown in Philadelphia, I was asked to write something in the year book so that our members might know something about this collection and how it was brought together.

It was Robert Pyle, I believe, who urged me to plant at Swarthmore certain quick-growing showy flowers which could be enjoyed by the public while slower-growing plants like trees and shrubs were maturing. I had long been interested in chrysanthemums and had grown over one hundred varieties in my own garden as long ago as 1912. Most of these varieties had succumbed to cold winters and I had long wanted an opportunity to test the relative hardiness of different varieties under our conditions in Eastern Pennsylvania.

Accordingly, in the autumn of 1931 I made a list of all chrysanthemums in Standardized Plant Names and in Manning's Finding List, copied on this list my own garden notes made mostly between 1905 and 1915, added to these notes brief catalog descriptions and notes from magazine articles, and armed with this formidable document of about thirty typewritten pages I began a series of visits to gardens, nurseries and shows, checking on the list each variety seen. Varieties wanted were underlined; relative season was noted; effect of frost, wind or rain was noted where observed. No attempt was made to judge relative quality of similar varieties but all plainly inferior varieties were marked as not wanted. The largest collection visited was at the New York Botanical Garden, where nearly three hundred varieties were seen and where relative frost injury could be easily noted early in November.

My notes, voluminous as they were, gave me information on but a small fraction of the great list, but did definitely eliminate from further consideration several hundred varieties. During the winter I added information from books and catalogs in the library of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, trying particularly to check blooming dates so as to eliminate varieties beginning to bloom after the first week in November, as such late kinds can be successful in the open, without any protection, around Philadelphia only in very exceptional years.

All this may seem unnecessary trouble, but besides being interested in the study, I wanted to eliminate the expense of buying, planting and caring for great numbers of varieties which would have to be discarded as unsatisfactory or inferior. I wanted a large and complete collection, yet not so big as to be unwieldy. I started the collection with 250 varieties, with the intention to cut it to 100 varieties by careful study of relative hardiness and by elimination of varieties too similar. I believe it will take about five years to do this, but a start has been made.

Plants were secured by gift or exchange from various individuals and institutions, and by purchase from a number of nurseries. The largest number of varieties came from the New York Botanical Garden and from Dreer, Totty and Elmer D. Smith. Divisions from outdoor-grown stock were planted in April. Indoor-pot-grown plants were set early in May in ground that had been well prepared the previous year. They were kept free from weeds but were watered only about three times after planting. The plants were pinched back the last time late in July. They received applications of sulphate of ammonia late in July and late in August.

In spite of the dry year, growth was strong. The first flowers appeared on September 10th on the new variety "Aladdin." "Winnetka" and "Wolverine" followed it on September 15th and "Early Bronze" on September 20th. October was a month full of bloom and the list below gives some of the important varieties classified as to section, color and time of bloom. About twenty-five varieties opened their flowers between November 1st and 12th, and did not prove too late. That is, they bloomed well and were not perceptibly injured by freezing, although quite cold weather was experienced; a few varieties proved too late and have been discarded, as it is not worthwhile to attempt to grow them without frame protection, but these varieties are not included in any of the lists below.

On one year's records one cannot make statements as to dates of bloom, as unusual weather conditions will undoubtedly affect dates of flowering, but it may be noted that hardly a single variety bloomed on the date noted in the catalogs. It has long been a commonplace that "September flowering" varieties introduced from northern Europe did not bloom here until October, and it has been assumed that this was caused by differences in light conditions as well as differences in temperature. Therefore, instead of giving actual dates on the above chart, I have marked my varieties extra early, early, midseason and late, to indicate September, early October, late October and early November, respectively.

Under garden conditions I have found it impossible to follow the elaborate system of classification used in Standardized Plant Names. I have, therefore, confined the classification to Buttons, Pompons, Large Pompons, Single, Semi-Doubles, Medium Doubles and Large, Loose Doubles. Many of these types merge into each other in a way that makes it difficult to draw a sharp dividing line. I hope that someone will work out a better system built up solely for outdoor garden flowers in this section, and not involved with the intricacies of the many different forms of greenhouse-grown varieties.

The alphabetical list below gives all the varieties now in the collection with name of originator and date of introduction when these facts could be obtained. I am able to present this list through the kindness of Mr. Elmer D. Smith, who has kept records of all chrysanthemum introductions for many years. As far as I know these records have never before been published. I am glad to publish them here so that our gardeners may know at least the names of the persons whose years of toil have made our autumns more interesting and more beautiful. I shall be grateful for any information as to originators of varieties about which I have not been able to get any definite facts. Classification, general color, rating (xxx, xx or x) and date of blooming are included on this alphabetical list. I hope the list will interest the members of the Society and extend to all an invitation to visit this collection in October, 1933, when all these varieties and many more will be in bloom on the college grounds near Cedar Lane and College Avenue, Swarthmore. Mr. Harry Wood, the head gardener, who helped me in preparing this article, will be glad to give any further information about the collection.

DEDICATION OF TWO KENTUCKY COFFEE TREES IN THE GARDEN AT STENTON MANSION

On Thursday, October 20, 1932

In Memory of

WILLIAM PENN and HANNAH CALLOWHILL PENN, his wife

Address by WILLIAM J. SERRILL

Vice-President, The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society

We are met together to dedicate two noble trees in memory of William Penn and Hannah Callowhill Penn. The ceremony constitutes one in a series of celebrations held this week and next in honor of the 250th anniversary of William Penn's first arrival in the New World.

In selecting trees as the object of this dedication, The Pennsylvania Society of Colonial Dames and The Welcome Society of Pennsylvania have made a felicitous choice; the tree figures prominently in the legend of William Penn. On reaching the site of his new city, which had been laid out in accordance with his plan prior to his arrival, he at once changed the names which had been given to the principal streets to the names of the forest trees which stood on them. The Treaty Elm, under whose spreading branches Penn negotiated his treaty with the Indian tribes, is one of the famous trees in history. William Penn's expressed ideal of the city he was founding, that it was to be "a fair green country town," shows that an abundance of trees held his imagination. The very name given to his new Province, Pennsylvania, Penn's Woods, sufficiently testifies his liking for forests and forest trees.

But the end is not yet. The subject of the tree looms large in the list of the projects proposed as the proper means to celebrate the 250th anniversary of Penn's arrival. In this lengthy list, covering a wide variety of proposals, the greater number of which proved to be impracticable in this period of economic depression, occur the following: An extensive roadside planting of trees on the highways of the State; the establishment of a public park, to be known as Penn Park, in each county of Pennsylvania; and probably the most attractive and fertile of all the proposals that were made, the establishment, at an appropriate site in the environment of Philadelphia, of an arboretum, the Penn Arboretum, to become for the Middle States all that the Arnold Arboretum is for New England. Surely an inspiring thought! And the fulfilling of a real need! The late Dr. Ernest H. Wilson, Director of the Arnold Arboretum, and the highest authority on the subject, gave expression of this need, and stated that our milder climate permitted of the growth of a large variety of trees and shrubs not possible in New England.

Lastly, we must not omit the widely advertised movement started in the Public School System of Philadelphia, to list what are known as Penn Trees, namely, those now standing, which, from their size and characteristics, are known to have been growing at the date of Penn's arrival. Surely trees form appropriate subjects for dedication in memory of William Penn.

These particular trees which we dedicate today are known as the Kentucky Coffee tree, Gymnocladus dioica, which, being translated, means naked-branched two-flowered tree, the generic name in recognition of the relatively open character of its foliage, displaying when in full leaf the architectural structure of the tree, a beautiful feature, and an unusual one among American trees, which commonly bear a thick foliage, and the specific name in reference to its two types of flowers, staminate and pistillate flowers, usually borne on separate trees. The Kentucky Coffee Tree is a native of Pennsylvania, but apparently is not abundantly distributed within the State. It has, however, since early Colonial days, been extensively planted as an ornamental tree, and these two specimens were undoubtedly planted where they now stand about 100 years ago.

In selecting, among the trees standing here at Stenton, those two which might appropriately be made the subjects of this dedication, the choice soon fell upon these two stately trees. Their fine structure renders them impressive subjects; their venerable age is in keeping with the interests of the two Societies, both devoted to a veneration of the things of the past, in whose names the dedication is made; their happy location, standing in close proximity to the Mansion, in the intimate seclusion of the back lawn and at the entrance to the formal garden, formed a powerful argument in their favor; and finally, the fact that they so obviously form a pair—mates to one another—quite naturally suggested the idea that the faithful and loving wife of William Penn be included in the dedication. That a woman should be so honored by The Colonial Dames is so manifestly fitting, the balance at once swung to the selection of this pair of ancient trees, the only specimens on the Stenton grounds which irresistibly suggest a pair.

These trees, standing thus together side by side through the length of years, form a fitting emblem of the union of William and Hannah Penn. Upstanding, unbending, above board, loving the light of day, they withstand the onslaught of the elements even as the Penns withstood the bludgeonings of Fate. We are prone to think of William Penn only as the founder of Pennsylvania, his holy experiment. It is, however, a question whether his greatest service to mankind is not the valiant, unceasing fight he waged against religious persecution, and in favor of complete liberty of conscience. And in spite of persecution and imprisonment and untold difficulties, he ever maintained his equanimity, his sweet reasonableness and his catholicity of spirit.

And so we dedicate these trees, the easternmost of the two to Hannah Penn and the one standing nearer to the Mansion to William Penn. May they live long to grace these historic lawns! May no great wind lay them prostrate! May no stroke of lightning shatter them! May no ax be laid to their roots! And may they henceforth be familiarly called by those who frequent this spot Mr. and Mrs. William Penn!

EXPLORING AND PLANT COLLECTING IN NORTHERN BRITISH COLUMBIA

By MARY G. HENRY (Mrs. J. Norman Henry)

*Member of the Executive Council of The Pennsylvania
Horticultural Society*

We first heard of the existence of so-called "Tropical Valleys" in the summer of 1930. They were said to be near the Liard River, in Northern British Columbia. Of course, we knew they could not be really tropical or even semi-tropical, but when the surrounding country is ice and snow-bound, with winter temperatures of 50 to 60 degrees below zero, these valleys were reported never to freeze.

This part of the country, sometimes known as the "Blind Spot" of Canada, has been usually considered practically inaccessible. Waterfalls and rapids in the rivers make traveling by water impossible, while the distance by land is great over wide stretches of bog and mountainous country still in its virgin roughness and much of it yet unmapped.

Dr. Henry and I became interested, and so did our children, Mary, Josephine, Norman, Jr., and Howard. Our correspondence with the Canadian Department of the Interior was very discouraging, owing to their absolute lack of information on the country. We determined to go, however. I was anxious to collect plants and the others wanted to go for the adventure.

The Canadian authorities were extremely courteous and gave us all the help they could. The Topographical Department kindly released Mr. K. F. McCusker, one of their foremost topographers, to accompany us and map the country. It took us about nine months to formulate our plans and complete our arrangements. Dr. B. H. Chandlee, surgeon, agreed to accompany us, for being completely out of touch with the world for such a long time and not knowing what accident might befall our children, we felt happier in mind to be prepared for any ordinary emergency or accident.

We left Philadelphia June 25, 1931, and arrived in Pouce Coupé, Peace River Block, Northern British Columbia, June 30th. Pouce Coupé is about 250 miles northwest of Jasper and about 425 miles northwest of Banff. We motored 65 miles, ferried across the Peace River and arrived at our destination, Ft. St. John, the last outpost of civilization, at 1 A. M. Our outfit of 9 men, 58 horses, tents, food, etc., was camped just beyond the little town waiting for us.

After four hours' rest, the horses were saddled and packed and we started on our 80-day journey. During the first part of our trip the sun rose so early and set so late that we had no real night at all, for the sky began to grow light before darkness ever came.

The temperature fell below freezing nearly every night, even in July. In August it was frequently 18 or 20 degrees at getting-up time and in early September one morning it was but 12 degrees. The mid-days, however, when clear and sunny, were a delightful contrast to the cold nights. Frequently in July the temperature rose to 80 degrees, and even in September the noon temperature was over 60 degrees when the sun shone. I often wondered how beautiful and fragile-looking flowers could stand such extremes of temperature.

Often in the early mornings the frost caused them to appear as though they had been sprinkled by tiny diamonds, and when the first rays of the rising sun touched them they were so beautiful it seemed as though they must belong to another world.

Collecting plants while riding with a pack is not always a simple matter. A trowel goes in a leather sheath on one side of my belt and a knife on the other side. A strong pair of saddle bags is fastened to the pommel of my saddle, in which each morning are placed several empty jam cans. Each evening all full cans are aired and watered and in the morning are all carefully packed in wooden packing cases on the horses. Quite frequently the cans were frozen solid to the ground and I had to use my ax to chop them loose.

There is, of course, a heavy mortality among newly collected plants. About three-fourths of those from the Southern States usually live and these, as a rule, make themselves at home quite quickly. Not so, however, do those from British Columbia. Only about one-third survive first of our hot summers and they are then in such a condition that it takes about two years to recover (or a short time to die!). Alas, these wild things of the Northland pine for their native home, with ice and snow and low temperatures and a bright arctic sun.

We traveled along rivers and through valleys the first week or two, at an altitude of about 1800 to 2500 feet, but gradually rising higher. In sheltered places there were many fine spruce forests and groves of aspens and black poplars. The aspen, often called white poplar, Populus tremuloides, with its chalk-white trunk and small lace-like foliage, is to my mind more beautiful than the white birch, and makes a far nobler tree.

There were many open grassy meadows and the countless numbers of the large pale blue flowers of Polemonium acutiflorum made them look like bits of fallen sky. Often Delphinium brownii in many stemmed clumps over three feet tall grew among them, and added its deeper shade of dark blue purple to the others. In many places both in sun and shade, Mertensia strigosa grew with lavish profusion about three feet high where the ground was moist, and with individual flowers three-quarters inch long.

Penstemon procerus, with small sapphire blue flowers held closely together in a little spike, grew in slightly drier places, but very frequently they all lived in the friendly company of each other, a veritable sea of blue, and with the mountains rising all around them, I never imagined meadows could be so gloriously beautiful.

Beginning to open its richest regal blue purple blooms while all these others were still at their height, Aconitum delphinifolium soon decorated the meadows where it formed handsome plants 18 to 24 inches. With its slenderer stem and larger flowers, though closely related, it is a far handsomer plant than the Delphinium. This strikingly beautiful flower also frequently climbed to about 6000 feet on the mountains and often dotted cold, bleak mountain passes. In these places it was sometimes only three inches tall and produced but one large gorgeous bloom.

One day early in our trip we passed a number of gently sloping hillsides that were literally pink with wild roses and whose scent perfumed the atmosphere for miles. However, blue in various shades was very markedly the predominating color of the flowers throughout our entire journey, and we rode through these wonderful flower-filled meadows at intervals for about 200 miles and each seemed more beautiful than the other.

As the days passed we worked our way into the mountains, and the little Indian trails we were using became indistinct and hard to follow. Sometimes we traveled along game trails and by the footprints in them we saw they were used by grizzly bear, moose, deer, goat, elk, wolves, sheep and caribou, all of which some of us ran into at various times. Occasionally we had no trail at all.

After the end of a couple of weeks the rivers about us flowed at an altitude of about 3000 to 3500 feet. We forded them very frequently and swam our horses over the deepest.

We rode every day as far as our horses could go comfortably, usually about fifteen to twenty miles. About once every week or ten days we stopped a day to give them a rest, and these stops gave me opportunities to climb mountains.

The grandeur of the scenery, the lavishness of nature and the beauty of the flowers daily quite took my breath away.

Lupinus arcticus, another flower in brilliant blue, colored acres on some of the mountain sides and could be seen for miles. In some of the valleys there were many fine patches of Cypripedium pas-serinum and assuredly this is one of the very loveliest blossoms of the Northland; it is pure white and pale apple green. Linnaea borealis americana grew almost everywhere, in damp, shady woods, in the lower altitudes and on bare, bleak, stony mountain tops up to 6000 feet, always exquisitely lovely and its delicious fragrance usually told me where it was before I ever saw it. Cornus canadensis frequently kept it company in the shady places.

Dryas drummondii was at home on many of the open stony river bars, and D. integrifolia, an arctic gem, with flowers almost the size of D. octopetala, and tiny foliage about one-quarter the size, formed a good part of the turf on exposed places in the higher altitudes.

The crowning glory of the mountains and perhaps the most beautiful flower I have ever seen, was unquestionably a high Alpine Polemonium species. Of the same pure pale, almost sky blue color as its tall cousin of the meadows, its flowers were about the same size, but they had a throat of orange gold. They were held in a cluster four or five open at a time, proudly erect on slender stems often only three or four inches tall, and the tiny leaflets were strung along the stems like small green beads.

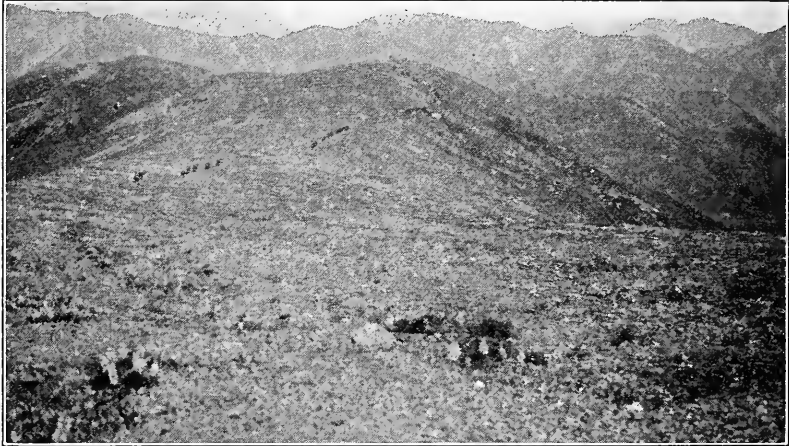

A "close-up" of the pack train on Caribou Ridge

I found three Campanulas. C. uniflora is a small thing, which has little to recommend it. This grew numerously on a 6000-foot pass. C. lasiocarpa is a very fine little plant in every way and grows plentifully on many mountains, rarely below 6000 feet and up to the snows at 6500. One of its deep blue bells, inverted, will frequently cover the entire tiny plant. But Campanula rotundifolia alaskana is even more beautiful. It has very graceful bright blue flowers and its leaves are reddish with crisped and undulated margins and form pretty rosettes. It grows the farthest north of any, in stony ground, altitude about 4800 feet.

A handsome little liliaceous plant, Zygadenus elegans, with a bright orange zone instead of the customary green one also won my unstinted admiration. This, too, on a mountain far north.

There were many Oxytropis, mostly exceedingly pretty dwarf growers, resembling greatly glorified clovers. The best one I saw was a species with deliciously fragrant lemon yellow flowers in large heads, well set off by the silvery foliage. O. Richardsonii with blossoms in many shades of pink, lavender and pure white was a very showy plant also.

The pack winds like a snake over the Caribou Ridge

O. aretobia is a beautiful prostrate grower with pale purple flowers. This also has silvery foliage. Myosotis Alpestris was just as lovely as it should be and grew in many high places, always a most welcome sight.

I found Chrysanthemum integrifolium only once. It was in moist, rich soil, altitude about 5500 feet. It is a most attractive plant with pretty white daisy-like flowers above a mat of deep green foliage about two inches tall.

It took us 39 days to reach the so-called "Tropical Valley," but, unfortunately, it had been burned over about nine years previously. It was about three-quarters of a mile long and one-quarter of a mile wide. Hot springs were numerous, the largest one, a circular pool, was about eight feet in diameter, temperature about 90 degrees. Some of the springs were too hot to hold a hand in. Everywhere there grew a lush, luxuriant growth of vegetation, the rankest I ever saw anywhere, and difficult to penetrate. Delphinium over six feet high, Roses, Rubus, Symphoricarpos occidentalis, Actea Arguta, Ribes Oxyacanthoides, Cornus stolonifera, Amelanchier florida, Viburnum pauciflorum, and Prunus demissa were abundant and numerous Vetches tangled themselves amongst them.

The most interesting shrub I found during the summer was Rhododendron lapponicum, which at its best formed perfectly symmetrical round-topped bushes about two and one-half feet tall and over three feet in diameter. Dr. Rehder, of the Arnold Arboretum, says this is an upright form and an extremely interesting discovery. and that "its occurrence in western North America is of great phytogeographical interest." It grew mostly at altitudes of from 4000 feet to 5500 feet. The bloom had passed, but by climbing high near the snows I found a few of its pretty magenta flowers for my press.

Andromeda polifolia, with its beautiful tiny bright pink bells and whose total height rarely exceeded two or three inches, was irresistible in its charm. Eleagnus Argentea, one of the finest dwarf trees of the north, grew near the Musqua River.

Spruce trees on the Prophet River

There were some ornamental shrubby willows, the most attractive one, Salix brachycarpa in its best form, had small silken silvery foliage against which the pretty rose-colored catkins stood out conspicuously. There was another handsome willow whose very long, narrow, deep glossy green leaves decorated shiny mahogany-colored branches.

Viburnum pauciflorum was splendid in September, with its polished red fruit and autumn-tinted foliage. Arctostaphylos rubra frequently made striking scarlet crimson mats on many otherwise bare, gray mountainsides.

Coniferous trees were, of course, plentiful, though not in great variety. Abies lasiocarpa, the Alpine Fir, is an exceedingly handsome blue-leaved balsam. It is never a large tree. It is seen growing at high altitudes and on cold northern slopes, often as perfectly symmetrical spire-like specimens. Picea canadensis and Picea mariana, the common native spruces, were abundant almost everywhere. In some places there were pine trees, particularly in burnt-over land, and these resembled the "lodge pole" pines.

Among the interesting variations in plant life were lovely white Aconitums and white, lavender and pinky-plum Delphiniums and pretty pure pink Penstemons. Although there were literally hundreds of thousands of Mertensia, I saw only one white one, a most exquisitely beautiful plant. There were, however, quite a few albino Polemoniums and Myosotis.

Henry River, near Lake Mary

After covering over 1000 miles on horseback and many more on foot we ended our journey at Hudson Hope on September 18th. No one of the sixteen of us was sick a minute nor did we have one unpleasant incident of any kind the entire 80 days.

The mountains were our home these eleven weeks. The floor of the forest or the alpine meadow was our bed and the world about us was unmarred by the hand of man.

The trip is but a memory now, like a wonderful dream that really did come true.

Far, far north there is a chaos of wild and rugged mountainous country. It is only visited by the untamed things who make their home there and who for years to come will still roam this region in peace.

One mountain stands forth pre-eminently, its snow-crowned summit towering above the others, the highest mountain we saw all summer. It is Mt. Mary Henry. Beautiful lakes and rivers are named for other members of the party by Mr. McCusker, and I understand the Canadian Government has done us the great honor to say that these names are to remain.

I made a collection of herbarium specimens for the Royal Botanic Garden, Edinburgh, and another for the Academy of Natural Sciences, Philadelphia, gathered 76 packages of seeds for the Royal Botanic Garden, and brought home about 50 cans of living plants for my experimental garden in Gladwyne.

I am indebted to Sir William Wright Smith, Royal Botanic Garden, Edinburgh, and Dr. Francis W. Pennell, Academy of Natural Sciences, Philadelphia, and Dr. Alfred Rehder and Dr. H. Raup, of the Arnold Arboretum, who have identified these plants.

LOG:

Arrived Redfern Lake July 14th.

Crossed Prophet River July 19th.

Crossed Musqua River July 23d.

Crossed Howard River July 26th. (lat. 58° , long. 123° 44 feet, altitude 2550 feet).

Crossed Henry River July 30th (lat. 58° 30 ft., long. 123° 56 feet, altitude 2300 feet).

Crossed Norman River August 4th (altitude 2830 feet).

Saw Mt. Mary Henry August 5th. (lat. 58° 35 feet, long. 124° 30 feet, altitude 9000 feet).

Crossed Tetsa River August 6th. (Met Sikanni Indians and Chief's son, who led us to Hot Springs on Toad River.)

Crossed Racing River at junction of Toad River and visited so-called Tropical Valley August 9th (lat. 58° 59.7 feet, long. 125° 25 feet, altitude 2150 feet). Valley about three-quarters mile long and one-quarter mile wide.

Saw Mt. Gibson August 13th (lat. 57° 53 feet, long. 124° 25 feet, altitude 9000 feet).

Visited Lake Mary August 19th (lat. 58° 24 feet, long. 124° 25 feet, 5 miles long, altitude 4100 feet).

Visited Lake Josephine August 20th, one mile west of Lake Mary, ten miles long.

Returned Hudson Hope September 17th.

Like Nature? Can Imagination boast
Amid its gay creation, hues like hers?
Or can it mix them with that matchless skill,
And lose them in each other as appears
In every bud that blows?*

THOMPSON.

For the convenience of members, the following Calendar of Garden Work has been reprinted, through the courtesy of the editor, from the 1932 file of "HORTICULTURE."

Branches of Christmas trees may be used as a mulch over the roses, bulb beds, the rock garden, perennials which have evergreen foliage and plants in the coldframe. The boughs make a light, airy mulch, which is most desirable.

All specimen evergreens, particularly arborvitaes, junipers and retinosporas, which are located where they will get the drips from overhanging eaves and which have several main trunks, should be wound about with soft twine to keep them from bending over and splitting when laden with snow and ice. It is sometimes advisable to erect a roof over small evergreens in a foundation planting if they are likely to become encased in ice from the dripping eaves.

If tulips begin to show through the ground as the result of an untimely warm spell, no harm will be done. Merely cover the tops with a light, coarse mulch such as Christmas tree boughs.

After poinsettias have dropped their leaves and become unsightly, take them to the cellar for storage until spring, when new growth should begin. Water the plants once a week until that time; they may be kept nearly dry.

Ferns in the window garden will become sickly if illuminating or coal gas is present in the air. The plants cannot stand cold drafts, which are likely to occur when dusting and other domestic duties are being performed.

If palms are in a part of the house where the temperature is low they will not need much water during the middle of the winter; in fact, palms in any situation should be kept on the dry side now.

Hyacinths will flower with short stems unless the bud is made to develop in the dark. As soon as the young leaves start to unfold and the buds appear, cover the pot with a cornucopia of paper or an inverted pot. If the latter is used keep it on until the spike has nearly reached the top inside.

Fuchsias, which have been ripening while in storage, are now ready for forcing into bloom. As soon as the shoots have made a good start, cuttings may be taken and rooted in sand. Other plants which may be propagated by cuttings are heliotropes and stevias. All cuttings should be of young wood.

Brush the snow from the tops of evergreen hedges with an old broom.

FEBRUARY

*"Glowing bright
Beneath the various foliage
Wildly spreads
The arbutus, and rears his scarlet fruit
Luxuriant mantling o'er
The craggy steeps."*

Branches of a number of shrubs may be cut now for forcing indoors. Pussywillows start easily if the caps are picked off and the branches kept in warm water for a few hours. Then they should be placed in a sunny window. Forsythias also force easily.

Clumps of astilbe or spiraea may be potted now for forcing indoors or in the conservatory. The plants need drainage, and it is important, too, that the soil be made firm around the roots. After they are potted, soak the plants thoroughly and place them in a cool cellar. Keep the plants well watered at all times. When the new growth is three inches high, place the plants in a cool, sunny window. When the flower buds begin to show, give the plants a weak stimulant occasionally.

Although cacti are native of arid regions, they need a constant water supply when they are used for house plants. Too heavy watering, however, will cause them to rot.

All bulbs should be kept in active growth until the tops die down before the pots are set away in the cellar. Tulips, hyacinths and narcissi should be set out in the garden next autumn.

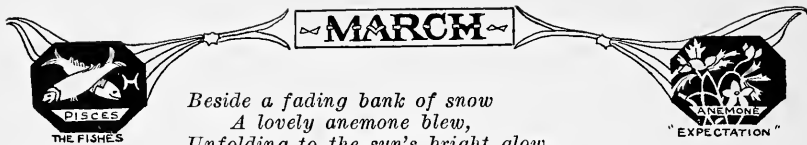

Keep the cool section of the conservatory at a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees at night and warm section at 65 to 75 degrees. Ventilation should be given early in the day in warm fine weather. Sprinkle stovehouse plants with warm water once or twice a day.

Calla lilies will flower more freely if they are given plenty of water and a weak liquid fertilizer every week or two. This plant is a gross feeder. There should be good drainage in the pot.

Seeds of many perennials may be sown now in a conservatory that is kept at a moderate temperature. Some perennials will flower the first season from seeds started now. Delphiniums and gaillardias are in this class.

When the hotbed is ready, sow seeds of cabbages, cauliflowers, kohlrabi and lettuce. Sow, also, hardy and half-hardy annuals, and even biennials and perennials. Hotbeds for early planting should have a two-foot deep pit, in the bottom of which should be tramped 18 inches of manure.

This is a good time of year to clean out the bird houses or to set up new ones. If some of the houses were not occupied during the last season, relocate them in positions similar to those of the most popular houses.

*Beside a fading bank of snow
 A lovely anemone blew,
 Unfolding to the sun's bright glow
 Its leaves of Heaven's serenest hue.*
 "PERCIVAL."

Heavy pruning of young fruit trees is not advisable. It prevents the trees from making normal growth. Prune by thinning out weak branches and shortening lateral growths just enough to keep the tree in shape. This applies to established trees, not newly planted whips.

This is not the time to uncover plants and bulbs but to protect them from the variable March weather. Keep bulbs and perennials dormant as long as possible with a light covering of boughs or straw.

Sow seeds of annuals indoors, especially those of vines which need a long season, such as the moonflower.

Violas and pansies may be brought into flower many weeks ahead of time in a coldframe.

Force alpiners growing in pots into bloom by plunging them in a coldframe. Use them for home decoration.

In sections of the country infested with tent caterpillar and gypsy moths, gather the egg clusters or paint them with creosote.

Rhubarb growing in a bright sunny spot may be started into growth early by covering each plant with half a wooden barrel, or better still, by erecting a frame over the plants. Keep the glass on and bank the frame on the outside with soil or manure. Cover with heavy mats on cold nights.

Grafting of fruit trees may be done soon. Cut the scions now and store them in sand or peat moss. Try the newer varieties.

Lily-of-the-valley may be forced at any time during the winter. Try flowering a few pips for Easter.

Wood ashes are a valuable fertilizer in the garden, but unless the soil is very acid do not use wood ashes on lawns.

Asparagus starts early in the season and, for this reason, the soil should be enriched and cultivated as soon as possible. Spread salt over the bed to check the weeds.

Set grape trellises, arbors and latticework in order when the frost leaves the ground.

Transplanting of ornamentals may be done to advantage in the Southern states now.

*"I gaze upon her violet beds,
 Laburnum's golden tress'd,
 Her flower-spiked almonds; breath perfume
 From lilac and syringa bloom,
 And cry, 'I love spring best!'"*

Harden off pot-grown sweet peas in the coldframe for late April planting. Do not let them become frosted, however.

Prune the garden roses, more particularly hybrid teas, as soon as the weather is warm enough. Remove dead wood and cut back the live canes two-thirds.

Begin to plant all kinds of roses as soon as they arrive from the nursery. Protect the roots from drying winds. Hill soil around the plants for the first two weeks. This is a very useful practice.

Plant early cabbage plants and lettuce on well-drained ground in sections of the country where the soil is settled.

Sow flower seeds indoors in boxes or flower pots. Water carefully or the plants will damp off. Use only part of the seeds in the packet; insure a second planting. Sow thinly.

Uncover the perennial borders and rock garden gradually. Use care not to break off any new shoots. Do not be too hasty.

Do not cultivate in the perennial garden until the ground has dried sufficiently. Consult the garden plan to recall where slow-starting perennials and bulbs are hidden.

Set out shrubs soon. Prepare the ground well and give the roots plenty of room. Keep active fertilizer away from the plants. Top prune in proportion to the loss of roots.

The last of the shrub pruning may be finished now. Put shrub prunings, particularly rose canes, on the fire.

Lilacs, ash trees and other woody plants infested with scale insects may be given a last-minute dormant spray with an approved oil solution before the leaf buds start to open.

Euonymus scale is becoming a serious pest. It appears suddenly. Look for the small, flat bodies on euonymus stems and leaves. Spray now with an oil spray at a strength of one to thirty parts of water.

Set out pansy plants by the middle of the month to get a long season of bloom.

Asters, phlox, boltonias and heleniums, to name a few perennials, should be divided every third year or so. Chrysanthemums can be divided every spring. With all of them, save the youngest parts of the plants.

Many annuals with long tap roots, such as lupines, may be successfully transplanted if the seeds are sown in paper bands. In fact, all annuals may be set out easily if grown in this manner.

Soil is ready to work if it will crumble when squeezed in the hand. Much harm is done by working soil which is still wet.

*"Thou art the 'Iris'
Who, armed with Golden Rod,
And winged with celestial, azure, bearest
The message of some god."*

Fill window boxes with rich soil. For shady places, use ferns (the Boston fern especially), Asparagus sprengeri, begonias, fuchsias and balsams. Trailing plants to use are the vineas, German and Kenilworth ivy, English ivy and tradescantias. The ivy-leaved geranium is good. Use petunias, verbenas, lobelias, lantanas, browallia and alyssums in sunny windows.

Set out evergreens now as well as other ornamentals and flowering trees that are balled and burlapped.

Almost any perennial may be transplanted on the home grounds at this time provided that a good ball of soil is taken around the roots.

Iris troubles with iris borers may be sprayed beginning now with a stomach poison spray to kill the young borers as they begin to hatch. Spray twice at two-week intervals.

Annuals such as nasturtiums, lupines, mignonette, poppies, annual mallows and phacelia should be sown where they are to bloom.

Make an effort to have better fruits in the garden this year. Make timely sprayings, following the state college schedules.

Spring flowering shrubs should be pruned after flowering, and for this reason one may as well cut branches freely for use indoors.

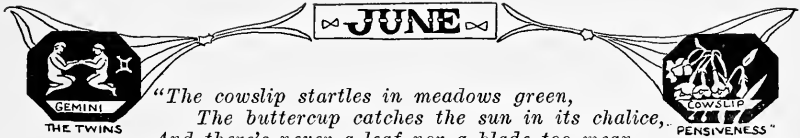

Begin to dust the roses with green sulphur dust to protect the foliage from black spot and mildew.

Spray continually for aphids, using nicotine or pyrethrum solution. Aphids are likely to appear in hoards now.

Transplant the growing tuberous-rooted begonias from pots to a shady bed, border or window box. These begonias may be used as summer house plants, but keep them out of the bright sunlight. One may even grow them under trees.

Summer flowering bulbs may go in the ground now, such as tuberose and tigridias. Montbretias are available in many colors. Summer hyacinth bulbs should be set six inches deep in a sunny location where the soil is rich and well drained.

Spray delphiniums to prevent blacks and smut with bordeaux mixture or copper powder.

*"The cowslip startles in meadows green,
The buttercup catches the sun in its chalice,
And there's never a leaf nor a blade too mean
To be some happy creature's palace."*

The squash vine borer moth lays eggs on the plants near the roots in late June and July. The borer can be controlled during the egg stage by spraying the stems near the roots with a strong solution of nicotine sulphate. Spray thoroughly once a week until the end of July.

If tulips have been diseased, be sure to gather and burn all tops and dried flowers to prevent the spread of "Fire disease."

If there is a rainy period, beans in the garden may become diseased with bean anthracnose. This disease makes small angular dead areas on the leaves and sunken brown spots on the bean pods. To control it, dust the plants with dry bordeaux from the time they are six inches high until the pods are formed.

Rust on snapdragons is one of the most serious diseases that this plant has. Rust is spread from plant to plant by spraying the foliage with the hose. Avoid doing this and, furthermore, take care not to wet the plants at all at night. Dust frequently and thoroughly with sulphur, covering the undersides of the leaves.

Hollyhock rust, which will soon make its appearance as brown blisters on the lowest leaves, may be considerably checked by cleaning away and burning all the old foliage at the base of the plants as soon as it starts to become infected. Dust with sulphur thoroughly.

Aster yellows, the virus disease that turns China aster plants a sickly yellow color and that makes the flowers green, is spread by an insect called the leaf hopper. There is no sure control known for this insect, although nicotine spray or dust will give temporary relief. Be sure to pull up and destroy immediately any sickly aster plants to prevent any further spread of this disease.

*"When the heat like a mist-veil floats,
And poppies flame in the rye,
And the silver note in the streamlet's throat
Has softened almost to a sigh,
It is July."*

When dividing clumps of bearded irises for resetting, separate them into single rhizomes consisting usually of a center bloom stalk with one or more "toes" on each side. Cut the tops back to less than six inches. Remove all diseased roots. Allow six or eight inches between plants. Transplanting can be done throughout July and August.

Pansy seed to be obtained from a distance should be ordered now to have it on hand for early August sowing.

The best peaches, apples and plums result if the fruit is thinned. Snip off the culls first; then thin the remaining fruit so that no two are touching. If only one side of the tree is fruiting, the thinning need not be as heavy as though the tree were in full bearing.

Raspberries, blackberries and even climbing roses that are losing their tips as a result of girdling are infested probably with the raspberry cane borer. Cut the stems back to sound, green wood and burn the tips.

Bagged grapes are of the highest quality. Put on the bags now. Grocery store bags will do. Fasten the bags securely and snip off the bottom corners to allow water to drain away.

Brussels sprouts thrive during cool moist weather. Sow seeds late in July for a fall crop.

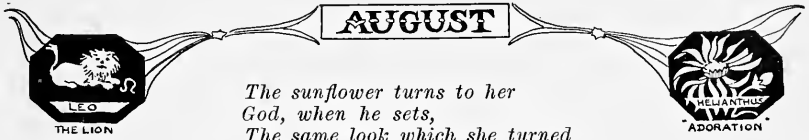

If roses show signs of drying, mulch the beds well with peat moss to conserve moisture. Avoid mixing the peat with the soil later on, as it lightens it too much.

As soon as oriental poppy leaves turn brown the plants may be lifted and divided or moved in clumps to a new part of the perennial border to improve the color combination. One may set out new plants, too.

Rambler roses such as Dorothy Perkins can be easily multiplied by pegging down some of the canes and covering them with soil near the tip end.

The strongest varieties of garden roses, including climbing roses, can be increased by cuttings made of firm, green wood taken after the flowers fall and inserted deeply in sand and covered with fruit jars or other glass containers until they root.

Keep garden plants free of seed pods if they are expected to continue flowering.

*The sunflower turns to her
God, when he sets,
The same look which she turned
When he rose.*

"MORE."

Crab grass, one of the most persistent lawn weeds to appear late in summer, may best be controlled by constantly raking the grass several ways and keeping it cut short. A dandelion rake is best for the purpose. Clean up all clippings to prevent reseeding.

Prune wisteria vines in August to encourage flowering next spring. Cut the new straggling shoots back to within four feet of the old wood of last season's growth.

Set out roots of mertensias or virginia cowslips as soon as they can be obtained from nurserymen. Continue to plant Oriental poppies and irises.

Seeds of hardy lupines may be sown throughout August. Try some of the choice hybrids. Sow where the plants are to grow.

Tie up cauliflower heads as soon as the white curds show to keep them from getting brown.

Order Madonna lily bulbs and plant them upon arrival. Set them only two inches deep. Lay them on their sides on a layer of sand.

Fall crocus and colchicums, which bloom in autumn, should be ordered now and planted upon arrival later in the month.

Sow seeds of English daisies and forget-me-nots. Also sow Canterbury bells and foxgloves.

In the northernmost states, sow grass seed late in August; elsewhere, sow in September. Prepare the ground now.

Make new strawberry beds. Pot-grown plants take hold quickly. Set the crowns of the plants even with the soil level. If the plants have been shipped some distance or the weather is hot and dry, cut off all but one or two leaves. Water thoroughly at intervals.

Most evergreens can now be transplanted with perfect safety if the plants are properly dug with a good ball of soil around the roots. Give them a heavy watering when transplanting and several times during autumn.

Prune rambler roses of the Dorothy Perkins type, cutting the old canes to the ground.

Cut away and burn all old canes of raspberries and blackberries as soon as they have finished fruiting.

Keep the mature fruits of egg plants and peppers picked.

By the end of the month, ornamental trees, shrubs, bush fruits and some fruit trees (not stone fruits) may be set out. They will become established before cold weather. Water them heavily if necessary.

Spring flowering perennials and rock plants may go into the ground. Firm them well.

Take cuttings of geraniums and other tender plants that are to be kept over winter indoors.

Plant narcissi at once. Many of the native grown lilies are ready. Most of the lesser bulbs (crocuses, etc.) are best planted at this time. Prepare the ground for other bulbs as soon as possible.

Many kind of perennial seeds can be sown to advantage at this time in coldframes. They will start early in spring.

Begin to gather leaves and garden refuse to be added to the compost pile or reduced to manure with chemicals.

This is the best time to set out peonies. Irises, particularly Siberian and Japanese varieties, may still be set out.

Grass seed should be sown at once, but the ground must be kept moist by means of the hose if there is little rainfall.

Straw flowers intended for winter decoration should be cut with long stems and tied tightly in bunches, hanging the bunches upside down to dry.

Stake all the hardy asters before they come into bloom. Many of the hardy chrysanthemums will also need some support.

Tulips, particularly the Duc van Tholl varieties, can be potted now for early winter forcing. Bury the pots in a moist shady spot until the ground begins to freeze, when they should be taken to a cool cellar until ready for forcing.

The perennial border may be entirely renovated at this time.

Although trees and shrubs may be pruned at this time, under no circumstances should spring-flowering subjects be pruned if flowers are wanted next spring.

As long as lawns are in active growth, they should be mown.

Prepare trenches now for sweet peas to be sown later, digging them deeply and enriching the lower depths with manure.

Before it is too late, pot a few plants of the lemon verbena (Lippia citriodora) to keep over winter indoors from which cuttings may be taken next season.

Keep the strawberry bed free from weeds.

A handful each of bone meal and wood ashes may be added with advantage around each peony plant.

Start a few cuttings of the choicest coleus either in water or well-drained, moist soil.

"When gentians roll their fringes tight
To save them for the morning,
And chestnuts fall from satin burrs
Without a word of warning."

Roman hyacinths are very easy to force indoors. Bulbs may be potted every two weeks until Thanksgiving so that there may always be a pot or two in bloom during the early winter months.

Except in the states that have little snow during the winter and very severe freezing, cane fruits such as raspberries and blackberries may be planted to advantage in the fall. There will not be much time for this work, however; set out the plants as soon as the foliage has dropped.

Grape vines may be set out in the fall in many sections of the country. Set the plants at least as deep as they were in the nursery. Prune the roots severely before planting and cut the tops back to only a few eyes or buds.

Dig up the roots of the red hot poker plant, known as tritoma or kniphofia, and put them in storage for the winter. This applies to Northern states, where this plant is not hardy.

Bare spots under evergreen trees and shrubs are ideal situations for small spring-flowering bulbs, especially crocuses, grape hyacinths and snowdrops.

It is too early yet to set out garden roses in practically all sections of the country, but the beds should be prepared at once and orders sent forward for delivery in November, or even December or January in the Southern States.

Some of the earliest flowering shrubs, such as Daphne mezereum, are best set out in the fall.

Practically all rearrangements of the garden, including the setting out of trees, shrubs and perennials, can be made at this time. Water the plants heavily if the soil is in the least dry.

Tuberous begonias will not be injured by light frost, but it is wise to lift them early. Lay the plants in shallow boxes in an airy warm place to dry thoroughly before being stored away in dry sand for the winter. The stems should not be broken off but permitted to drop off naturally, which they will do as they dry.

Montbretia bulbs should be dug, dried and stored where they will be safe from frost in boxes of dry soil.

NOVEMBER

*On the moors it dwelleth free,
Like a fearless mountain child,
With a rosy cheek, a lightsome look,
And a spirit strong and wild.*

TWAMLEY.

To keep tuberose bulbs healthy over winter, dry them well in a frost-proof room and then store them in layers of cotton. Keep the box in a dry, warm closet.

All kinds of garden roses are now sufficiently dormant to be transplanted or purchased from nurseries. Although authorities say that ordinary garden soil will be satisfactory, deep beds of thoroughly prepared loam and compost will give better results.

Continue to plant all kinds of bulbs, especially tulips and lilies. Some imported lilies are not yet available; prepare the ground for them and mulch it heavily with manure or straw.

After the first heavy freezing of the ground, mulch the strawberry bed with a light two-inch covering of any material such as salt hay or straw that will not mat down. Avoid coverings that might contain weed seeds. Pine needles make an excellent mulch.

Let the brown fern fronds remain on the plants over winter. They will mat down and make a permanent mulch.

The tops of any perennials that show disease, as for instance delphiniums, peonies and hollyhocks, should not be added to the compost pile but burned.

The water in garden pools should be considerably lower in winter than in summer to allow for expansion and to prevent ice from getting under the coping and lifting it. Hardy gold fish may be left in the pool over winter if the water is deep enough so that the pool will not freeze solid.

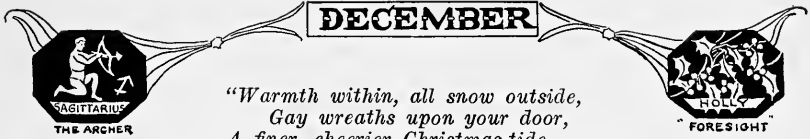

A thorough check should be made of all labels in the garden to see that they are in their proper places and legible.

Christmas roses (helleborus) do not need winter protection, but the blooms will be cleaner if a few plants are moved to a cold-frame for the winter. Dig the plants with a large ball of soil.

Lilies-of-the-valley will be much finer next spring if they are given a light mulch for the winter of very well-rotted manure or leaf mold.

This is an excellent month in which to transplant deciduous trees and shrubs.

The Virginia cowslip, Mertensia virginica, can be forced in a cool sunny window indoors. Dig a root and pot it now and keep it in cool storage for awhile.

*"Warmth within, all snow outside,
Gay wreaths upon your door,
A finer, cheerier Christmas-tide
Than you have known before."*

When the ground has become stiffened with frost, give all evergreens, especially those transplanted late this fall, a heavy mulch of straw or well-rotted manure. This applies to woody ornamentals, too. When mulching boxwood do not get the mulch directly against the plants.

Windbreaks for rhododendrons and similar plants should, of course, be in place. This work is bothersome, however, and it would be wise to consider planting hardy evergreens as a natural windbreak next season. Pines may be used or even deciduous trees and tall shrubs.

Apply the winter mulch for the perennial border during dry weather when the plants are dry and the ground is frozen. Oak leaves are good, although salt hay is neater and more easily applied. Hold the mulch in place with branches or clods of soil.

Poinsettias should be watered daily and kept at a room temperature of not over seventy degrees. Cut poinsettia blooms as well as those of Euphorbia jacquincæflora will not keep well unless the ends of the stems are seared over a flame or dipped quickly into hot water.

Jerusalem cherries and Christmas peppers will lose their foliage and fruit if there is the slightest trace of coal or illuminating gas in the air. Dry air is also injurious, but this may be counteracted by sprinkling the plants with an atomizer.

Primroses do well in a cool place. Cyclamen, too, prefer a cool position, but they require sunlight for several hours during the day.

The large flowering begonias are difficult to keep for a long time in the house. Give the plants plenty of water and be sure that they do not become chilled. Morning sun is best. Avoid getting water on the leaves of rex begonias.

Christmas will be a happy day for the birds if they find the feeding stations well supplied with food, especially if the ground is covered with glistening snow. Chickadees, nuthatches and woodpeckers like suet particularly.

All bird foods should be placed out of the reach of cats. Hang suet from the branches of trees or tall shrubs. The special wire feeding baskets are very satisfactory. Many birds enjoy doughnuts; the grease keeps them warm in cold weather.

Sunflower seeds, finely ground chicken feed, pork rinds, rolled oats, pumpkin or squash seeds and the especially mixed bird foods are recommended.

Birds need grit during the winter. Keep a dish of sand or coal ashes handy. Even fine poultry grit will do. The special bird foods contain the proper amount of coarse material.
